Davis' White House Talks Have Impact

Louisiana Gains Expected From Defense Buildup

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Gov. Jimmie H. Davis' face-to-face meeting at the White House with President John F. Kennedy had a big psychological impact upon Louisiana politics.

It appears the meeting may shortly begin to have a big economical impact upon the people and the state.

RETURNS HAPPY

Davis returned from the presidential conference reportedly feeling very happy.

The reason may be that a series of announcements is expected in the next week or two. The state is reported being tossed more than a normal share of economic benefits from the national defense buildup being spurred by Kennedy.

Lake Charles already has received assurances it will keep its Air Force base. Fort Polk is reported being reopened soon. And New Orleans is seeking a buildup allocation for the old Michoud plant.

Doubt has been expressed that the word "Tidelands" was pronounced during the Kennedy-Davis meeting. Actually, Louisiana's Congressional delegation strictly is the pilot of the future course in that matter.

Although neither Kennedy nor Davis indicated more than that their meeting was a pleasant visit, national defense apparently was the major topic. At any rate, the governor paid his respects to the President and established a friendly contact.

It is significant that U.S. Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., who went into the Davis-Kennedy conference, cast his vote for the President in a test vote on the foreign aid program.

Kennedy, astute in the game of power politics and its mechanics, is building up his congressional floc slowly. Those who side with him on key issues apparently will be on the receiving end of defense buildup funds. Those who don't won't.

The President knows Davis is Louisiana's chief executive and in the best position to wield political power and to barter.

This may be behind some of the Davis administration's fiscal optimism. Army and Air Force bases and defense activities mean jobs, payrolls, construction income — and more tax revenues to boost the state finances.

There is speculation here that

Alabama Votes Bill Prohibiting Freedom Rides

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—The Alabama Senate gave swift approval Saturday to a bill to prohibit "Freedom Rides" in Alabama. The House-passed bill was sent to the governor for signature.

Members of the upper chamber voted 24-0 in favor of the measure setting a maximum penalty of $300 fine and six months in jail for anyone who announces and then carries out a challenge to Alabama's racial barriers.

Specifically, the bill forbids "any act, gesture or communication which is calculated to or will probably so outrage or transgress the sense of decency and morals or so violate or transgress the pattern of life and habits of the people of Alabama as to be likely to cause a riot."

The overwhelmingly endorsed bill, cosponsored by nearly every member of the legislature, does not mention Freedom Riders by name.

However, supporters admit its purpose was to discourage segregation-testing bus rides such as the one that touched off riots and led to martial rule in Montgomery last May.

French Troops Leave Bizerte

BIZERTE, Tunisia (AP) — French Foreign Legion paratroopers began to withdraw from the Bizerte perimeter Saturday on orders of the Defense Ministry in Paris.

The base command said first elements of the 2nd Paratroop Regiment had left Bizerte by ship for their regular quarters in Algeria. Others are expected to follow within several days, a base spokesman said.

The 2nd was one of three paratroop regiments rushed to reinforce the French air and naval base at Bizerte after the Tunisian blockade on July 19.

Units of the 1st and 3rd regiments will remain in the French-held sector around the base, a French spokesman said.

DEFENSE INTELLIGENCE

Chief Is Chosen For New Agency

WASHINGTON (AP) — Air Force Lt. Gen. Joseph F. Carroll, a former FBI man, was picked Saturday to head the Pentagon's new joint Defense Intelligence Agency. Carroll's regular job in recent years has been inspector general of the Air Force. But he was called on twice this year by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara to make special investigations relating to suspected security violations.

The new regulation creating the Defense Intelligence Agency specifies that it must be headed by a military officer of at least 3-star rank, which would be a Lieutenant general or vice admiral. The deputy director and chief of staff also must be from the military services. All three must be on active duty at the time of appointment.

LARGE STAFF

The Pentagon said appointment of the deputy and the chief of staff would be announced later.

Eventually, the DIA will have a staff of about 1,500, a large proportion of which will be men transferred from the intelligence services of the Army, Navy and Air Force. The Pentagon has indicated that the services' intelligence branches will continue at least for a time.

Carroll, 51, is a native of Chicago. From 1940 to 1945 he was in the FBI, first as an agent in field offices at Memphis and Knoxville, Tenn., and Chicago.

In 1944 he was transferred to Washington where he supervised investigation of bank robbery and kidnaping. Later he served as chief of the criminal section and as an assistant to the FBI director.

After the Air Force became a separate service, Carroll, on loan from the FBI, organized its Office of Special Investigations. He became Air Force deputy inspector general in 1950 and later inspector general.

AT VETERANS' REUNION

Terrors Of 'Anzio Express' Recalled

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — It was Anzio Beach in southern Italy. The date was 1944. A devastating German cannon boomed out its terrorizing blasts at Allied troops.

For 67 days, the Anzio Express —also known as Anzio Annie— scored a daily average of 200 casualties. The nightly bombardments did not end until Gen. Mark Clark's 5th Army broke through and sent the Nazis fleeing.

Annie was found abandoned on the side of a mountain near Rome and was sent to Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Md., for study.

Saturday, members of the rugged U.S. Army Rangers of World War II fame, holding their three-day reunion here, visited the 280mm German cannon and vivid memories were revived.

Former S. Sgt. Willie Williams of Baltimore, who lost a leg on the beachhead, regarded the monster quietly.

"That thing sounded like a freight train going sideways. Sure it killed and wounded men but you'll never know how it terrorized the troops."

Former Capt. Joe Fineberg, of 813 Margold Lane, Narbeth,, Pa., looked at the cannon, mounted on its railroad flatcar, and recalled the frenzied efforts to silence her: "You know, we never could find that thing. Every time it was fired, the Germans rolled it back into a tunnel.

"One day we made an all-out effort to get the cannon and saturated the air with bombers and fighters. There must have been a thousand in the air and there we were on the beach just

Communists Seal Border To Germans

Action Is Taken To Stop Refugee Exodus To West

BERLIN (AP)—East Germany's Communists sealed the border between East and West Berlin early Sunday, at least to Germans.

The border closing was a lightning response to a directive from the Soviet Union and her East-bloc partner for "a reliable watch and effective control" to stop the refugee flood from East Germany.

TIGHT CLOSING

West Berlin customs first reported the main crossing point at Brandenburg Gate was closed.

"They have shut it tight," said an officer. "Cars cannot go through in either direction, no pedestrians either."

Later West Berlin headquarters said the entire border was closed.

Service was halted on the elevated rail line, run by the Communists, which links East and West Berlin and is the main line for escaping refugees as well as East Berlin commuters who work in West Berlin.

The Communists also were halting cars and pedestrians, police said.

"I'm sorry but you'll have to ring off," a police inspector said to a reporter who called. "We need all telephone lines urgently for official calls."

An Associated Press reporter drove a car with allied military license plates through the Brandenburg Gate, however.

This may mean the border closing applies only to Germans—not foreigners. A Communist officer told the reporter there were no special orders as far as the reporter was concerned.

Customs officers on the Western side at the Brandenburg Gate said elevated trains stopped running at

Argentina's Insurgents Surrender

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—President Arturo Frondizi weathered his umpteenth crisis Saturday—a revolt by about 80 men that began around midnight and was over before breakfast.

There was a great deal of shouting by rebels over the government radio, which they held for a time, and they did some shooting at police. But there was no bloodshed.

All the insurgents surrendered. The last holdouts quit when troops trained a cannon on their redoubt in the telephone exchange.

It was perhaps the smallest and weakest of the uprisings that have plagued Frondizi since he took office more than three years ago. It also was difficult to determine the political complexion of the insurgents. One rebel said he was an anti-Communist with no political affiliations.

The manifesto the rebels broadcast before troops forced them to capitulate had a nationalist ring. It pledged "widest reforms" and promised to free Argentina from "subordination to powerful economic interests." The broadcast said the rebels had no political ties.

One of the leaders was identified as Vincente Correa, a commander in the air force. But all military units remained loyal.

Most people in Buenos Aires slept through the whole affair.

Rain Prediction Stands Today

The weatherman continues to get his predictions right on temperatures but has missed again on the possible showers. No rain Saturday.

Today's forecast calls for the same thing — widely scattered afternoon thundershowers.

The high today is expected to range between 87 and 93 degrees. The low tonight is expected to be in the mid - 70's.

Yesterday's high in the Twin Cities was 92 degrees and the overnight low was 74.

U.S. Slates Launching Of S-3 Satellite

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new type of scientific satellite, perhaps the most complex yet devised, is scheduled for launching next week.

Known as the S3 energetic particles satellite, the 83-pound octagonal spacecraft will study the behavior of the electrons and protons, the minute building blocks of matter.

FIRST OF SERIES

It is expected to indicate, far more clearly than heretofore, how radiation in space may be a problem. The first of a planned series of four, the craft is to be launched within a few days from Cape Canaveral, Fla.

Placed into a highly eccentric orbit ranging from its low point of 170 miles to a high of about 50,000 miles, it will provide, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said, a "unique opportunity to study the physics of magnetic fields and energetic particles in space."

The satellites are designed specifically to make repeated observations of the solar wind phenomena, the interplanetary magnetic fields, the distant regions of the earth's magnetic field, and the volume of particles in interplanetary space and in the trapped radiation regions known as the Van Allen Belts, a potential menace to manned space travel.

The S3 will have an orbital period of about 31 hours, and will cross through the Van Allen belts twice in each period. The long orbital period also will make the spacecraft visible for about 23

SOUTHERN OFFICIALS

Howard To Head Municipal Group

By SAM HANNA
World Staff Writer

MEMPHIS, Tenn., — Mayor W. L. Howard of Monroe, who originated the movement to organize southern municipal officials, Saturday was elected the first President of The Southwide Association of Municipal Officials.

He was elected by acclamation by over 250 delegates from 10 southern states, ending a two-day conference at the Peabody Hotel.

With luke-warm support in two or three states, SAMO became the first regional municipal organization in the country, but Mayor Allen Thompson of Jackson, Miss. warned:

"We've done remarkably well, but our real work is cut out for us."

"We're off the ground though and with a flying start," added Mayor Earl James of Montgomery, Ala.

"In view of the fact that this conference was called just a little over three weeks ago, I think the attendance here is an indication that such a movement is needed and wanted," Howard said.

TO PROCEED

A newly-elected board, meeting after the general assembly Saturday morning, authorized Howard to proceed in getting the organization going.

But the delegates fanned out to their homes across the South on instructions to sell SAMO in their respective states in an effort to

Latins Get Pledge Of Aid Funds

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (AP)—The United States Saturday pledged more than a billion dollars by March 1962 to immediately aid needy Latin-American nations and get President Kennedy's Alliance for Progress program rolling.

The promise was contained in a working document submitted to a committee studying the final declaration of the inter-American economic and social conference.

"Recognizing that a number of Latin-American countries, despite their best efforts, may require "emergency financial assistance," the document said, "the United States will provide assistance."

The document said that "with a view to achieving concrete results from the Alliance for Progress at the earliest possible moment" the United States will provide assistance "totalling more than one billion dollars in the year ending March 1962."

PLANE HIJACKINGS

Pilots Association Help To Be Sought

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The copilot of the Pan American World Airways plane hijacked and flown to Cuba last week said Saturday he will ask the Air Line Pilots Association for help to stop the hijackings.

Sam Enfield of Houston, the copilot, is the Gulf Coast engineering and safety officer for the ALPA.

He rejected proposals that cockpit doors be locked, crews be armed or undercover guards be put on planes.

Enfield charted a course from Mexico to Cuba Wednesday while a gun was pointed at his head.

"First, the crew is too preoccupied with the business at hand —running the airplane," the veteran flyer said.

"Then the hijacker usually has the element of surprise and the crew is caught unaware," he said.

"If I had a gun I would have been totally unable to use it without endangering myself, the crew, the plane and the passengers," Enfield said.

"You have to take the humiliation of a man standing over you with a gun," he said. "The safety of the passengers is second to nothing."

He said he will give some suggestions to the ALPA and ask the organization to push for new Federal Aviation Agency regulations.

"I believe a visible guard would prevent hijacking attempts. A concealed guard would not keep a hijacker from taking a hostage on the plane," Enfield said.

He also suggested use of a metal detector to search passengers. He suggested work toward an extradition agreement in the Western Hemisphere for people who hijack airplanes and swift, sure punishment of those caught.

Both Agree To Exchange On Tuesday

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department announced Saturday night Cuba has agreed to return the hijacked Eastern Air Lines Electra and the United States will return a hijacked Cuban patrol vessel next Tuesday.

Press officer Joseph W. Reap said the agreement is "definitely not a swap" because the United States would have returned the $50,000 Cuban craft under due legal processes anyway.

TO SEND CREWS

But the agreement had all the other appearances of a trade, with Cuba's Castro regime agreeing to send crews to Key West Tuesday to pick up the patrol boat and the United States sending a crew to Havana to return the airliner the same day.

In terms of a trade, the United States got the better of the deal because the four-engine airliner is worth some $3.2 million.

But the airliner wasn't doing Prime Minister Fidel Castro much good because he did not have equipment handy to start it and if he had flown it outside Cuba, it might have been seized by foreign officials.

The Electra was hijacked to Havana on July 24 by a gun-toting passenger. The plane had taken off from Miami for Tampa, New Orleans and Dallas.

Castro promptly released the 32 passengers and five crew members, but kept the hijacker.

Castro's possession of the plane in the face of continued U.S. demands for its release helped raise Washington temperatures to near-boiling point earlier this week with the hijacking of a Pan American jetliner to Havana. But it turned out that in neither case

St. Helena Pupils Stay Segregated

GREENSBURG, La. (UPI) — Rural St. Helena Parish, the center of a nationwide legal dispute over school desegregation, will open its public schools Monday on a segregated basis.

The sparsely populated parish, which has more Negroes than whites, begins school early each year to permit students to get out early in the spring for the strawberry harvest.

The U. S. Fifth District Court in New Orleans has ordered the parish to desegregate its schools with all deliberate speed, but voters — mostly white — overwhelmingly elected to close schools rather than permit them to be desegregated.

The case took on nationwide aspects when the federal court asked the attorneys general of all 50 states to submit briefs on whether a state should be permitted to stop public education.

Meanwhile, the integration order has been held in abeyance. A special three-judge panel is studying the attorneys general briefs and weighing the constitutionality of Louisiana's local option law, which permitted the St. Helena election.

The state law provides that parishes may vote on whether to keep schools open in the face of court - ordered integration. For those parishes which vote to close schools, the law provides for grants-in-aid to children attending private segregated schools.

Senator Soaper Says

We are told that other countries don't like us because we are too smug and self-righteous. Perhaps what we need to do is recruit and send overseas a Slob Corps of lovable bums.

Just so it won't feel that the world is slighting it, could we have a brief report on what's going on these days in inner Mongolia?

SOUTHERN OFFICIALS

Howard To Head Municipal Group

By SAM HANNA
World Staff Writer

MEMPHIS, Tenn., — Mayor W. L. Howard of Monroe, who originated the movement to organize southern municipal officials, Saturday was elected the first President of The Southwide Association of Municipal Officials.

He was elected by acclamation by over 250 delegates from 10 southern states, ending a two-day conference at the Peabody Hotel.

With luke-warm support in two or three states, SAMO became the first regional municipal organization in the country, but Mayor Allen Thompson of Jackson, Miss. warned:

"We've done remarkably well, but our real work is cut out for us."

"We're off the ground though and with a flying start," added Mayor Earl James of Montgomery, Ala.

"In view of the fact that this conference was called just a little over three weeks ago, I think the attendance here is an indication that such a movement is needed and wanted," Howard said.

TO PROCEED

A newly-elected board, meeting after the general assembly Saturday morning, authorized Howard to proceed in getting the organization going.

But the delegates fanned out to their homes across the South on instructions to sell SAMO in their respective states in an effort to

Latins Get Pledge Of Aid Funds

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (AP)—The United States Saturday pledged more than a billion dollars by March 1962 to immediately aid needy Latin-American nations and get President Kennedy's Alliance for Progress program rolling.

The promise was contained in a working document submitted to a committee studying the final declaration of the inter-American economic and social conference.

"Recognizing that a number of Latin-American countries, despite their best efforts, may require "emergency financial assistance," the document said, "the United States will provide assistance."

The document said that "with a view to achieving concrete results from the Alliance for Progress at the earliest possible moment" the United States will provide assistance "totalling more than one billion dollars in the year ending March 1962."

PLANE HIJACKINGS

Pilots Association Help To Be Sought

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The copilot of the Pan American World Airways plane hijacked and flown to Cuba last week said Saturday he will ask the Air Line Pilots Association for help to stop the hijackings.

Sam Enfield of Houston, the copilot, is the Gulf Coast engineering and safety officer for the ALPA.

He rejected proposals that cockpit doors be locked, crews be armed or undercover guards be put on planes.

Enfield charted a course from Mexico to Cuba Wednesday while a gun was pointed at his head.

"First, the crew is too preoccupied with the business at hand —running the airplane," the veteran flyer said.

"Then the hijacker usually has the element of surprise and the crew is caught unaware," he said.

"If I had a gun I would have been totally unable to use it without endangering myself, the crew, the plane and the passengers," Enfield said.

"You have to take the humiliation of a man standing over you with a gun," he said. "The safety of the passengers is second to nothing."

He said he will give some suggestions to the ALPA and ask the organization to push for new Federal Aviation Agency regulations.

"I believe a visible guard would prevent hijacking attempts. A concealed guard would not keep a hijacker from taking a hostage on the plane," Enfield said.

He also suggested use of a metal detector to search passengers. He suggested work toward an extradition agreement in the Western Hemisphere for people who hijack airplanes and swift, sure punishment of those caught.

Both Agree To Exchange On Tuesday

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department announced Saturday night Cuba has agreed to return the hijacked Eastern Air Lines Electra and the United States will return a hijacked Cuban patrol vessel next Tuesday.

Press officer Joseph W. Reap said the agreement is "definitely not a swap" because the United States would have returned the $50,000 Cuban craft under due legal processes anyway.

TO SEND CREWS

But the agreement had all the other appearances of a trade, with Cuba's Castro regime agreeing to send crews to Key West Tuesday to pick up the patrol boat and the United States sending a crew to Havana to return the airliner the same day.

In terms of a trade, the United States got the better of the deal because the four-engine airliner is worth some $3.2 million.

But the airliner wasn't doing Prime Minister Fidel Castro much good because he did not have equipment handy to start it and if he had flown it outside Cuba, it might have been seized by foreign officials.

The Electra was hijacked to Havana on July 24 by a gun-toting passenger. The plane had taken off from Miami for Tampa, New Orleans and Dallas.

Castro promptly released the 32 passengers and five crew members, but kept the hijacker.

Castro's possession of the plane in the face of continued U.S. demands for its release helped raise Washington temperatures to near-boiling point earlier this week with the hijacking of a Pan American jetliner to Havana. But it turned out that in neither case

St. Helena Pupils Stay Segregated

GREENSBURG, La. (UPI) — Rural St. Helena Parish, the center of a nationwide legal dispute over school desegregation, will open its public schools Monday on a segregated basis.

The sparsely populated parish, which has more Negroes than whites, begins school early each year to permit students to get out early in the spring for the strawberry harvest.

The U. S. Fifth District Court in New Orleans has ordered the parish to desegregate its schools with all deliberate speed, but voters — mostly white — overwhelmingly elected to close schools rather than permit them to be desegregated.

The case took on nationwide aspects when the federal court asked the attorneys general of all 50 states to submit briefs on whether a state should be permitted to stop public education.

Meanwhile, the integration order has been held in abeyance. A special three-judge panel is studying the attorneys general briefs and weighing the constitutionality of Louisiana's local option law, which permitted the St. Helena election.

The state law provides that parishes may vote on whether to keep schools open in the face of court - ordered integration. For those parishes which vote to close schools, the law provides for grants-in-aid to children attending private segregated schools.

Any municipality in the 11 southern states is eligible to join SAMO, under a constitution adopted by the conference Friday afternoon.

The conference actually ended shortly after noon Saturday, but Josph Mitchell, city-manager of Newburgh, N. Y., was delayed in arriving.

About 50 delegates remained to hear Mitchell, who told the "Newburg story," a first-hand account of the welfare controversy in the city he manages.

Mayor Raymond Laborde of Marksville, after Alabama yielded to Louisiana, placed Howard's name on the floor for nomination. The motion was seconded by the delegations from Mississippi, South Carolina and Virginia.

Mayor David H. McCleod of Florence, S. C., was elected vice-president by acclamation also, but only after Texas withdrew the name of Mayor John Justin of Ft. Worth.

Howard, 41, was elected to a one - year term, stepping up from the temporary chairmanship. McLeod, 45, is the president of the South Carolina municipal Association.

"I assure you that my interests are sincere," Howard said after his election. "You will not find me going beyond this document."

He was referring to the constitution, which pledged SAMO to a "return to constitutional government" . . . "states sovereignty" . . . "decentralization of government" . . .and to "strengthen the southwide economy by encouraging industrial growth."

"I don't think we could have written a better policy to follow," commented Sidney Gray, former Lake Charles mayor and the executive director of the Louisiana Municipal Association.

The constitution made no mention of the integration issue or federal aid.

But it advocated "free enterprise" and that alone was enough to make doubters out of Mayor Henry Loeb of Memphis and the Tennessee Municipal League.

Memphis is in the heart of the TVA area where the federal government provides electrical power.

Loeb, in welcoming the delegates to Memphis on Friday morning, said he could not endorse SAMO until he learned more about its "specific aims."

His remarks, made to welcome the convention to town, weren't well received, but Thompson and Mayor Clyde Fant of Shreveport countered to solidify the conference.

For instance, James told the delegates Saturday, "this is a movement that could include Oregon and other states and even Shelby County (Memphis)."

MOST DELEGATES

Mississippi, with more delegates registering Friday night, had the largest group present with 72. Louisiana had 60.

"Regardless of what you may have heard, Alabama is behind the movement," James said, making note of opposition from Ed Reid, executive director of the Alabama League.

With a redistricting fight in the Alabama Legislature, James said the state's delegation was "unavoidably smaller," but telegrams from several Alabama mayors came to Howard during the convention.

Most obvious support came from Louisiana, Mississippi and South Carolina, but SAMO showed a healthy sign of strength in Texas, North Florida and Georgia.

While North Carolina was the only state not represented, small delegations attended from Virginia, Arkansas and Tennessee. Those were the luke-warm states.

"Virginia is so conservative they'll wait awhile before joining," one Virginia delegate said.

Louisiana's four board members elected were Mayor A. P. Carter, Bastrop, Mayor Jack Christian, Baton Rouge, Mayor Charles Cassidy, LMA president, Bogalusa and Fant.

With each state entitled to four board members, here are the board delegates elected:

Alabama—James of Montgomery, Mayor J. W. Oakley Sr., Centreville, Mayor Chris Heinz, Selma, and Mayor Bud Walker, Homewood.

Arkansas—Mayor Herbert Sanderson, Jonesboro; Mayor W. C. Davis, Stuttgart; and Mayor Garland Medders, Hope. Other board member to be elected later.

Georgia—Mayor Frank E. Cogan, Hapeville; Mayor Jack Hamilton, Decatur. Others to be chosen in Georgia.

Mississippi—Thompson of Jackson; Mayor James Ballard, Tupelo; Mayor Claude Pittman, Hattiesburg; and Mayor Troy Watkins, Natchez, also president of the Mississippi Municipal Association.

South Carolina—Mayor J. Palmer Gaillard, Charleston; Mayor David Tompkins, Edgefield; Mayor W. Paul Culbertson, Laurens. Other member to be elected in South Carolina.

Tennessee—Passed.

Texas — Justin of Ft. Worth; Mayor D. A. Richardson; Mayor Morton Thomen, Orange; Mayor Ernest Wright, Garland.

Virginia—Mayor Julian Stinson, Danville; Mayor Clyde Duckworth, Norfolk; Mayor Willis Anderson, Roanoke; and Mayor Brittingham, Newport News.

Thus, the official structure of SAMO was established, bringing to a climax efforts that started in city hall at Monroe to organize southern "grass roots" officials. The plan was first suggested by Howard, backed by Street Commissioner W. D. H. Rodriguez and Finance Commissioner H. W. McSherry, then endorsed by the LMA.

Under the constitution, SAMO intends to conduct an education program to give the nation a picture of the progress that's been made in the South.

PERMANENT STAFF

In addition, Howard said the organization plans to employ a permanent director and staff, first to build membership and the program, then to establish a secondary office in Washington to keep tabs on Legislation.

Municipalities joining SAMO, which will be run by the board, will pay a fee, with a city the size of Monroe required to pay $400 for annual membership.

Mitchell was scheduled to address the convention at Saturday noon, but airplane trouble in New York delayed him by two hours. Calvin Johnson, a former Congressman, of New Malboro, Md., spoke Friday.

Referring to the Newburgh welfare case, Mitchell told the remaining delegates that reaction, through the mail and newspaper editorials, had been 60 to 1 in favor of Newburgh.

With the city chopping its welfare rolls, the State of New York has filed suit. "We are in favor of the ideology of welfare as it pertains to the use of public funds to safeguard the life and security of the indigent, of the destitute, of the disabled, of the aged, of the handicapped, and of the socially maladjusted citizens," Mitchell stated.

But he said the Newburgh officials were not in favor of "illegitimate practices of welfare."

were the hijackers Cuban citizens.

The 40-foot patrol boat, known simply as the SV8, sailed into Key West July 29. It was manned by three Cuban escapees.

The U.S. Coast Guard has held the ship since then. A court order to take over the ship was issued after a Miami advertising firm, claiming unsatisfied debts against Castro, asked for seizure and sale of the craft.

The advertising firm has a $429,000 judgment against the Castro government.

Reap said the State Department has, at Cuba's request, moved to release the vessel from the court's jurisdiction. It is doing this by claiming that as Cuban government property, the ship is entitled to sovereign immunity and cannot be seized for a private suit.

The State Department stressed this legal procedure in contending that the two-way return of hijacked property was not a "swap."

Since mid-1959 of 25 aircraft hijacked from Cuba—14 have been returned to Cuba while 11 have been sold under court orders ot satisfy claims of debtors.

Seven of the planes were seized here through court orders. The other 18 were flown to this country by Cuban defectors.

The State Department announcement followed an exchange of a series of notes between Havana and Washington, with the Swiss acting as intermediaries because the United States and Cuba have no direct diplomatic relations.

Reap said Castro also asked for:

1. Return by each country to the other of the hijackers.
2. Agreement that hijacked property and hijackers would be exchanged in the future.
3. An agreement for stiff penalties against hijackers—as the Castro proposal put it—"the most effective method of stopping these piratical acts."

Reap was unable to say what disposition is being made of Castro's other requests beyond the simple return of the airliner and the patrol vessel next Tuesday.

The diplomatic exchanges started off with a U.S. note July 24 demanding release of plane, crew and passengers. Cuba replied in a Aug. 4 note which took six days to reach Washington through the Swiss channels. On the day the Aug. 4 note arrived here—Aug. 10—the United States promptly replied that night, the Cubans sent their response the following day, and the Swiss wrapped up the agreement Saturday.

This is the first business concluded between the United States and the pro-Communist Castro regime since former President Dwight D. Eisenhower broke diplomatic relations on the heels of mounting Castro insults.

Annie, it was learned later, weighed more than 100 tons and fired a 550-pound projectile 30 miles. When using a rocket-aided shell, the cannon was able to throw projectiles 60 miles.

Communists Seal Border To Germans

1:30 a.m. and German cars were barred after 2:30 a.m.

The Soviet Union and other Communist nations in the Warsaw Pact, in a directive issued to East Germany early Sunday, demanded a "reliable watch and an effective control" around West Berlin—including the border between East and West Berlin. The directive was published by the East German news agency ADN.

The closing of the border at Brandenburg Gate was the first action in response to the Warsaw Pact statement.

The East Germans through propaganda measures and augmented police controls on refugee routes leading to Berlin have been trying for weeks to stem the high tide of East German refugees reaching West Berlin.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev's drumfire of demands apparently has stimulated fear among the people that the Berlin escape hatch would be closed.

But the Communists for some reason have been reluctant to apply iron controls to seal West Berlin's borders, and the refugee flow Saturday may have reached the 3,000 mark—the biggest in any single day since the 1953 revolt.

The Warsaw Pact statement finally calling for the border closing, said the control measures should not affect traffic arrangements between West Berlin and West Germany.

Such traffic is now controlled largely by the East German Communists. U.S., British and French military traffic, and civilian air traffic, is under control of those three powers and the Soviet Union, however.

But the Communists for some reason have been reluctant to apply iron controls to seal West Berlin's borders, and the refugee flow Saturday may have reached the 3,000 mark—the biggest in any single day since the 1953 revolt.

The Warsaw Pact statement finally calling for the border closing, said the control measures should not affect traffic arrangements between West Berlin and West Germany.

Such traffic is now controlled largely by the East German Communists. U.S., British and French military traffic, and civilian air traffic, is under control of those three powers and the Soviet Union, however.

Auto Union To Act On Strike Votes

DETROIT (AP) — The International Executive Board of the United Auto Workers union meets in special session here Sunday to put its stamp of approval on the taking of strike votes among its more than half million members at General Motors, Ford and Chrysler plants.

Union representatives at the bargaining tables have asked for the strike votes. They say this muscle is needed to pry loose offers on new contracts.

Current three-year wage pacts at GM, Ford and Chrysler expire Aug. 31. Negotiations on new ones opened in late June.

The executive board must approve a strike to make it legal under the UAW constitution. Union spokesmen said there was ample time to get all strike-calling machinery operative by Aug. 31.

The only package settlement offer — a profit-sharing one — has come from American Motors Corp., where the current pacts runs to Sept. 7. The UAW is due to give AMC an answer a week from Tuesday. However, the union wants an offer from one of the big three before it answers the No. 4 automaker.

It might find a compromise to meet its goals — most of them aimed at protecting old jobs and creating new ones.

It is unlikely at this stage that the executive board will post any member of the big three as the No. 1 target, but there have been growing indications it may be General Motors.

All three sets of UAW negotiators say that the companies thus far have failed to come up with offers to meet what the union describes as "the problem of their workers."

The union itself laid down no flat settlement demands. It said it was willing to outline the problems — chiefly job security and job opportunity—and follow any road that might lead to solution. The union, however, suggested among other things that a shorter work week, yearly salaries and earlier and higher pensions might be among things that would meet worker needs.

The big three has said that settlements must not advance inflation and result in higher car prices. None have said workers could not expect either pay or fringe-benefit increases.

AMC, in its profit-sharing offer, proposed a seven-cent hourly increase yearly over the next three years, but would freeze current fringe benefits and do away with the so-called annual improvement factor and the cost of living escalator.

The annual improvement factor gives an automatic pay increase yearly of at least six cents hourly. The escalator carries pay up or down a penny hourly for each half-point rise or fall in the government's consumer price index. The union has said it doesn't propose to give up either.

Man Is Slain In Presence Of Grandchildren

MOUNT VERNON, Ill. (AP)—William H. Rose, 68, was shot to death in front of his three grandchildren Saturday after neighbors objected when he tried to deliver two ponies for the children to ride.

Two men accused in the slaying then were routed from their nearby home by officers who used tear gas.

The pair, Everett Rone, 74, and his son, Ernest, 43, were taken to the Mount Vernon police station, handcuffed together.

Police said witnesses told them the Rones, who live next door to the children just outside the city, objected to the presence of the ponies and that an argument with Rose ensued. Rose lived near here.

Officers said the elder Rone wounded Rose with a 12-gauge shotgun and that the younger Rone struck the wounded man with a piece of lumber, took the shotgun from his father, fired another blast into Rose's head and then beat him with the weapon as Rose lay on the pavement.

Mount Vernon is 75 miles southeast of St. Louis.

Highway Project In East Carroll Slated For Bids

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Louisiana Highway Director Ray W. Burgess said Saturday that bids will be received August 23 on a 5.5 - mile road improvement project on parish roads in Wards 1 and 2 in East Carroll Parish.

Burgess said the first part of the project begins at the junction of a parish road and State Route 580 approximately two miles west of Alsatia, then proceeds south along the parish road a distance of two miles.

The second section begins at the junction of the parish road and State Route 580 west of Alsatia, then proceeds 3.5 miles north and east along the parish road to the junction with US-65.

The highway director said that construction would consist of aggregate type base course, drainage structures and bituminous surface treatment 20 feet wide.

Time of construction will be about five months after the contract has been awarded.

Both East, West Aid Indonesia Buildup Of Strategic Air Power

DJAKARTA (UPI) — Indonesia is rapidly building a powerful strategic air arm with aid from both the East and West.

Jet combat aircraft from Russia and Czechoslovakia form an impressive striking force, while American-built transports are available for supply purposes.

Newest addition to the republic's growing air force is a medium bomber wing.

Two Soviet Tupolev twin-jet bombers were flown here this month by Indonesian crews. The TU-16 bombers—with a range of more than 4,000 miles—provide Indonesia with one of the most powerful medium-range striking forces in Asia.

Informed sources told United Press International that at least two, and possibly four more of the TU-16's commonly called "Badgers" would be delivered to Indonesia.

Indonesia also is expected to receive new Soviet day and night fighters, according to these sources.

The fighters are expected to be the twin-jet Mig-19 and the supersonic Mig-21 fighter.

The Indonesian air force currently is equipped with Czech Mig-15 and Mig-17 jet fighters.

Other sources have indicated that Indonesia has been trying to obtain a number of U.S.-built "Starfighter" supersonic jet fighters from West Germany.

Other Indoneisian bombers include the slower twin-jet Ilyushin IL-28 "Beagle" which has a 1,300-mile range, and out-dated American B25 and B26 propeller bombers.

Additional fighter aircraft include a wing of British Vampire jets and older American P51 Mustang prop-driven fighters.

Supplying the striking arm of the Air Force are Lockheed C130B "Hercules" turboprop transports.

ON MANNED FLIGHT

Soviet Spaceship Soars Over U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union's manned spaceship Vostok II made perhaps nine passes over North American territory, which suggests interesting possibilities of future military reconnaissance.

Some of the passes brought Maj. Gherman Titov's satellite over the general area of some militarily significant regions.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Saturday in response to an inquiry that approximately half of the 17 orbits of the Vostok carried it over U.S. or Canadian territory—in most cases over both.

The government has declined to say just how closely it tracked the spaceship, or by what methods. NASA did say last Sunday that the Vostok had been tracked "since shortly after it lifted off." The effectiveness of the tracking was such that NASA was able to predict in advance times and places over which the Vostok would fly.

Among the regions over which Titov and his spaceship passed were the Eastern Seaboard with its big metropolitan areas and military bases; the downrange corridor of the Pacific missile test range; the general area of the Atlantic test range southeastward from Cape Canaveral, Fla.

The craft also crossed the United States in New Mexico, where missile tests and nuclear research are carried on; and in Montana, where the Air Force is installing intercontinental missile launching sites.

Its orbit also carried the Vostok over Alaska, the site of air and other military bases; and a portion of Greenland, the site of a ballistic missile early warning station.

In his Moscow news conference on Friday, Titov told of taking over manual control of the Vostok soon after launching and again on his seventh orbit. He said he was able to orient the attitude of his ship in space and could send it on any course he desired.

By controlling the attitude of the vehicle, in relation to the earth, he presumably could rotate it so that he could look down and make motion picture shots—which he said he did. Titov spoke of being able to see cultivated and fallow fields, harvested and unharvested fields. It was not clear whether he had used optical or electronic equipment.

Balloonists who have been up to altitudes of a mere 100,000 feet report they could discern such things as coastlines, but few objects smaller than that.

However, Titov's observations could have been magnified many degrees through use of some form of polarized light. If high-powered cameras, with special lens and filter equipment were used, remarkably detailed pictures could be made from the minimum altitude of about 119 miles at which the Vostok orbited.

Titov's claim to being able to change direction of the vehicle was not impossible. Steering rockets, similar to the Vernier rockets used in rotating a space vehicle but with somewhat more thrust, could change the direction of flight.

2 Burglary Suspects Are Found Slain

BUFFALO, N. Y. (UPI)— Two young burglary suspects, their bodies bound and gagged, were found strangled and dumped in a field in a possible gangland vendetta Saturday.

Both were believed to have been friends of a man shot down with a pistol stolen in a burglary three weeks ago, and one had given police information about the burglary.

The bodies of Anthony Palestine 23, and Vincent Santangelo, 21, were found in a field in suburban Lancester by a man returning home from work about 6 a.m.

O.. body had been badly cut on the chest, stomach and groin, but both were fully clothed. Police said they had apparently been strangled and dumped in the field after they were dead.

Police would not comment on how closely the double slaying might be tired to the unsolved killing of Nicholas C. Tirone, 22, who was shot with a stolen gun while walking down the street with a friend July 23.

But police said Santangelo had made a sworn statement about the house burglary in which the death gun was stolen. They said Santangelo told them he had been asked to take part in the job, had refused, but had told the burglars how to open the safe in the house.

Police also said Santangelo, Palestina and Tirone knew each other, and all lived in the same trouble-plagued section of Buffalo's west side.

Group To Fast In Support Of Freedom Riders

NEW YORK (UPI)—About 100 persons, many of whom said they would fast for 24 hours, demonstrated here Saturday in support of 187 "freedom riders" who will appeal their cases Monday in Jackson, Miss.

The Congress of Racial Equality (CORE), sponsoring the demonstration, said that the fasting demonstrators would stay all night in Battery Park.

The demonstration began in Battery Park Saturday morning then moved to Liberty Island, where the Statue of Liberty stands. When the island was closed for the night, the demonstrations were to return to Battery Park.

CORE's New York demonstration was marred by violence Friday night when 32 racially mixed "freedom riders" headed for Jackson by bus to appeal their breach of peace convictions.

An unidentified white man assaulted a newspaper reporter, William Doolittle, 24, of the New York Post, who was covering the departure rally. The man also hit CORE public relations man Marvin Rich, 31, who rushed up to him after Doolittle had been hit.

Doolittle was treated at a hospital and released. Rich did not require hospital treatment.

Police were searching for their attacker.

Judge Refuses Hearing Delay In Voter Suits

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI)—U. S. District Judge Harold Cox Saturday denied a request for a delay of a hearing concerning voter registration suits against Clarke and Forrest County registrars.

In denying the request, Cox said he would hear a motion Monday by the Justice Department, which filed the suits, that the Forrest and Clarke County registrars produce voting records.

Atty. Gen. Joe Patterson asked for a 40-day delay because the state has been "flooded with other civil rights actions." Other pending federal suits involve desegregation of the University of Mississippi and a challenge of state segregation laws in travel terminals.

The suits charged registrars Theron Lynd of Forrest County and A. L. Ramsey of Clarke County have refused to register qualified Negroes because of their race.

Patterson said his office was "heavily burdened with cases in this (southern) district court and one in the northern district in the field of civil rights."

Davis Installed As Commander Of Legion Post

RUSTON (Special) — Howard C. Davis has been installed as commander of McFarland McCallum Legion Post No. 2 in Ruston.

State Vice Commander Charles E. Herring of Lake Providence acted as installing officer at the ceremonies.

John D. McCallum and Hunter Lewis were installed as vice commanders, Bill Veazey as Post adjutant, A. W. Thomson as treasurer; Charles Carter as Post service officer, Henry Riser as chaplain and C. W. Colvin and Larry Fox as color bearers.

Prior to the installation ceremonies, commander Herring challenged the post relative to the importance of membership. Veterans organizations need to be strong during the present world crisis, he said.

Agriculture Conference Is Completed

RUSTON (Special)— Vocational agriculture teachers of Lincoln parish and the surrounding parishes of Jackson, Ouachita, Union and Caldwell completed a three-day conference in Ruston to develop new programs in vocational agriculture.

The program was designed to meet the needs of a changing agricultural situation, a spokesman for the group said.

Those attending the conference included:

R. G. Pikes, Jonesboro; E. L. Busbice, Weston; Evan Austin, Quitman, C. C. Moss, Chatham; Cliff Dry, Ruston, M. J. Barr, Hico; Marvin Fowler, Dubach, J. M. Britt, Choudrant.

Merle Elliott, Downsville; S. H. Cooper, Linville; W. C. Crow, Marion, J. L. Burns, Spearsville; A. F. Robinson, Grayson; Jesse D. Blackman, Columbia and A. W. Gerson, Calhoun.

Others participating in the conference included R. G. Hanchey, principal of Ruston High School; Dr. C. L. Mondart, teacher training expert from Louisiana State University; Jerry Stovall, livestock specialist with the state department of education; L. V. DeCou, supervisor of instruction, Jackson parish schools, and Morelle Emmons, superintendent of Lincoln parish schools.

The conference here is one of a series held in districts throughout the state sponsored by the Vocational Division of the State Department of Education and the teacher training departments of Louisiana State University and University of Southwestern Louisiana in conjunction with the superintendents of schools of parishes with vocational agriculture programs.

"During the past few years the changes occurring in the entire agriculture industry have created new problems in agriculture training programs," Mondart told the group. "Adjustments must be made to meet these situations as they arise."

Fathers Argue About Ponies, One Is Slain

MOUNT VERNON, Pa. (UPI)—Two fathers on visits to their married children got into an argument about ponies Saturday. One was shot to death and the other was driven from his daughter's home by tear gas shells.

Authorities said Everett Rone, about 70, shot Henry Rose, 63, with a 12 gauge shotgun.

Eyewitnesses said Rone became enraged when Rose brought some ponies to his son's home for Rose's grandchildren to ride.

Rone emerged from his daughter's home next door, witnesses said. They said he cursed Rose, shot him twice with the shotgun, beat the fallen man over the head with the gun stock, and then fled back into the house.

Rone and his son, Ernest, 40, barricaded the home and threatened to shoot if any attempt was made to dislodge them.

City, county and state police units converged. An hour and a half of trying to reason with Rone accomplished nothing. The police then lobbed six tear gas shells into the home.

There were no shots fired between the police and Rone.

BERLIN CRISIS

West Is Facing Waiting Period

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The next few weeks of the Berlin crisis are going to be difficult for the West —a priod of uncertainty, probing of intentions, and a good deal of plain waiting.

Qualified officials said Saturday there would be weeks of more and probably intensified planning among the Allied powers. The four power "working group" on Berlin strategy plans meetings here next week and it may be beefed up with more expert personnel.

The group has included State Department European affairs officials and the ambassadors to Washington of Britain, France and West Germany.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk returned this week from Allied foreign ministers and NATO meetings in Paris with a report that now is not the right moment for the West to take the diplomatic offensive on Berlin by calling for talks with Russia on concrete proposals.

The Western foreign ministers in Paris agreed that a Western diplomatic move might well be taken at some point before the end of the year, the deadline Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev has set for signing his East German peace treaty, designed to oust the West from Berlin. But there were several reasons for waiting a bit longer:

The West German elections are coming up Sept. 17 and any Allied "Berlin plan" unveiled before then might become a political issue in Germany and be weakened. No formal East-West talks are expected until at least this date.

Khrushchev, Western officials feel, has still not made clear many details of his own Berlin plans. He has thrown about phrases like "guaranteed access" without defining them. Officials want to see more of his hand before showing theirs.

There is still the great unknown of how conditions in East Germany will affec the situation, regardless of big power plans. Officials fear East German attempts to bottle up the increasing flow of refugees to the West could raise East German tensions, perhaps cause riots which could precipitate a Berlin crisis in its worst form, raising the question of both Russian and U.S. intervention.

So during the next four or six or more weeks Western diplomats will watch the unfolding of events. They will also probe for clues to Russian intentions. They expect informal talks with the Soviets through embassies, at the United Nations and possibly in private chats such as White House disarmament adviser John J. McCloy's recent chat with Khrushchev and Khrushchev's talk with Italian Premier Amintore Fanfani.

They expect formal Berlin talks with Russia sometime before the end of the year.

ON MANNED FLIGHT

Soviet Spaceship Soars Over U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union's manned spaceship Vostok II made perhaps nine passes over North American territory, which suggests interesting possibilities of future military reconnaissance.

Some of the passes brought Maj. Gherman Titov's satellite over the general area of some militarily significant regions.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Saturday in response to an inquiry that approximately half of the 17 orbits of the Vostok carried it over U.S. or Canadian territory—in most cases over both.

The government has declined to say just how closely it tracked the spaceship, or by what methods. NASA did say last Sunday that the Vostok had been tracked "since shortly after it lifted off." The effectiveness of the tracking was such that NASA was able to predict in advance times and places over which the Vostok would fly.

Among the regions over which Titov and his spaceship passed were the Eastern Seaboard with its big metropolitan areas and military bases; the downrange corridor of the Pacific missile test range; the general area of the Atlantic test range southeastward from Cape Canaveral, Fla.

The craft also crossed the United States in New Mexico, where missile tests and nuclear research are carried on; and in Montana, where the Air Force is installing intercontinental missile launching sites.

Its orbit also carried the Vostok over Alaska, the site of air and other military bases; and a portion of Greenland, the site of a ballistic missile early warning station.

In his Moscow news conference on Friday, Titov told of taking over manual control of the Vostok soon after launching and again on his seventh orbit. He said he was able to orient the attitude of his ship in space and could send it on any course he desired.

By controlling the attitude of the vehicle, in relation to the earth, he presumably could rotate it so that he could look down and make motion picture shots—which he said he did. Titov spoke of being able to see cultivated and fallow fields, harvested and unharvested fields. It was not clear whether he had used optical or electronic equipment.

Balloonists who have been up to altitudes of a mere 100,000 feet report they could discern such things as coastlines, but few objects smaller than that.

However, Titov's observations could have been magnified many degrees through use of some form of polarized light. If high-powered cameras, with special lens and filter equipment were used, remarkably detailed pictures could be made from the minimum altitude of about 119 miles at which the Vostok orbited.

Titov's claim to being able to change direction of the vehicle was not impossible. Steering rockets, similar to the Vernier rockets used in rotating a space vehicle but with somewhat more thrust, could change the direction of flight.

2 Burglary Suspects Are Found Slain

BUFFALO, N. Y. (UPI)— Two young burglary suspects, their bodies bound and gagged, were found strangled and dumped in a field in a possible gangland vendetta Saturday.

Both were believed to have been friends of a man shot down with a pistol stolen in a burglary three weeks ago, and one had given police information about the burglary.

The bodies of Anthony Palestine 23, and Vincent Santangelo, 21, were found in a field in suburban Lancester by a man returning home from work about 6 a.m.

O. . body had been badly cut on the chest, stomach and groin, but both were fully clothed. Police said they had apparently been strangled and dumped in the field after they were dead.

Police would not comment on how closely the double slaying might be tired to the unsolved killing of Nicholas C. Tirone, 22, who was shot with a stolen gun while walking down the street with a friend July 23.

But police said Santangelo had made a sworn statement about the house burglary in which the death gun was stolen. They said Santangelo told them he had been asked to take part in the job, had refused, but had told the burglars how to open the safe in the house.

Police also said Santangelo, Palestina and Tirone knew each other, and all lived in the same trouble-plagued section of Buffalo's west side.

Group To Fast In Support Of Freedom Riders

NEW YORK (UPI)—About 100 persons, many of whom said they would fast for 24 hours, demonstrated here Saturday in support of 187 "freedom riders" who will appeal their cases Monday in Jackson, Miss.

The Congress of Racial Equality (CORE), sponsoring the demonstration, said that the fasting demonstrators would stay all night in Battery Park.

The demonstration began in Battery Park Saturday morning then moved to Liberty Island, where the Statue of Liberty stands. When the island was closed for the night, the demonstrations were to return to Battery Park.

CORE's New York demonstration was marred by violence Friday night when 32 racially mixed "freedom riders" headed for Jackson by bus to appeal their breach of peace convictions.

An unidentified white man assaulted a newspaper reporter, William Doolittle, 24, of the New York Post, who was covering the departure rally. The man also hit CORE public relations man Marvin Rich, 31, who rushed up to him after Doolittle had been hit.

Doolittle was treated at a hospital and released. Rich did not require hospital treatment.

Police were searching for their attacker.

Judge Refuses Hearing Delay In Voter Suits

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI)—U. S. District Judge Harold Cox Saturday denied a request for a delay of a hearing concerning voter registration suits against Clarke and Forrest County registrars.

In denying the request, Cox said he would hear a motion Monday by the Justice Department, which filed the suits, that the Forrest and Clarke County registrars produce voting records.

Atty. Gen. Joe Patterson asked for a 40-day delay because the state has been "flooded with other civil rights actions." Other pending federal suits involve desegregation of the University of Mississippi and a challenge of state segregation laws in travel terminals.

The suits charged registrars Theron Lynd of Forrest County and A. L. Ramsey of Clarke County have refused to register qualified Negroes because of their race.

Patterson said his office was "heavily burdened with cases in this (southern) district court and one in the northern district in the field of civil rights."

Davis Installed As Commander Of Legion Post

RUSTON (Special) — Howard C. Davis has been installed as commander of McFarland McCallum Legion Post No. 2 in Ruston.

State Vice Commander Charles E. Herring of Lake Providence acted as installing officer at the ceremonies.

John D. McCallum and Hunter Lewis were installed as vice commanders, Bill Veazey as Post adjutant, A. W. Thomson as treasurer; Charles Carter as Post service officer, Henry Riser as chaplain and C. W. Colvin and Larry Fox as color bearers.

Prior to the installation ceremonies, commander Herring challenged the post relative to the importance of membership. Veterans organizations need to be strong during the present world crisis, he said.

Agriculture Conference Is Completed

RUSTON (Special)— Vocational agriculture teachers of Lincoln parish and the surrounding parishes of Jackson, Ouachita, Union and Caldwell completed a three-day conference in Ruston to develop new programs in vocational agriculture.

The program was designed to meet the needs of a changing agricultural situation, a spokesman for the group said.

Those attending the conference included:

R. G. Pikes, Jonesboro; E. L. Busbice, Weston; Evan Austin, Quitman, C. C. Moss, Chatham; Cliff Dry, Ruston, M. J. Barr, Hico; Marvin Fowler, Dubach, J. M. Britt, Choudrant.

Merle Elliott, Downsville; S. H. Cooper, Linville; W. C. Crow, Marion, J. L. Burns, Spearsville; A. F. Robinson, Grayson; Jesse D. Blackman, Columbia and A. W. Gerson, Calhoun.

Others participating in the conference included R. G. Hanchey, principal of Ruston High School; Dr. C. L. Mondart, teacher training expert from Louisiana State University; Jerry Stovall, livestock specialist with the state department of education; L. V. DeCou, supervisor of instruction, Jackson parish schools, and Morelle Emmons, superintendent of Lincoln parish schools.

The conference here is one of a series held in districts throughout the state sponsored by the Vocational Division of the State Department of Education and the teacher training departments of Louisiana State University and University of Southwestern Louisiana in conjunction with the superintendents of schools of parishes with vocational agriculture programs.

"During the past few years the changes occurring in the entire agriculture industry have created new problems in agriculture training programs," Mondart told the group. "Adjustments must be made to meet these situations as they arise."

Fathers Argue About Ponies, One Is Slain

MOUNT VERNON, Fl. (UPI)—Two fathers on visits to their married children got into an argument about ponies Saturday. One was shot to death and the other was driven from his daughter's home by tear gas shells.

Authorities said Everett Rone, about 70, shot Henry Rose, 68, with a 12 gauge shotgun.

Eyewitnesses said Rone became enraged when Rose brought some ponies to his son's home for Rose's grandchildren to ride.

Rone emerged from his daughter's home next door, witnesses said. They said he cursed Rose, shot him twice with the shotgun, beat the fallen man over the head with the gun stock, and then fled back into the house.

Rone and his son, Ernest, 40, barricaded the home and threatened to shoot if any attempt was made to dislodge them.

City, county and state police units converged. An hour and a half of trying to reason with Rone accomplished nothing. The police then lobbed six tear gas shells into the home.

There were no shots fired between the police and Rone.

BERLIN CRISIS

West Is Facing Waiting Period

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The next few weeks of the Berlin crisis are going to be difficult for the West—a priod of uncertainty, probing of intentions, and a good deal of plain waiting.

Qualified officials said Saturday there would be weeks of more and probably intensified planning among the Allied powers. The four power "working group" on Berlin strategy plans meetings here next week and it may be beefed up with more expert personnel.

The group has included State Department European affairs officials and the ambassadors to Washington of Britain, France and West Germany.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk returned this week from Allied foreign ministers and NATO meetings in Paris with a report that now is not the right moment for the West to take the diplomatic offensive on Berlin by calling for talks with Russia on concrete proposals.

Deputies Say Castro Plots Latin Coups

LIMA, Peru (AP)—Two Bolivian deputies were quoted Saturday as saying Bolivia is headquarters for a Castroite infiltration in Latin America financed by narcotics.

The newspaper La Prensa said the deputies charged the Bolivian city of Santa Cruz, near the Argentine border, "is now an enormous cocaine plant whose production is being used to finance both arms traffic and to organize Castroite coups in Bolivia, Chile, Peru and Argentina."

The two deputies were identified as Mario Gutierrez and Gonzalo Romero, both members of the opposition party in Bolivia's lower house. They made the statement on a visit to Lima, La Prensa said.

By the paper's account:

The deputies said a so-called pirate plane downed recently by the Bolivian air force near Santa Cruz had made 15 flights from Havana, bringing in 10 tons of automatic arms and ammunition from Cuba on each flight.

They said the arms were unloaded near Santa Cruz and were smuggled into Peru, Chile and Argentina by revolutionary agents. They reported the planes on outgoing flights carried cocaine produced in Santa Cruz to be sold abroad to finance the arms traffic.

They claimed the Bolivian government knew about this traffic and acted only because U. S. government agents arrived in La Paz to make inquiries into the mysterious plane flights.

By calling the downed plane a pirate, the deputies added, the Bolivian government tried to cover up the vast revolutionary plan in Latin America.

Why the government of President Victor Paz Estenssoro would try to cover up such activity, the newspaper never tried to explain in its account.

Paz Estenssoro has been warring on Communists and Castroites. He announced last June he had crushed a Communist-Castroite plot to stage a revolution. Bolivia ousted Cuba's charge d'affaires in La Paz, Mauro Garcia, and charged the plot was designed to help torpedo President Kennedy's Alliance for Progress program in Latin America.

Dr. Stopford Elected New Anglican Bishop

LONDON (AP) — Dr. Robert Stopford was elected Anglican bishop of London Saturday at a ceremony in St. Paul's Cathedral at which clerical opposition raised its head politely.

It was all in the best of good form, but there were votes against Dr. Stopford, who is bishop of Peterborough. The decorous protest could lead to a change in the 14th-century law that lays down the rules for the election of bishops.

The chief protestor was Canon John Collins, distinguished clergyman who is precentor of St. Paul's. He said later he had voted against Dr. Stopford and if the ancient law were to be enforced to the letter Canon Collins now could be "deprived of his chattels and put into prison."

No one thought anything so drastic was going to happen, but the canon expressed hope the Church of England would be jolted into persuading Parliament to change the basic rules.

Canon Collins' objection to Dr. Stopford arose from divergent views on nuclear warfare. Dr. Stopford holds the most rigorous opposition to the spread of communism by any means available while Canon Collins is associated with campaigns for nuclear disarmament.

Dr. Stopford succeeds The Right Rev. Henry Colville Montgomery-Campbell, who resigned as bishop of London July 31.

IN SOUTHERN LAOS

Viet Nam Forces Harrassing Reds

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) —Crack South Vietnamese troops are operating in southern Laos to cut the flow of Communist supplies and guerrilla reinforcements moving down from Red North Viet Nam, highly informed sources here say.

There are also strong indications that even U.S.-trained units are working in Commnuist North Viet Nam.

Some observers feel these could be the beginning steps in a program to turn the tables agianst the Communists who for almost seven years have sent a steady flow of guns and men to feed civil war in South Viet Nam.

Government officials here smile and then deny that any South Vietnamese troops operate outside the nation's borders. U.S. officials also have denials or no comment.

But highly reliable sources report that special troops have taken up strategic positions along the routes the Reds use through southwest Laos—known in Saigon as the Ho Chi Minh trail.

This pathway of subversion is named for North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh. It begins far to the north and moves down through the unguarded mountains of Laos, skirting the well-patrolled 17th parallel border that separates the Communist North from pro-Western South Viet Nam.

Along this route, the Reds have been able to move men and guns in relative safety right into central South Viet Nam. High South Vietnamese officials say there has been a sharp upswing of Communist activity recently in that thinly populated region.

Intelligence reports show that during the month of July alone the Viet Cong rebels infiltrated 528 agents across the region, one source said. New government reports say that in Pleiku province during an 11-day period in late July government forces killed 297 Viet Cong, captured 82 others and destroyed a number of rebel supply dumps.

These figures indicate government success but also the measure of a growing problem.

So far, informed sources say, the numbers of South Vietnamese troops operating in Laos are small. "Dozens rather than hundreds," said one.

Presumably they are highly trained, mobile ranger units. More than 6,000 of these commando-type troops have been trained under U.S. guidance for thrusts at Viet Cong units around the country. They operate at company size level or smaller.

It would be assumed that any such operation in Laos would have the consent of the government of Prince Boun Oum in Vientiane, which is fighting its own battles with Communist rebels.

Recently there have been indications that operations in North Viet Nam have taken on a character besides the normal intelligence-gathering activities that have been carried on for years. It would still be quite small, however.

OPPOSE CONSTRUCTION

Ten Begin Protest Vigil At Dam Site

KINZUA, Pa. (AP) — Ten persons began a vigil Saturday at the site of the Kinzua Dam in this western Pennsylvania village.

They are protesting construction of the multimillion-dollar flood control project on the Allegheny River.

The vigil, scheduled to last through Labor Day, is sponsored by a group known as the "Treaty of 1794 Committee." The committee is made up mostly of members of the Society of Friends. However, the committee was not formed by the Quakers.

"I am not a quaker myself but most everyone else on the committee is affiliated with the Society of Friends," said Don DeVault, coordinator of the committee.

DeVault, a Philadelphia electronics engineer and former chemist who said he was a conscientious objector, declared he organized the committee several months ago.

"I decided something should be done to help the Indians and to call attention to their plight as a result of construction of the dam," he said.

The government is taking over thousands of acres of land from the Seneca nation to build the dam. Known formally as the Allegheny River Reservoir and Dam the project is scheduled for completion in 1965.

The site is some 90 miles south of Buffalo and 10 miles north of Warren, Pa.

The actual dam will be in Pennsylvania but much of the land to be flooded is in New York State. Only Friday, President Kennedy, in a letter to Basil Williams, president of the Senecas, said construction of the dam cannot be stopped.

"I realize we have started late on our vigil," said DeVault. "But we can let the people know how we feel—that we are letting the Indians down and breaking the Treaty of 1794."

The treaty guaranteed the Senecas should have the land forever.

U.S. Revises Proposal On Segregation

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Justice Department Friday revised the proposed regulations it is asking the Interstate Commerce Commission to adopt to ban segregation in interstate bus transportation.

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy petitioned the ICC last May 29 to issue the regulations. Oral argument on the petition is to begin Aug. 15.

Major revisions were in the language of a sign it is proposed that interstate buses be required to display and in a proposed definition of terminal facilities.

Under the revision, the department suggested that the sign to be displayed on buses say that "seating aboard this vehicle is without regard to race, color, creed or national origin."

It had originally proposed that the sign declare that "all seats aboard this vehicle are by law available at all times to any passenger without regard to race, color, creed or national origin."

The department said the original language might mislead a passenger to believe that he has an absolute right to any seat at any time regardless of his personal compartment or the convenience of other passengers.

"This is not the purpose of the regulation," the department said. "Its purpose is merely to prevent racial considerations."

The department suggested a rewording of the definition of "terminal facilities" to make it apply to those "available to interstate passengers of motor carriers as a regular part of their transportation."

The original wording would have defined terminal facilities as those "which are used by or available to any part of the public in connection with the transportation furnished by an interstate motor carrier of passengers at any regular stop in its operations as such."

ASK RECALL OF ENVOY

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Government sources said Saturday Chile was asking Prime Minister Fidel Castro to withdraw Cuba's ambassador to Chile, Juan Jose Diaz de Real.

The conservative party and others have been pressing the government to declare Diaz unwelcome on the ground he aids the Communist party in this country.

Deputies Say Castro Plots Latin Coups

LIMA, Peru (AP)—Two Bolivian deputies were quoted Saturday as saying Bolivia is headquarters for a Castroite infiltration in Latin America financed by narcotics.

The newspaper La Prensa said the deputies charged the Bolivian city of Santa Cruz, near the Argentine border, "is now an enormous cocaine plant whose production is being used to finance both arms traffic and to organize Castroite coups in Bolivia, Chile, Peru and Argentina."

The two deputies were identified as Mario Gutierrez and Gonzalo Romero, both members of the opposition party in Bolivia's lower house. They made the statement on a visit to Lima, La Prensa said.

By the paper's account:

The deputies said a so-called pirate plane downed recently by the Bolivian air force near Santa Cruz had made 15 flights from Havana, bringing in 10 tons of automatic arms and ammunition from Cuba on each flight.

They said the arms were unloaded near Santa Cruz and were smuggled into Peru, Chile and Argentina by revolutionary agents. They reported the planes on outgoing flights carried cocaine produced in Santa Cruz to be sold abroad to finance the arms traffic.

They claimed the Bolivian government knew about this traffic and acted only because U. S. government agents arrived in La Paz to make inquiries into the mysterious plane flights.

By calling the downed plane a pirate, the deputies added, the Bolivian government tried to cover up the vast revolutionary plan in Latin America.

Why the government of President Victor Paz Estenssoro would try to cover up such activity, the newspaper never tried to explain in its account.

Paz Estenssoro has been wraring on Communists and Castroites. He announced last June he had crushed a Communist-Castroite plot to stage a revolution. Bolivia ousted Cuba's charge d'affaires in La Paz, Mauro Garcia, and charged the plot was designed to help torpedo President Kennedy's Alliance for Progress program in Latin America.

Dr. Stopford Elected New Anglican Bishop

LONDON (AP) — Dr. Robert Stopford was elected Anglican bishop of London Saturday at a ceremony in St. Paul's Cathedral at which clerical opposition raised its head politely.

It was all in the best of good form, but there were votes against Dr. Stopford, who is bishop of Peterborough. The decorous protest could lead to a change in the 14th-century law that lays down the rules for the election of bishops.

The chief protestor was Canon John Collins, distinguished clergyman who is precentor of St. Paul's. He said later he had voted against Dr. Stopford and if the ancient law were to be enforced to the letter Canon Collins now could be "deprived of his chattels and put into prison."

No one thought anything so drastic was going to happen, but the canon expressed hope the Church of England would be jolted into persuading Parliament to change the basic rules.

Canon Collins' objection to Dr. Stopford arose from divergent views on nuclear warfare. Dr. Stopford holds the most rigorous opposition to the spread of communism by any means available while Canon Collins is associated with campaigns for nuclear disarmament.

Dr. Stopford succeeds The Right Rev. Henry Colville Montgomery-Campbell, who resigned as bishop of London July 31.

OPPOSE CONSTRUCTION

Ten Begin Protest Vigil At Dam Site

KINZUA, Pa. (AP) — Ten persons began a vigil Saturday at the site of the Kinzua Dam in this western Pennsylvania village.

They are protesting construction of the multimillion-dollar flood control project on the Allegheny River.

The vigil, scheduled to last through Labor Day, is sponsored by a group known as the "Treaty of 1794 Committee." The committee is made up mostly of members of the Society of Friends. However, the committee was not formed by the Quakers.

"I am not a quaker myself but most everyone else on the committee is affiliated with the Society of Friends," said Don DeVault, coordinator of the committee.

DeVault, a Philadelphia electronics engineer and former chemist who said he was a conscientious objector, declared he organized the committee several months ago.

"I decided something should be done to help the Indians and to call attention to their plight as a result of construction of the dam," he said.

The government is taking over thousands of acres of land from the Seneca nation to build the dam. Known formally as the Allegheny River Reservoir and Dam the project is scheduled for completion in 1965.

The site is some 90 miles south of Buffalo and 10 miles north of Warren, Pa.

The actual dam will be in Pennsylvania but much of the land to be flooded is in New York State. Only Friday, President Kennedy, in a letter to Basil Williams, president of the Senecas, said construction of the dam cannot be stopped.

"I realize we have started late on our vigil," said DeVault. "But we can let the people know how we feel—that we are letting the Indians down and breaking the Treaty of 1794."

The treaty guaranteed the Senecas should have the land forever.

IN SOUTHERN LAOS

Viet Nam Forces Harrassing Reds

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) —Crack South Vietnamese troops are operating in southern Laos to cut the flow of Communist supplies and guerrilla reinforcements moving down from Red North Viet Nam, highly informed sources here say.

There are also strong indications that even U.S.-trained units are working in Commnuist North Viet Nam.

Some observers feel these could be the beginning steps in a program to turn the tables agianst the Communists who for almost seven years have sent a steady flow of guns and men to feed civil war in South Viet Nam.

Government officials here smile and then deny that any South Vietnamese troops operate outside the nation's borders. U.S. officials also have denials or no comment.

But highly reliable sources report that special troops have taken up strategic positions along the routes the Reds use through southwest Laos—known in Saigon as the Ho Chi Minh trail.

This pathway of subversion is named for North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh. It begins far to the north and moves down through the unguarded mountains of Laos, skirting the well-patrolled 17th parallel border that separates the Communist North from pro-Western South Viet Nam.

Along this route, the Reds have been able to move men and guns in relative safety right into central South Viet Nam. High South Vietnamese officials say there has been a sharp upswing of Communist activity recently in that thinly populated region.

Intelligence reports show that during the month of July alone the Viet Cong rebels infiltrated 528 agents across the region, one source said. New government reports say that in Pleiku province during an 11-day period in late July government forces killed 297 Viet Cong, captured 82 others and destroyed a number of rebel supply dumps.

These figures indicate government success but also the measure of a growing problem.

So far, informed sources say, the numbers of South Vietnamese troops operating in Laos are small. "Dozens rather than hundreds," said one.

Presumably they are highly trained, mobile ranger units. More than 6,000 of these commando-type troops have been trained under U.S. guidance for thrusts at Viet Cong units around the country. They operate at company size level or smaller.

It would be assumed that any such operation in Laos would have the consent of the government of Prince Boun Oum in Vientiane, which is fighting its own battles with Communist rebels.

Recently there have been indications that operations in North Viet Nam have taken on a character besides the normal intelligence-gathering activities that have been carried on for years. It would still be quite small, however.

Many From Church Go To Sessions

Youth of McGuire Methodist Church in West Monroe will be on the go during this month as they take to the highways, airways and hiking trails in quest of leadership training, Christian fellowship and study.

Two members of the Senior MYF of McGuire, Steve Gilbert and Phillip Smith went to the Y Conference at Blue Ridge, North Carolina. Counselors going with the group were Mr. and Mrs. Don Elliott of West Monroe, accompanied by their son, Donad.

Pat Van Zile and Jeanne Wineinger were among a group of 16 youth and four adults who left last week on an MYF Travel Camp, destination, Buffalo River State Park in Arkansas. The group will spend a week in outdoor camping. Rev. Don Wineinger was one of the adults accompanying the group.

U.S. Revises Proposal On Segregation

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Justice Department Friday revised the proposed regulations it is asking the Interstate Commerce Commission to adopt to ban segregation in interstate bus transportation.

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy petitioned the ICC last May 29 to issue the regulations. Oral argument on the petition is to begin Aug. 15.

Major revisions were in the language of a sign it is proposed that interstate buses be required to display and in a proposed definition of terminal facilities.

Under the revision, the department suggested that the sign to be displayed on buses say that "seating aboard this vehicle is without regard to race, color, creed or national origin."

It had originally proposed that the sign declare that "all seats aboard this vehicle are by law available at all times to any passenger without regard to race, color, creed or national origin."

The department said the original language might mislead a passenger to believe that he has an absolute right to any seat at any time regardless of his personal comportment or the convenience of other passengers.

"This is not the purpose of the regulation," the department said. "Its purpose is merely to prevent racial considerations."

The department suggested a rewording of the definition of "terminal facilities" to make it apply to those "available to interstate passengers of motor carriers as a regular part of their transportation."

The original wording would have defined terminal facilities as those "which are used by or available to any part of the public in connection with the transportation furnished by an interstate motor carrier of passengers at any regular stop in its operations as such."

ASK RECALL OF envoy

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Government sources said Saturday Chile was asking Prime Minister Fidel Castro to withdraw Cuba's ambassador to Chile, Juan Jose Diaz de Real.

The conservative party and others have been pressing the government to declare Diaz unwelcome on the ground he aids the Communist party in this country.

U.S. Troops Stage Mock War Battle

FT. BRAGG, N. C. (AP)—Simulated nuclear weapons were brought into play for the first time in Exercise Swift Strike Saturday, as elements of the 82nd and 101st Airborne divisions locked in mock battle.

The mock nuclear device was dropped in the area of Cheraw, S. C., shortly after the 501st Airborne Infantry jumped from troop carrier planes in support of the famed 82nd, which is playing the role of friendly forces in the joint Army-Air Force maneuvers.

The device landed in the 501st assembly area, seven miles southwest of Cheraw. Umpires who are refereeing the exercises and who tabulate the theoretical casualties will report later.

The 1,987 troopers of the 501st hit the silk over the area shortly before noon. They landed on sandy ground but field hospitals reported 11 casualties, four requiring hospitalization at Womack General Hospital here. Seven others were treated at the 2nd Army's field hospital. None were thought to be in critical condition.

The simulated nuclear device was dropped by an aggressor fighter - bomber which broke through friendly fighters covering the 501st drop.

Davis' White House Talks Have Impact

the President means business in his defense program and Louisiana will get more than its share of defense projects.

Some facts support this idea. Gov. Davis, in a letter to the interior secretary, advised that the long - sought Tidelands settlement would, in the final stages, have to be handled by the governor and the legislature.

Gov. Davis messaged Kennedy after the President's Berlin policy was announced that Louisiana stood ready to cooperate. And, Louisiana has a long tradition as a military training area.

Adj. Gen. Raymond Flemming went to Washington with Davis, but that may have been nothing more than protocol.

Basic relationships long have been established. The legal fight is believed over except for federal - state agreement on a coastline for Louisiana.

The coastline may be drawn within weeks and offered to the U.S. Supreme Court for final acceptance. The court the can rule Louisiana is entitled to the three mile limit. Louisiana's money could possibly come in within a few months, assuming the auditors cooperate.

Spearheading this move for the state are Atty. Gen. Jack Gremillion and Mineral Board Chairman William Helis Jr.

But when their job is done, that's just another starting point.

The congressional delegation then will have ammunition to take into congressional hearings and fight for the other 7½ miles of mineral-rich submerged lands.

U.S. Rep. Edwin Willis, D-La., heads a subcommittee which will hear proposals to give Louisiana 10½ miles of the tidelands, measuring from the base line to be set, the same as Florida and Texas.

In effect, the President may have adopted this attitude:

"We are all in this crisis together. Let's work together."

In a dispatch from Buenos Aires, Prensa Latina named the officer as T. G. White Jr. Prensa Latina said Argentine Air Secretary Brig. Ramon Amado Abrahim asked Frondizi in a memorandum to declare White persona non grata (unwelcome in Argentina.)

AIR TRAVEL POLICIES

Hijackings Pose Insurance Enigma

By BRUCE AGNEW

NEW YORK (UPI) — Those coin machine air insurance policies you can buy at airports will cover you against hijackings as well as other accidents—probably.

A survey of the biggest companies handling mass production air insurance indicated that in the last two airliner hijackings, if a passenger who had bought a 50-cent policy had been injured, he could have collected.

An official of one company said the policies generally promise to pay on any accident that occurs while boarding, riding in, or getting out of a commercial scheduled airliner. From an insurance point of view, a hijacking crash or even a stray bullet from a hijacker's gun could be considered an accident.

There is one exception, however, and it is not a clear one.

All the policies include what is known as a "war risk exclusion clause," which states that the companies do not have to pay if the accident is the result of an act of war. If a plane were hijacked by an agent of a foreign government, this clause might come into effect.

This brings up the obvious question—what about the Eastern Air Lines Electra hijacked by an armed Cuban July 24, and still being held in Cuba? Would the "war risk" clause have canceled insurance for its passengers?

The question has not been answered. And it is complicated by uncertainty over whether the hijacker actually was a Castro agent.

Eastern Air Lines had theft insurance on the $3.5 million plane, and filed a claim. The insurance company, Associated Aviation Underwriters, might not have to pay under the "war risk" clause if the hijacker was a Cuban agent. Associated would not comment on a report it had not yet decided how to treat the case.

If a passenger who had bought 50 cents worth of insurance at the airport had been injured in the July 24 hijacking, the same question might arise.

None of the three major companies which write such insurance would speculate on what they agree that if a hijacker was acting on his own, as was the case in the Aug. 3 and Aug. 9 hijackings, any harm he caused would be treated like an ordinary accident.

The companies are: Continental Casualty Co. of Chicago, which handles air trip insurance through its subsidiary Airport Sales Corp.; Mutual of Omaha, and Fidelity and Casualty Co. of New York.

SOLD AT COIN MACHINES

Their policies, sold at coin machines and booths in airport terminals, Generally offer $15,000 of insurance for 50 cents—with a $75,000 per passenger limit. The insurance is good for one trip, or sometimes round trips, and continental casualty also offers to cover side trips, such as short flights that might be taken during an air travel vacation in Europe.

None of them apparently offers to insure passengers against the inconvenience of starting out for one city and being hijacked to a city hundreds of miles away, but if anyone was interested, Lloyds of London would probably take him up on it.

A spokesman said Lloyd also would insure against airline hijacking even if political motives were involved, but premiums are confidential and would vary from case to case.

FISHING CONTEST

Big Gar Rodeo Slated Monday

JONESVILLE (Special) — The biggest gar rodeo and fishing contest ever to be staged in this area will get underway on Monday according to Sonny Champlin, chairman of the event, which is being held in connection with the annual Louisiana Soybean Festival on Aug. 17-19.

The gar rodeo and fishing contest will begin officially at 6 a.m. Monday and continue until 4 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 19, the last day of the festival.

Official weighing station will be at Champlin Net. Co. on Front Street in Jonesville. Bobby Neal will be the official weigher. Fish must be weighed on the day caught.

Contestants must use only hooks and line, poles, rod and reel, and other fishing tackle. No seines or nets will qualify. The only qualification for a net is in the gar division. Champlin Net Co. is offering a $25 merchandise certificate for the biggest gar caught in a net.

In the sport fishing and gar rodeo contest a prize of $25 will be given to each who have the biggest gar, bass, bream or white perch. Winners will be announced at the beauty pageant which will begin at 8 p.m. Saturday.

"Anybody and everybody is eligible to take part, and you have a whole week to get into the fun and perhaps get a prize besides," Champlin said in making the announcement.

This fishing contest and gar rodeo is not restricted to Louisiana residents, but the fish must be caught in Louisiana and weighed the same day, Champlin stated.

Fast Protest Over Border Closing Due

WASHINGTON (AP) — Diplomats predicted Saturday night the United States, Britain and France would make a fast, indignant protest to the Soviet Union against the closing of the border between East and West Berlin.

The State Department withheld comment on the action by East German Communist authorities. Officials said they had received no official word on the sudden development up to a late hour Saturday night.

It was pointed out, however, that the Western powers have insisted for years that under agreements made among the victorious allies at the end of World War II the city of Berlin was to be treated as a unit. From the Western point of view therefore, the border closing is an illegal act on the Communist side and the West undoubtedly will demand that the order be revoked.

The Western powers always have held the Soviet Union responsible for all the Communist actions in Berlin on the ground the World War II agreements are still in force and are binding on the Soviet Union. But in this case Soviet responsibility for the action was regarded as obvious since the Soviet Union was behind the Warsaw Pact directive to East Germany to halt the massive flow of refugees into West Berlin.

Passenger Plane Almost Hits Elk

STOCKHOLM (AP)—A Swedish passenger plane Friday night barely escaped collision with an elk when touching down at Midlanda Airort near Sundsvall.

The pilot managed to brake his ship little more than a yard from the elk, wandering across the runway. All 34 assengers had seat belts fastened and none was hurt. The elk paid no attention, just proceeded majestically across the concrete and into the woods.

U.S. Troops Stage Mock War Battle

FT. BRAGG, N. C. (AP)—Simulated nuclear weapons were brought into play for the first time in Exercise Swift Strike Saturday, as elements of the 82nd and 101st Airborne divisions locked in mock battle.

The mock nuclear device was dropped in the area of Cheraw, S. C., shortly after the 501st Airborne Infantry jumped from troop carrier planes in support of the famed 82nd, which is playing the role of friendly forces in the joint Army-Air Force maneuvers.

The device landed in the 501st assembly area, seven miles southwest of Cheraw. Umpires who are refereeing the exercises and who tabulate the theoretical casualties will report later.

The 1,987 troopers of the 501st hit the silk over the area shortly before noon. They landed on sandy ground but field hospitals reported 11 casualties, four requiring hospitalization at Womack General Hospital here. Seven others were treated at the 2nd Army's field hospital. None were thought to be in critical condition.

The simulated nuclear device was dropped by an aggressor fighter - bomber which broke through friendly fighters covering the 501st drop.

Davis' White House Talks Have Impact

the President means business in his defense program and Louisiana will get more than its share of defense projects.

Some facts support this idea. Gov. Davis, in a letter to the interior secretary, advised that the long - sought Tidelands settlement would, in the final stages, have to be handled by the governor and the legislature.

Gov. Davis messaged Kennedy after the President's Berlin policy was announced that Louisiana stood ready to cooperate. And, Louisiana has a long tradition as a military training area.

Adj. Gen. Raymond Flemming went to Washington with Davis, but that may have been nothing more than protocol.

Basic relationships long have been established. The legal fight is believed over except for federal - state agreement on a coastline for Louisiana.

The coastline may be drawn within weeks and offered to the U.S. Supreme Court for final acceptance. The court the can rule Louisiana is entitled to the three mile limit. Louisiana's money could possibly come in within a few months, assuming the auditors cooperate.

Spearheading this move for the state are Atty. Gen. Jack Gremillion and Mineral Board Chairman William Helis Jr.

But when their job is done, that's just another starting point.

The congressional delegation then will have ammunition to take into congressional hearings and fight for the other 7½ miles of mineral-rich submerged lands.

U.S. Rep. Edwin Willis, D-La., heads a subcommittee which will hear proposals to give Louisiana 10½ miles of the tidelands, measuring from the base line to be set, the same as Florida and Texas.

In effect, the President may have adopted this attitude:

"We are all in this crisis together. Let's work together."

AIR TRAVEL POLICIES

Hijackings Pose Insurance Enigma

By BRUCE AGNEW

NEW YORK (UPI) — Those coin machine air insurance policies you can buy at airports will cover you against hijackings as well as other accidents—probably.

A survey of the biggest companies handling mass production air insurance indicated that in the last two airliner hijackings, if a passenger who had bought a 50-cent policy had been injured, he could have collected.

An official of one company said the policies generally promise to pay on any accident that occurs while boarding, riding in, or getting out of a commercial scheduled airliner. From an insurance point of view, a hijacking crash or even a stray bullet from a hijacker's gun could be considered an accident.

There is one exception, however, and it is not a clear one.

All the policies include what is known as a "war risk exclusion clause," which states that the companies do not have to pay if the accident is the result of an act of war. If a plane were hijacked by an agent of a foreign government, this clause might come into effect.

This brings up the obvious question—what about the Eastern Air Lines Electra hijacked by an armed Cuban July 24, and still being held in Cuba? Would the "war risk" clause have canceled insurance for its passengers?

The question has not been answered. And it is complicated by uncertainty over whether the hijacker actually was a Castro agent.

Eastern Air Lines had theft insurance on the $3.5 million plane, and filed a claim. The insurance company, Associated Aviation Underwriters, might not have to pay under the "war risk" clause if the hijacker was a Cuban agent. Associated would not comment on a report it had not yet decided how to treat the case.

If a passenger who had bought 50 cents worth of insurance at the airport had been injured in the July 24 hijacking, the same question might arise.

None of the three major companies which write such insurance would speculate on what they agree that if a hijacker was acting on his own, as was the case in the Aug. 3 and Aug. 9 hijackings, any harm he caused would be treated like an ordinary accident.

The companies are: Continental Casualty Co. of Chicago, which handles air trip insurance through its subsidiary Airport Sales Corp.; Mutual of Omaha, and Fidelity and Casualty Co. of New York.

SOLD AT COIN MACHINES

Their policies, sold at coin machines and booths in airport terminals, Generally offer $15,000 of insurance for 50 cents—with a $75,000 per passenger limit. The insurance is good for one trip, or sometimes round trips, and continental casualty also offers to cover side trips, such as short flights that might be taken during an air travel vacation in Europe.

None of them apparently offers to insure passengers against the inconvenience of starting out for one city and being hijacked to a city hundreds of miles away, but if anyone was interested, Lloyds of London would probably take him up on it.

A spokesman said Lloyd also would insure against airline hijacking even if political motives were involved, but premiums are confidential and would vary from case to case.

FISHING CONTEST

Big Gar Rodeo Slated Monday

JONESVILLE (Special) — The biggest gar rodeo and fishing contest ever to be staged in this area will get underway on Monday according to Sonny Champlin, chairman of the event, which is being held in connection with the annual Louisiana Soybean Festival on Aug. 17-19.

The gar rodeo and fishing contest will begin officially at 6 a.m. Monday and continue until 4 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 19, the last day of the festival.

Official weighing station will be at Champlin Net. Co. on Front Street in Jonesville. Bobby Neal will be the official weigher. Fish must be weighed on the day caught.

Contestants must use only hooks and line, poles, rod and reel, and other fishing tackle. No seines or nets will qualify. The only qualification for a net is in the gar division. Champlin Net Co. is offering a $25 merchandise certificate for the biggest gar caught in a net.

In the sport fishing and gar rodeo contest a prize of $25 will be given to each who have the biggest gar, bass, bream or white perch. Winners will be announced at the beauty pageant which will begin at 8 p.m. Saturday.

"Anybody and everybody is eligible to take part, and you have a whole week to get into the fun and perhaps get a prize besides," Champlin said in making the announcement.

This fishing contest and gar rodeo is not restricted to Louisiana residents, but the fish must be caught in Louisiana and weighed the same day, Champlin stated.

Fast Protest Over Border Closing Due

WASHINGTON (AP) — Diplomats predicted Saturday night the United States, Britain and France would make a fast, indignant protest to the Soviet Union against the closing of the border between East and West Berlin.

The State Department withheld comment on the action by East German Communist authorities. Officials said they had received no official word on the sudden development up to a late hour Saturday night.

It was pointed out, however, that the Western powers have insisted for years that under agreements made among the victorious allies at the end of World War II the city of Berlin was to be treated as a unit. From the Western point of view therefore, the border closing is an illegal act on the Communist side and the West undoubtedly will demand that the order be revoked.

The Western powers always have held the Soviet Union responsible for all the Communist actions in Berlin on the ground the World War II agreements are still in force and are binding on the Soviet Union. But in this case Soviet responsibility for the action was regarded as obvious since the Soviet Union was behind the Warsaw Pact directive to East Germany to halt the massive flow of refugees into West Berlin.

Passenger Plane Almost Hits Elk

STOCKHOLM (AP)—A Swedish passenger plane Friday night barely escaped collision with an elk when touching down at Midlanda Airort near Sundsvall.

The pilot managed to brake his ship little more than a yard from the elk, wandering across the runway. All 34 assengers had seat belts fastened and none was hurt. The elk paid no attention, just proceeded majestically across the concrete and into the woods.

Senator Morse Proposes U.N. Berlin Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., proposed Saturday that the status of Berlin be submitted to the United Nations for a decision on Allied and Soviet treaty rights.

Morse, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said the West must keep militarily strong but "should demonstrate to the world that we are perfectly willing to negotiate an honorable settlement of the Berlin issue."

"What most people do not seem to realize is that the so-called original treaty over Berlin was a very temporary understanding," Morse said in a radio broadcast taped for Oregon stations.

"It was never contemplated when the Berlin treaty was negotiated that it was to be a permanent treaty. It was one of the stop gap affairs that was to apply after World War II until such time as a negotiated settlement of the Berlin problem could be reached by the victors in the war," he said.

"We ought to be perfectly willing to have the United Nations determine what our treaty rights are in Berlin, what Russia's treaty rights are, and what the rights of the other parties are," he said.

"I do not think that we ought to take the course of action, or issue the threat, that we are going to start a nuclear war over Berlin. I don't think that can be justified on moral grounds any more than I think Khrushchev can justify a nuclear war over Berlin."

Florida City Seeks To Bar Beach Riots

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—The city of Fort Lauderdale Saturday filed suit to prevent the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and State's Righters from organizing beach demonstrations.

William Kelley, special attorney for the city, said the suit was the first filed against the NAACP to stop organized desegregation activities.

He said it also was the first suit to name both Negroes and white persons as organizers of racial demonstrations.

The complaint charged that the organizations "have instigated and conducted a program rapidly approaching mass hysteria which has resulted and will result in precipitating incidents dangerous to the peace of the city unless they are restrained."

NAACP officials named defendants were Eulah Johnson, president of the Fort Lauderdale branch; Dr. Von D. Mizell, a Fort Lauderdale Negro physician active in NAACP affairs; Callas Brown, a field representative from New York, and Robert Saunders of Tampa, regional representative.

Named defendants as representatives of the State's Righters, an unincorporated and unregistered association, were Roger F. Wolf of Fort Lauderdale and J. H. Keaphley Jr. of Miami.

City commissioners authorized filing the suit after hearing results of an investigation by Police Chief J. Lester Holt into a series of "wade-ins" started by Negroes at a beach here July 4.

Holt said police made no attempts to stop the wade-ins until rowdyism led to an "explosive situation."

LT. ALLAN JACKSON of Morrilton, Ark., is congratulated by Maj. Frederick Keifer, left, after the new officer was sworn into the Army as the two men floated to earth from a 4,000-foot parachute jump. Jackson got his commission at Arkansas Tech College, where Keifer is an ROTC professor and adviser to the school's Parachute Club. It was Jackson's 38th jump. And naturally he's slated for Army paratroop duty, with the 101st Airborne Division. (AP Wirephoto)

CLAIM U.S. PLOT

Castro's Regime Renews Charges

HAVANA (AP) — Prime Minister Fidel Castro's regime charged again Saturday that U. S. officials had planned to simulate an attack on the U. S. naval base at Guantanamo Bay last month to provide an excuse for armed aggression against Cuba.

The government also charged U. S. officials at the base armed men with a .30-caliber machine gun for an attempt to assassinate Castro's brother, Raul, Cuba's armed forces chief.

A government report said the U. S. Central Intelligence Agency masterminded the plot in which the gunmen were to fire on Raul from a house adjoining a stand in Santiago where he spoke July 26.

In Washington, the Pentagon declined comment5on the latest charges.

(The charges originally were aired earlier last week by Cuba's economic boss, Ernesto Guevara, in a speech at the inter-American economic and social conference at Punta del Este, Uruguay. U. S. chief delegate Douglas Dillon, Treasury secretary, shook his head in vigorous denial during Guevara's speech. Robert Woodward, U. S. undersecretary of state for Latin-American affairs, said the speech "was just a jack of lies."

Havana radio sadi 159 persons were arrested in the investigation following the plots, which the government claimed were foiled by Cuban militiamen.

The government report told this story: Six men were to have been in the Santiago house when Castro spoke—two to handle the machine gun and the other four to hurl grenades to cover their withdrawal.

Six more armed with mortars were to be stationed on a road leading to the airport and to fire on Castro if he attempted to get to an airplane.

The simulated attack on Guantanamo Bay called for at least four mortars to fire six rounds at the base from El Cuero ranch. Anti-Castro forces were to attempt to induce Cuban government artillery near the base to open fire.

This, the government said, would have supported U. S. claims that the base had been attacked.

Cuban militiamen broke up the plot, the government said, when they discovered a jeep loaded with arms and ammunition on La Perla ranch. Jose Amparado Rosabal, described as a friend of former President Carlos Prio Socarras, was arrested at the ranch, the government said.

Other plotters were identified as Antonio Marra Acosta, Lazaro Ponce, and Emilio Quintana Gonzales. They were said to have escaped capture. Ponce was termed the leader of the anti-Castro "Freedom Torch Movement."

Castro's regime claimed Capt. C. E. Schoenweiss, former Guantanamo acting commander, was involved in the plot but apparently was relieved of his command due to disagreements with the CIA.

(Defense Department records in Washington show Schoenweiss served as commander of the base during a brief period between departure of one rear admiral and arrival of his successor.

The Guantanamo Bay base, which the United States holds under a treaty with Cuba, long has been a thorn in the side of the Castro regime. The prime minister in the past has promised the United States would be forced to leave, but in recent months has been relatively silent on the issue.

Dillon Will Confer With Betancourt

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (AP)—A U. S. delegation source disclosed Saturday that Treasury Secretary C. Douglas Dillon would confer with President Romulo Betancourt of Venezuela in Caracas next week.

Dillon will spend the night in Caracas on his way back to Washington after heading the U.S. delegation to the inter-American Economic and Social Conference here, the informant said.

Dillon and his party conferred with President Janio Quadros of Brazil on their flight to Punta del Este. Dillon went to Buenos Aires Thursday for talks with President Arturo Frondizi of Argentina.

Venezuela is considered one of the key areas of Kennedy's Alliance for Progress Program. Dillon's decision to stop off in Caracas en route home underscores Washington's desire for close relations.

Delegation sources did not mention the matter, but another reason for Dillon's decision to talk with Betancourt may have arisen from the flap that erupted when Cuba's Ernesto Guevara told the conference that secret U. S. Embassy documents reared in Caracas showed the Betancourt government had been "domesticated" by "Yankee imperialists."

Sheriff Takes Precautions For Riders' Arrival

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Sheriff J. R. Gilfoy said Saturday no loitering or congregating will be allowed around the courthouse Monday when about 187 "Freedom Riders" arrive to appeal their convictions.

Gilfoy said no one would be allowed inside the courtroom except the defendants, their counsel, the prosecutors, the judge and the press.

He said the citizens of Hinds County "have doone a great job so far in lettnig the law take its course. I will be grateful if you will stay away.

"Due to the large number of persons in this case," he said, "we are taking extra precaution to see that proceedings are completed in an orderly manner."

The sheriff said the street on the north side of the courthouse will be blocked off to allow buses and cars bringing defendants to park.

Two Sought For Murder Of Widow

BALTIMORE (AP)—Police issued an alert to pick up two youths they charged Saturday with the murder of a widow found beaten in her burning apartment.

Named in warrants for fatally beating the widow, Ida Helen Baker, 64, were Ronald Giles, 19, and Ray Cantley, 20. The police had custody of two men and another youth suspected of being connected with the crime.

The police expressed the belief that the five originally plotted to rob Mrs. Baker, whose ransacked apartment showed signs of affluence. Mrs. Baker was raped and beaten into a semiconscious condition Friday morning. A bed was left on fire in the five-room apartment.

The police think the intruders took only $5. They overlooked $341 in cash, jewelry, stocks and bonds. A small safe also was untouched.

Three bank books showing deposits of $30,000 and government bonds worth $14,000 were found by the police.

The trio booked for questioning are Harvey Damron, 37; Thomas G. Whittaker, 22; and Robert L. Stevens, Jr. Stevens and Whittaker live only a block from Mrs. Baker's apartment in northwest Baltimore.

The trio booked for questioning are Harvey Damron, 37; Thomas G. Whittaker, 22; and Robert L. Stevens, Jr. Stevens and Whittaker live only a block from Mrs. Baker's apartment in northwest Baltimore.

Other occupants told the police they had seen four males enter Mrs. Baker's apartment late Thursday night. Two of them subsequently left. The neighbors called firemen early Friday morning after seeing smoke coming from her apartemnt.

Mrs. Baker told police on the way to a hosital where she died three hours later that she had encountered two boys in one of her two bedrooms. She said they had demanded money, raped her, beat her on the head and bound her.

Delay Is Asked On Recognizing Congo Premier

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Some African and Asian countries have asked U.N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold to delay recognizing Cyrille Adoula as the Congo's premier until they can learn the views of Antoine Gizenga, who long claimed the post himsef.

A private meeting was held Friday by Hammarskjold's Advisory Committee on the Congo—the first since the Congolese Parliament on Aug. 2 approved a coalition government headed by Adoula and included Gizenga as a deputy premier.

Diplomats said that at the meeting Hammarskjold asked how he should deal with a letter from Adoula requesting that he consider Adoula's Cabinet as the only central government of the Congo. The committee spent 2½ hours arguing whether Hammarskjold should grant recognition right away or delay action.

The diplomats reported that Hammarskjold said he would think things over and decide for himself. Some said he spoke as if he intended to send a favorable reply immediately.

Ghana, Ethiopia, India, Indonesia and the United Arab Republic strongly urged him to hold up his reply.

Bowles Returns From Tour Of Two Continents

WASHINGTON (AP) — Undersecretary of State Chester Bowles said Saturday Asian and African countries "realize fully that the issue in Berlin is not just a legal squabble—it is the issue of freedom itself."

Bowles, returning from conferences with U.S. officials on the two continents, told newsmen: "I think there is a growing awareness in Asia and Africa that the very principle of self-determination, so important in Berlin, is the same as that of the freedom and independence of the Asian and African nations," he added.

"If we in the United States should falter over the principle of self-determination in Berlin, no one will ever trust us again anywhere."

Bowles said he conferred with U. S. officials from 6 countries in meetings at Lagos, Nigeria; Nicosia, Cyprus, and New Delhi, India. He said he plans similar meetings in a few months in Latin America and the Far East.

Janet Leigh's Father Is Found Dead In Office

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)—Fred Morrison, 52, father of actress Janet Leigh, was found dead in his office by a business associate Saturday.

A bottle containing pills and a note were found near the body, police said. The contents of the note were kept secrt.

"It was directed to Morrison's wife, Helen," Police Chief Clinton H. Anderson said, "and from what we can make out there's been some domestic problem. It is not complimentary."

An autopsy was ordered.

The chief said Mrs. Morrison told him she last saw her husband who was an insurance broker, Friday night when he left their West Los Angeles home after a spat.

Senator Morse Proposes U.N. Berlin Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., proposed Saturday that the status of Berlin be submitted to the United Nations for a decision on Allied and Soviet treaty rights.

Morse, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said the West must keep militarily strong but "should demonstrate to the world that we are perfectly willing to negotiate an honorable settlement of the Berlin issue."

"What most people do not seem to realize is that the so-called original treaty over Berlin was a very temporary understanding," Morse said in a radio broadcast taped for Oregon stations.

"It was never contemplated when the Berlin treaty was negotiated that it was to be a permanent treaty. It was one of the stop gap affairs that was to apply after World War II until such time as a negotiated settlement of the Berlin problem could be reached by the victors in the war," he said.

"We ought to be perfectly willing to have the United Nations determine what our treaty rights are in Berlin, what Russia's treaty rights are, and what the rights of the other parties are," he said.

"I do not think that we ought to take the course of action, or issue the threat, that we are going to start a nuclear war over Berlin. I don't think that can be justified on moral grounds any more than I think Khrushchev can justify a nuclear war over Berlin."

Florida City Seeks To Bar Beach Riots

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—The city of Fort Lauderdale Saturday filed suit to prevent the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and State's Righters from organizing beach demonstrations.

William Kelley, special attorney for the city, said the suit was the first filed against the NAACP to stop organized desegregation activities.

He said it also was the first suit to name both Negroes and white persons as organizers of racial demonstrations.

The complaint charged that the organizations "have instigated and conducted a program rapidly approaching mass hysteria which has resulted and will result in precipitating incidents dangerous to the peace of the city unless they are restrained."

NAACP officials named defendants were Eulah Johnson, president of the Fort Lauderdale branch; Dr. Von D. Mizell, a Fort Lauderdale Negro physician active in NAACP affairs; Callas Brown, a field representative from New York, and Robert Saunders of Tampa, regional representative.

Named defendants as representatives of the State's Righters, an unincorporated and unregistered association, were Roger F. Wolf of Fort Lauderdale and J. H. Keaphley Jr. of Miami.

City commissioners authorized filing the suit after hearing results of an investigation by Police Chief J. Lester Holt into a series of "wade-ins" started by Negroes at a beach here July 4.

Holt said police made no attempts to stop the wade-ins until rowdyism led to an "explosive situation."

LT. ALLAN JACKSON of Morrilton, Ark., is congratulated by Maj. Frederick Keifer, left, after the new officer was sworn into the Army as the two men floated to earth from a 4,000-foot parachute jump. Jackson got his commission at Arkansas Tech College, where Keifer is an ROTC professor and adviser to the school's Parachute Club. It was Jackson's 38th jump. And naturally he's slated for Army paratroop duty, with the 101st Airborne Division. (AP Wirephoto)

CLAIM U.S. PLOT

Castro's Regime Renews Charges

HAVANA (AP) — Prime Minister Fidel Castro's regime charged again Saturday that U. S. officials had planned to simulate an attack on the U. S. naval base at Guantanamo Bay last month to provide an excuse for armed aggression against Cuba.

The government also charged U. S. officials at the base armed men with a .30-caliber machine gun for an attempt to assassinate Castro's brother, Raul, Cuba's armed forces chief.

A government report said the U. S. Central Intelligence Agency masterminded the plot in which the gunmen were to fire on Raul from a house adjoining a stand in Santiago where he spoke July 26.

In Washington, the Pentagon declined comment5on the latest charges.

(The charges originally were aired earlier last week by Cuba's economic boss, Ernesto Guevara, in a speech at the inter-American economic and social conference at Punta del Este, Uruguay. U. S. chief delegate Douglas Dillon, Treasury secretary, shook his head in vigorous denial during Guevara's speech. Robert Woodward, U. S. undersecretary of state for Latin-American affairs, said the speech "was just a jack of lies."

Havana radio sadi 159 persons were arrested in the investigation following the plots, which the government claimed were foiled by Cuban militiamen.

The government report told this story: Six men were to have been in the Santiago house when Castro spoke—two to handle the machine gun and the other four to hurl grenades to cover their withdrawal.

Six more armed with mortars were to be stationed on a road leading to the airport and to fire on Castro if he attempted to get to an airplane.

The simulated attack on Guantanamo Bay called for at least four mortars to fire six rounds at the base from El Cuero ranch. Anti-Castro forces were to attempt to induce Cuban government artillery near the base to open fire.

This, the government said, would have supported U. S. claims that the base had been attacked.

Cuban militiamen broke up the plot, the government said, when they discovered a jeep loaded with arms and ammunition on La Perla ranch. Jose Amparado Rosabal, described as a friend of former President Carlos Prio Socarras, was arrested at the ranch, the government said.

Other plotters were identified as Antonio Marra Acosta, Lazaro Ponce, and Emilio Quintana Gonzales. They were said to have escaped capture. Ponce was termed the leader of the anti-Castro "Freedom Torch Movement."

Castro's regime claimed Capt. C. E. Schoenweiss, former Guantanamo acting commander, was involved in the plot but apparently was relieved of his command due to disagreements with the CIA.

(Defense Department records in Washington show Schoenweiss served as commander of the base during a brief period between departure of one rear admiral and arrival of his successor.

The Guantanamo Bay base, which the United States holds under a treaty with Cuba, long has been a thorn in the side of the Castro regime. The prime minister in the past has promised the United States would be forced to leave, but in recent months has been relatively silent on the issue.

CATANIA, Sicily (AP) — The northeast crater of Mt. Etna belched cinders and burning articles skyward to 1,300 feet Saturday.

Dillon Will Confer With Betancourt

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (AP)—A U. S. delegation source disclosed Saturday that Treasury Secretary C. Douglas Dillon would confer with President Romulo Betancourt of Venezuela in Caracas next week.

Dillon will spend the night in Caracas on his way back to Washington after heading the U.S. delegation to the inter-American Economic and Social Conference here, the informant said.

Dillon and his party conferred with President Janio Quadros of Brazil on their flight to Punta del Este. Dillon went to Buenos Aires Thursday for talks with President Arturo Frondizi of Argentina.

Venezuela is considered one of the key areas of Kennedy's Alliance for Progress Program. Dillon's decision to stop off in Caracas en route home underscores Washington's desire for close relations.

Delegation sources did not mention the matter, but another reason for Dillon's decision to talk with Betancourt may have arisen from the flap that erupted when Cuba's Ernesto Guevara told the conference that secret U. S. Embassy documents reared in Caracas showed the Betancourt government had been "domesticated" by "Yankee imperialists."

Sheriff Takes Precautions For Riders' Arrival

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Sheriff J. R. Gilfoy said Saturday no loitering or congregating will be allowed around the courthouse Monday when about 187 "Freedom Riders" arrive to appeal their convictions.

Gilfoy said no one would be allowed inside the courtroom except the defendants, their counsel, the prosecutors, the judge and the press.

He said the citizens of Hinds County "have doone a great job so far in lettnig the law take its course. I will be grateful if you will stay away.

"Due to the large number of persons in this case," he said, "we are taking extra precaution to see that proceedings are completed in an orderly manner."

The sheriff said the street on the north side of the courthouse will be blocked off to allow buses and cars bringing defendants to park.

Delay Is Asked On Recognizing Congo Premier

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Some African and Asian countries have asked U.N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold to delay recognizing Cyrille Adoula as the Congo's premier until they can learn the views of Antoine Gizenga, who long claimed the post himself.

A private meeting was held Friday by Hammarskiold's Advisory Committee on the Congo—the first since the Congolese Parliament on Aug. 2 approved a coalition government headed by Adoula and included Gizenga as a deputy premier.

Diplomats said that at the meeting Hammarskiold asked how he should deal with a letter from Adoula requesting that he consider Adoula's Cabinet as the only central government of the Congo. The committee spent 2½ hours arguing whether Hammarskiold should grant recognition right away or delay action.

The diplomats reported that Hammarskiold said he would think things over and decide for himself. Some said he spoke as if he intended to send a favorable reply immediately.

Ghana, Ethiopia, India, Indonesia and the United Arab Republic strongly urged him to hold up his reply.

Bowles Returns From Tour Of Two Continents

WASHINGTON (AP) — Undersecretary of State Chester Bowles said Saturday Asian and African countries "realize fully that the issue in Berlin is not just a legal squabble—it is the issue of freedom itself."

Bowles, returning from conferences with U.S. officials on the two continents, told newsmen: "I think there is a growing awareness in Asia and Africa that the very principle of self-determination, so important in Berlin, is the same as that of the freedom and independence of the Asian and African nations," he added.

"If we in the United States should falter over the principle of self-determination in Berlin, no one will ever trust us again anywhere."

Bowles said he conferred with U. S. officials from 6 countries in meetings at Lagos, Nigeria; Nicosia, Cyprus, and New Delhi, India. He said he plans similar meetings in a few months in Latin America and the Far East.

Two Sought For Murder Of Widow

BALTIMORE (AP)—Police issued an alert to pick up two youths they charged Saturday with the murder of a widow found beaten in her burning apartment.

Named in warrants for fatally beating the widow, Ida Helen Baker, 64, were Ronald Giles, 19, and Ray Cantley, 20. The police had custody of two men and another youth suspected of being connected with the crime.

The police expressed the belief that the five originally plotted to rob Mrs. Baker, whose ransacked apartment showed signs of affluence. Mrs. Baker was raped and beaten into a semiconscious condition Friday morning. A bed was left on fire in the five-room apartment.

The police think the intruders took only $5. They overlooked $341 in cash, jewelry, stocks and bonds. A small safe also was untouched.

Three bank books showing deposits of $30,000 and government bonds worth $14,000 were found by the police.

The trio booked for questioning are Harvey Damron, 37; Thomas G. Whittaker, 22; and Robert L. Stevens, Jr. Stevens and Whittaker live only a block from Mrs. Baker's apartment in northwest Baltimore.

The trio booked for questioning are Harvey Damron, 37; Thomas G. Whittaker, 22; and Robert L. Stevens, Jr. Stevens and Whittaker live only a block from Mrs. Baker's apartment in northwest Baltimore.

Other occupants told the police they had seen four males enter Mrs. Baker's apartment late Thursday night. Two of them subsequently left. The neighbors called firemen early Friday morning after seeing smoke coming from her apartment.

Mrs. Baker told police on the way to a hosital where she died three hours later that she had encountered two boys in one of her two bedrooms. She said they had demanded money, raped her, beat her on the head and bound her.

Janet Leigh's Father Is Found Dead In Office

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)—Fred Morrison, 52, father of actress Janet Leigh, was found dead in his office by a business associate Saturday.

A bottle containing pills and a note were found near the body, police said. The contents of the note were kept secrt.

"It was directed to Morrison's wife, Helen," Police Chief Clinton H. Anderson said, "and from what we can make out there's been some domestic problem. It is not complimentary."

An autopsy was ordered.

The chief said Mrs. Morrison told him she last saw her husband who was an insurance broker, Friday night when he left their West Los Angeles home after a spat.

Collapse Of House

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—A two-story apartment house weakened by heavy rains collapsed before dawn Saturday killing at least three of its occupants and injuring 24.

Some of the survivors were reported in serious condition. One 31-year-old woman was critically injured by a stone that struck her in the back as she lay shielding her infant son from injury.

U.S. Troops Stage Mock War Battle

FT. BRAGG, N. C. (AP)—Simulated nuclear weapons were brought into play for the first time in Exercise Swift Strike Saturday, as elements of the 82nd and 101st Airborne divisions locked in mock battle.

The mock nuclear device was dropped in the area of Cheraw, S. C., shortly after the 501st Airborne Infantry jumped from troop carrier planes in support of the famed 82nd, which is playing the role of friendly forces in the joint Army-Air Force maneuvers.

The device landed in the 501st assembly area, seven miles southwest of Cheraw. Umpires who are refereeing the exercises and who tabulate the theoretical casualties will report later.

The 1,967 troopers of the 501st hit the silk over the area shortly before noon. They landed on sandy ground but field hospitals reported 11 casualties, four requiring hospitalization at Womack General Hospital here. Seven others were treated at the 2nd Army's field hospital. None were thought to be in critical condition.

The simulated nuclear device was dropped by an aggressor fighter - bomber which broke through friendly fighters covering the 501st drop.

Davis' White House Talks Have Impact

the President means business in his defense program and Louisiana will get more than its share of defense projects.

Some facts support this idea. Gov. Davis, in a letter to the interior secretary, advised that the long - sought Tidelands settlement would, in the final stages, have to be handled by the governor and the legislature.

Gov. Davis messaged Kennedy after the President's Berlin policy was announced that Louisiana stood ready to cooperate. And, Louisiana has a long tradition as a military training area.

Adj. Gen. Raymond Flemming went to Washington with Davis, but that may have been nothing more than protocol.

Basic relationships long have been established. The legal fight is believed over except for federal - state agreement on a coastline for Louisiana.

The coastline may be drawn within weeks and offered to the U.S. Supreme Court for final acceptance. The court the can rule Louisiana is entitled to the three mile limit. Louisiana's money could possibly come in within a few months, assuming the auditors cooperate.

Spearheading this move for the state are Atty. Gen. Jack Gremillion and Mineral Board Chairman William Helis Jr.

But when their job is done, that's just another starting point.

The congressional delegation then will have ammunition to take into congressional hearings and fight for the other 7½ miles of mineral-rich submerged lands.

U.S. Rep. Edwin Willis, D-La., heads a subcommittee which will hear proposals to give Louisiana 10½ miles of the tidelands, measuring from the base line to be set, the same as Florida and Texas.

In effect, the President may have adopted this attitude:

"We are all in this crisis together. Let's work together."

Naval Attache Said In Revolt

AIR TRAVEL POLICIES

Hijackings Pose Insurance Enigma

By BRUCE AGNEW

NEW YORK (UPI) — Those coin machine air insurance policies you can buy at airports will cover you against hijackings as well as other accidents—probably.

A survey of the biggest companies handling mass production air insurance indicated that in the last two airliner hijackings, if a passenger who had bought a 50-cent policy had been injured, he could have collected.

An official of one company said the policies generally promise to pay on any accident that occurs while boarding, riding in, or getting out of a commercial scheduled airliner. From an insurance point of view, a hijacking crash or even a stray bullet from a hijacker's gun could be considered an accident.

There is one exception, however, and it is not a clear one.

All the policies include what is known as a "war risk exclusion clause," which states that the companies do not have to pay if the accident is the result of an act of war. If a plane were hijacked by an agent of a foreign government, this clause might come into effect.

This brings up the obvious question—what about the Eastern Air Lines Electra hijacked by an armed Cuban July 24, and still being held in Cuba? Would the "war risk" clause have canceled insurance for its passengers?

The question has not been answered. And it is complicated by uncertainty over whether the hijacker actually was a Castro agent.

Eastern Air Lines had theft insurance on the $3.5 million plane, and filed a claim. The insurance company, Associated Aviation Underwriters, might not have to pay under the "war risk" clause if the hijacker was a Cuban agent. Associated would not comment on a report it had not yet decided how to treat the case.

If a passenger who had bought 50 cents worth of insurance at the airport had been injured in the July 24 hijacking, the same question might arise.

None of the three major companies which write such insurance would speculate on what they agree that if a hijacker was acting on his own, as was the case in the Aug. 3 and Aug. 9 hijackings, any harm he caused would be treated like an ordinary accident.

The companies are: Continental Casualty Co. of Chicago, which handles air trip insurance through its subsidiary Airport Sales Corp.; Mutual of Omaha, and Fidelity and Casualty Co. of New York.

SOLD AT COIN MACHINES

Their policies, sold at coin machines and booths in airport terminals, Generally offer $15,000 of insurance for 50 cents—with a $75,000 per passenger limit. The insurance is good for one trip, or sometimes round trips, and continental casualty also offers to cover side trips, such as short flights that might be taken during an air travel vacation in Europe.

None of them apparently offers to insure passengers against the inconvenience of starting out for one city and being hijacked to a city hundreds of miles away, but if anyone was interested, Lloyds of London would probably take him up on it.

A spokesman said Lloyd also would insure against airline hijacking even if political motives were involved, but premiums are confidential and would vary from case to case.

FISHING CONTEST

Big Gar Rodeo Slated Monday

JONESVILLE (Special) — The biggest gar rodeo and fishing contest ever to be staged in this area will get underway on Monday according to Sonny Champlin, chairman of the event, which is being held in connection with the annual Louisiana Soybean Festival on Aug. 17-19.

The gar rodeo and fishing contest will begin officially at 6 a.m. Monday and continue until 4 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 19, the last day of the festival.

Official weighing station will be at Champlin Net. Co. on Front Street in Jonesville. Bobby Neal will be the official weigher. Fish must be weighed on the day caught.

Contestants must use only hooks and line, poles, rod and reel, and other fishing tackle. No seines or nets will qualify. The only qualification for a net is in the gar division. Champlin Net Co. is offering a $25 merchandise certificate for the biggest gar caught in a net.

In the sport fishing and gar rodeo contest a prize of $25 will be given to each who have the biggest gar, bass, bream or white perch. Winners will be announced at the beauty pageant which will begin at 8 p.m. Saturday.

"Anybody and everybody is eligible to take part, and you have a whole week to get into the fun and perhaps get a prize besides," Champlin said in making the announcement.

This fishing contest and gar rodeo is not restricted to Louisiana residents, but the fish must be caught in Louisiana and weighed the same day, Champlin stated.

Fast Protest Over Border Closing Due

WASHINGTON (AP) — Diplomats predicted Saturday night the United States, Britain and France would make a fast, indignant protest to the Soviet Union against the closing of the border between East and West Berlin.

The State Department withheld comment on the action by East German Communist authorities. Officials said they had received no official word on the sudden development up to a late hour Saturday night.

It was pointed out, however, that the Western powers have insisted for years that under agreements made among the victorious allies at the end of World War II the city of Berlin was to be treated as a unit. From the Western point of view therefore, the border closing is an illegal act on the Communist side and the West undoubtedly will demand that the order be revoked.

The Western powers always have held the Soviet Union responsible for all the Communist actions in Berlin on the ground the World War II agreements are still in force and are binding on the Soviet Union. But in this case Soviet responsibility for the action was regarded as obvious since the Soviet Union was behind the Warsaw Pact directive to East Germany to halt the massive flow of refugees into West Berlin.

Passenger Plane Almost Hits Elk

STOCKHOLM (AP)—A Swedish passenger plane Friday night barely escaped collision with an elk when touching down at Midlanda Airort near Sundsvall.

The pilot managed to brake his ship little more than a yard from the elk, wandering across the runway. All 34 assengers had seat belts fastened and none was hurt. The elk paid no attention, just proceeded majestically across the concrete and into the woods.

U.S. Troops Stage Mock War Battle

FT. BRAGG, N. C. (AP)—Simulated nuclear weapons were brought into play for the first time in Exercise Swift Strike Saturday, as elements of the 82nd and 101st Airborne divisions locked in mock battle.

The mock nuclear device was dropped in the area of Cheraw, S. C., shortly after the 501st Airborne Infantry jumped from troop carrier planes in support of the famed 82nd, which is playing the role of friendly forces in the joint Army-Air Force maneuvers.

The device landed in the 501st assembly area, seven miles southwest of Cheraw. Umpires who are refereeing the exercises and who tabulate the theoretical casualties will report later.

The 1,987 troopers of the 501st hit the silk over the area shortly before noon. They landed on sandy ground but field hospitals reported 11 casualties, four requiring hospitalization at Womack General Hospital here. Seven others were treated at the 2nd Army's field hospital. None were thought to be in critical condition.

The simulated nuclear device was dropped by an aggressor fighter - bomber which broke through friendly fighters covering the 501st drop.

Davis' White House Talks Have Impact

the President means business in his defense program and Louisiana will get more than its share of defense projects.

Some facts support this idea. Gov. Davis, in a letter to the interior secretary, advised that the long - sought Tidelands settlement would, in the final stages, have to be handled by the governor and the legislature.

Gov. Davis messaged Kennedy after the President's Berlin policy was announced that Louisiana stood ready to cooperate. And, Louisiana has a long tradition as a military training area.

Adj. Gen. Raymond Flemming went to Washington with Davis, but that may have been nothing more than protocol.

Basic relationships long have been established. The legal fight is believed over except for federal - state agreement on a coastline for Louisiana.

The coastline may be drawn within weeks and offered to the U.S. Supreme Court for final acceptance. The court the can rule Louisiana is entitled to the three mile limit. Louisiana's money could possibly come in within a few months, assuming the auditors cooperate.

Spearheading this move for the state are Atty. Gen. Jack Gremillion and Mineral Board Chairman William Helis Jr.

But when their job is done, that's just another starting point.

The congressional delegation then will have ammunition to take into congressional hearings and fight for the other 7½ miles of mineral-rich submerged lands.

U.S. Rep. Edwin Willis, D-La., heads a subcommittee which will hear proposals to give Louisiana 10½ miles of the tidelands, measuring from the base line to be set, the same as Florida and Texas.

In effect, the President may have adopted this attitude:

"We are all in this crisis together. Let's work together."

AIR TRAVEL POLICIES

Hijackings Pose Insurance Enigma

By BRUCE AGNEW

NEW YORK (UPI) — Those coin machine air insurance policies you can buy at airports will cover you against hijackings as well as other accidents—probably.

A survey of the biggest companies handling mass production air insurance indicated that in the last two airliner hijackings, if a passenger who had bought a 50-cent policy had been injured, he could have collected.

An official of one company said the policies generally promise to pay on any accident that occurs while boarding, riding in, or getting out of a commercial scheduled airliner. From an insurance point of view, a hijacking crash or even a stray bullet from a hijacker's gun could be considered an accident.

There is one exception, however, and it is not a clear one.

All the policies include what is known as a "war risk exclusion clause," which states that the companies do not have to pay if the accident is the result of an act of war. If a plane were hijacked by an agent of a foreign government, this clause might come into effect.

This brings up the obvious question—what about the Eastern Air Lines Electra hijacked by an armed Cuban July 24, and still being held in Cuba? Would the "war risk" clause have canceled insurance for its passengers?

The question has not been answered. And it is complicated by uncertainty over whether the hijacker actually was a Castro agent.

Eastern Air Lines had theft insurance on the $3.5 million plane, and filed a claim. The insurance company, Associated Aviation Underwriters, might not have to pay under the "war risk" clause if the hijacker was a Cuban agent. Associated would not comment on a report it had not yet decided how to treat the case.

If a passenger who had bought 50 cents worth of insurance at the airport had been injured in the July 24 hijacking, the same question might arise.

None of the three major companies which write such insurance would speculate on what they agree that if a hijacker was acting on his own, as was the case in the Aug. 3 and Aug. 9 hijackings, any harm he caused would be treated like an ordinary accident.

The companies are: Continental Casualty Co. of Chicago, which handles air trip insurance through its subsidiary Airport Sales Corp.; Mutual of Omaha, and Fidelity and Casualty Co. of New York.

SOLD AT COIN MACHINES

Their policies, sold at coin machines and booths in airport terminals, Generally offer $15,000 of insurance for 50 cents—with a $75,000 per passenger limit. The insurance is good for one trip, or sometimes round trips, and continental casualty also offers to cover side trips, such as short flights that might be taken during an air travel vacation in Europe.

None of them apparently offers to insure passengers against the inconvenience of starting out for one city and being hijacked to a city hundreds of miles away, but if anyone was interested, Lloyds of London would probably take him up on it.

A spokesman said Lloyd also would insure against airline hijacking even if political motives were involved, but premiums are confidential and would vary from case to case.

FISHING CONTEST

Big Gar Rodeo Slated Monday

JONESVILLE (Special) — The biggest gar rodeo and fishing contest ever to be staged in this area will get underway on Monday according to Sonny Champlin, chairman of the event, which is being held in connection with the annual Louisiana Soybean Festival on Aug. 17-19.

The gar rodeo and fishing contest will begin officially at 6 a.m. Monday and continue until 4 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 19, the last day of the festival.

Official weighing station will be at Champlin Net. Co. on Front Street in Jonesville. Bobby Neal will be the official weigher. Fish must be weighed on the day caught.

Contestants must use only hooks and line, poles, rod and reel, and other fishing tackle. No seines or nets will qualify. The only qualification for a net is in the gar division. Champlin Net Co. is offering a $25 merchandise certificate for the biggest gar caught in a net.

In the sport fishing and gar rodeo contest a prize of $25 will be given to each who have the biggest gar, bass, bream of white perch. Winners will be announced at the beauty pageant which will begin at 8 p.m. Saturday.

"Anybody and everybody is eligible to take part, and you have a whole week to get into the fun and perhaps get a prize besides," Champlin said in making the announcement.

This fishing contest and gar rodeo is not restricted to Louisiana residents, but the fish must be caught in Louisiana and weighed the same day, Champlin stated.

Fast Protest Over Border Closing Due

WASHINGTON (AP) — Diplomats predicted Saturday night the United States, Britain and France would make a fast, indignant protest to the Soviet Union against the closing of the border between East and West Berlin.

The State Department withheld comment on the action by East German Communist authorities. Officials said they had received no official word on the sudden development up to a late hour Saturday night.

It was pointed out, however, that the Western powers have insisted for years that under agreements made among the victorious allies at the end of World War II the city of Berlin was to be treated as a unit. From the Western point of view therefore, the border closing is an illegal act on the Communist side and the West undoubtedly will demand that the order be revoked.

The Western powers always have held the Soviet Union responsible for all the Communist actions in Berlin on the ground the World War II agreements are still in force and are binding on the Soviet Union. But in this case Soviet responsibility for the action was regarded as obvious since the Soviet Union was behind the Warsaw Pact directive to East Germany to halt the massive flow of refugees into West Berlin.

Passenger Plane Almost Hits Elk

STOCKHOLM (AP)—A Swedish passenger plane Friday night barely escaped collision with an elk when touching down at Midlanda Airort near Sundsvall.

The pilot managed to brake his ship little more than a yard from the elk, wandering across the runway. All 34 assengers had seat belts fastened and none was hurt. The elk paid no attention, just proceeded majestically across the concrete and into the woods.

Senator Morse Proposes U.N. Berlin Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., proposed Saturday that the status of Berlin be submitted to the United Nations for a decision on Allied and Soviet treaty rights.

Morse, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said the West must keep militarily strong but "should demonstrate to the world that we are perfectly willing to negotiate an honorable settlement of the Berlin issue."

"What most people do not seem to realize is that the so-called original treaty over Berlin was a very temporary understanding," Morse said in a radio broadcast taped for Oregon stations.

"It was never contemplated when the Berlin treaty was negotiated that it was to be a permanent treaty. It was one of the stop gap affairs that was to apply after World War II until such time as a negotiated settlement of the Berlin problem could be reached by the victors in the war," he said.

"We ought to be perfectly willing to have the United Nations determine what our treaty rights are in Berlin, what Russia's treaty rights are, and what the rights of the other parties are," he said.

"I do not think that we ought to take the course of action, or issue the threat, that we are going to start a nuclear war over Berlin. I don't think that can be justified on moral grounds any more than I think Khrushchev can justify a nuclear war over Berlin."

Florida City Seeks To Bar Beach Riots

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—The city of Fort Lauderdale Saturday filed suit to prevent the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and State's Righters from organizing beach demonstrations.

William Kelley, special attorney for the city, said the suit was the first filed against the NAACP to stop organized desegregation activities.

He said it also was the first suit to name both Negroes and white persons as organizers of racial demonstrations.

The complaint charged that the organizations "have instigated and conducted a program rapidly approaching mass hysteria which has resulted and will result in precipitating incidents dangerous to the peace of the city unless they are restrained."

NAACP officials named defendants were Eulah Johnson, president of the Fort Lauderdale branch; Dr. Von D. Mizell, a Fort Lauderdale Negro physician active in NAACP affairs; Callas Brown, a field representative from New York, and Robert Saunders of Tampa, regional representative.

Named defendants as representatives of the State's Righters, an unincorporated and unregistered association, were Roger F. Wolf of Fort Lauderdale and J. H. Keaphley Jr. of Miami.

City commissioners authorized filing the suit after hearing results of an investigation by Police Chief J. Lester Holt into a series of "wade-ins" started by Negroes at a beach here July 4.

Holt said police made no attempts to stop the wade-ins until rowdyism led to an "explosive situation."

LT. ALLAN JACKSON of Morrilton, Ark., is congratulated by Maj. Frederick Keifer, left, after the new officer was sworn into the Army as the two men floated to earth from a 4,000-foot parachute jump. Jackson got his commission at Arkansas Tech College, where Keifer is an ROTC professor and adviser to the school's Parachute Club. It was Jackson's 38th jump. And naturally he's slated for Army paratroop duty, with the 101st Airborne Division. (AP Wirephoto)

CLAIM U.S. PLOT

Castro's Regime Renews Charges

HAVANA (AP) — Prime Minister Fidel Castro's regime charged again Saturday that U. S. officials had planned to simulate an attack on the U. S. naval base at Guantanamo Bay last month to provide an excuse for armed aggression against Cuba.

The government also charged U. S. officials at the base armed men with a .30-caliber machine gun for an attempt to assassinate Castro's brother, Raul, Cuba's armed forces chief.

A government report said the U. S. Central Intelligence Agency masterminded the plot in which the gunmen were to fire on Raul from a house adjoining a stand in Santiago where he spoke July 26.

In Washington, the Pentagon declined comment on the latest charges.

The charges originally were aired earlier last week by Cuba's economic boss, Ernesto Guevara, in a speech at the inter-American economic and social conference at Punta del Este, Uruguay. U. S. chief delegate Douglas Dillon, Treasury secretary, shook his head in vigorous denial during Guevara's speech. Robert Woodward, U. S. undersecretary of state for Latin-American affairs, said the speech "was just a jack of lies."

Havana radio sadi 159 persons were arrested in the investigation following the plots, which the government claimed were foiled by Cuban militiamen.

The government report told this story: Six men were to have been in the Santiago house when Castro spoke—two to handle the machine gun and the other four to hurl grenades to cover their withdrawal.

Six more armed with mortars were to be stationed on a road leading to the airport and to fire on Castro if he attempted to get to an airplane.

The simulated attack on Guantanamo Bay called for at least four mortars to fire six rounds at the base from El Cuero ranch. Anti-Castro forces were to attempt to induce Cuban government artillery near the base to open fire.

This, the government said, would have supported U. S. claims that the base had been attacked.

Cuban militiamen broke up the plot, the government said, when they discovered a jeep loaded with arms and ammunition on La Perla ranch. Jose Amparado Rosabal, described as a friend of former President Carlos Prio Socarras, was arrested at the ranch, the government said.

Other plotters were identified as Antonio Marra Acosta, Lazaro Ponce, and Emilio Quintana Gonzales. They were said to have escaped capture. Ponce was termed the leader of the anti-Castro "Freedom Torch Movement."

Castro's regime claimed Capt. C. E. Schoenweiss, former Guantanamo acting commander, was involved in the plot but apparently was relieved of his command due to disagreements with the CIA.

(Defense Department records in Washington show Schoenweiss served as commander of the base during a brief period between departure of one rear admiral and arrival of his successor.

The Guantanamo Bay base, which the United States holds under a treaty with Cuba, long has been a thorn in the side of the Castro regime. The prime minister in the past has promised the United States would be forced to leave, but in recent months has been relatively silent on the issue.

Dillon Will Confer With Betancourt

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (AP)—A U. S. delegation source disclosed Saturday that Treasury Secretary C. Douglas Dillon would confer with President Romulo Betancourt of Venezuela in Caracas next week.

Dillon will spend the night in Caracas on his way back to Washington after heading the U.S. delegation to the inter-American Economic and Social Conference here, the informant said.

Dillon and his party conferred with President Janio Quadros of Brazil on their flight to Punta del Este. Dillon went to Buenos Aires Thursday for talks with President Arturo Frondizi of Argentina.

Venezuela is considered one of the key areas of Kennedy's Alliance for Progress Program. Dillon's decision to stop off in Caracas en route home underscores Washington's desire for close relations.

Delegation sources did not mention the matter, but another reason for Dillon's decision to talk with Betancourt may have arisen from the flap that erupted when Cuba's Ernesto Guevara told the conference that secret U. S. Embassy documents reared in Caracas showed the Betancourt government had been "domesticated" by "Yankee imperialists."

Sheriff Takes Precautions For Riders' Arrival

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Sheriff J. R. Gilfoy said Saturday no loitering or congregating will be allowed around the courthouse Monday when about 187 "Freedom Riders" arrive to appeal their convictions.

Gilfoy said no one would be allowed inside the courtroom except the defendants, their counsel, the prosecutors, the judge and the press.

He said the citizens of Hinds County "have doone a great job so far in lettnig the law take its course. I will be grateful if you will stay away.

"Due to the large number of persons in this case," he said, "we are taking extra precaution to see that proceedings are completed in an orderly manner."

The sheriff said the street on the north side of the courthouse will be blocked off to allow buses and cars bringing defendants to park.

Two Sought For Murder Of Widow

BALTIMORE (AP)—Police issued an alert to pick up two youths they charged Saturday with the murder of a widow found beaten in her burning apartment.

Named in warrants for fatally beating the widow, Ida Helen Baker, 64, were Ronald Giles, 19, and Ray Cantley, 20. The police had custody of two men and another youth suspected of being connected with the crime.

The police expressed the belief that the five originally plotted to rob Mrs. Baker, whose ransacked apartment showed signs of affluence. Mrs. Baker was raped and beaten into a semiconscious condition Friday morning. A bed was left on fire in the five-room apartment.

The police think the intruders took only $5. They overlooked $341 in cash, jewelry, stocks and bonds. A small safe also was untouched.

Three bank books showing deposits of $30,000 and government bonds worth $14,000 were found by the police.

The trio booked for questioning are Harvey Damron, 37; Thomas G. Whittaker, 22; and Robert L. Stevens, Jr. Stevens and Whittaker live only a block from Mrs. Baker's apartment in northwest Baltimore.

The trio booked for questioning are Harvey Damron, 37; Thomas G. Whittaker, 22; and Robert L. Stevens, Jr. Stevens and Whittaker live only a block from Mrs. Baker's apartment in northwest Baltimore.

Other occupants told the police they had seen four males enter Mrs. Baker's apartment late Thursday night. Two of them subsequently left. The neighbors called firemen early Friday morning after seeing smoke coming from her apartment.

Mrs. Baker told police on the way to a hosital where she died three hours later that she had encountered two boys in one of her two bedrooms. She said they had demanded money, raped her, beat her on the head and bound her.

Delay Is Asked On Recognizing Congo Premier

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) —Some African and Asian countries have asked U.N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold to delay recognizing Cyrille Adoula as the Congo's premier until they can learn the views of Antoine Gizenga, who long claimed the post himself.

A private meeting was held Friday by Hammarskjold's Advisory Committee on the Congo—the first since the Congolese Parliament on Aug. 2 approved a coalition government headed by Adoula and included Gizenga as a deputy premier.

Diplomats said that at the meeting Hammarskjold asked how he should deal with a letter from Adoula requesting that he consider Adoula's Cabinet as the only central government of the Congo. The committee spent 2½ hours arguing whether Hammarskjold should grant recognition right away or delay action.

The diplomats reported that Hammarskjold said he would think things over and decide for himself. Some said he spoke as if he intended to send a favorable reply immediately.

Ghana, Ethiopia, India, Indonesia and the United Arab Republic strongly urged him to hold up his reply.

Bowles Returns From Tour Of Two Continents

WASHINGTON (AP) — Undersecretary of State Chester Bowles said Saturday Asian and African countries "realize fully that the issue in Berlin is not just a legal squabble—it is the issue of freedom itself."

Bowles, returning from conferences with U.S. officials on the two continents, told newsmen: "I think there is a growing awareness in Asia and Africa that the very principle of self-determination, so important in Berlin, is the same as that of the freedom and independence of the Asian and African nations," he added.

"If we in the United States should falter over the principle of self-determination in Berlin, no one will ever trust us again anywhere."

Bowles said he conferred with U. S. officials from 6 countries in meetings at Lagos, Nigeria; Nicosia, Cyprus, and New Delhi, India. He said he plans similar meetings in a few months in Latin America and the Far East.

Janet Leigh's Father Is Found Dead In Office

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) —Fred Morrison, 52, father of actress Janet Leigh, was found dead in his office by a business associate Saturday.

A bottle containing pills and a note were found near the body, police said. The contents of the note were kept secrt.

"It was directed to Morrison's wife, Helen," Police Chief Clinton H. Anderson said, "and from what we can make out there's been some domestic problem. It is not complimentary."

An autopsy was ordered.

The chief said Mrs. Morrison told him she last saw her husband who was an insurance broker, Friday night when he left their West Los Angeles home after a spat.

Senator Morse Proposes U.N. Berlin Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., proposed Saturday that the status of Berlin be submitted to the United Nations for a decision on Allied and Soviet treaty rights.

Morse, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said the West must keep militarily strong but "should demonstrate to the world that we are perfectly willing to negotiate an honorable settlement of the Berlin issue."

"What most people do not seem to realize is that the so-called original treaty over Berlin was a very temporary understanding," Morse said in a radio broadcast taped for Oregon stations.

"It was never contemplated when the Berlin treaty was negotiated that it was to be a permanent treaty. It was one of the stop gap affairs that was to apply after World War II until such time as a negotiated settlement of the Berlin problem could be reached by the victors in the war," he said.

"We ought to be perfectly willing to have the United Nations determine what our treaty rights are in Berlin, what Russia's treaty rights are, and what the rights of the other parties are," he said.

"I do not think that we ought to take the course of action, or issue the threat, that we are going to start a nuclear war over Berlin. I don't think that can be justified on moral grounds any more than I think Khrushchev can justify a nuclear war over Berlin."

Florida City Seeks To Bar Beach Riots

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—The city of Fort Lauderdale Saturday filed suit to prevent the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and State's Righters from organizing beach demonstrations.

William Kelley, special attorney for the city, said the suit was the first filed against the NAACP to stop organized desegregation activities.

He said it also was the first suit to name both Negroes and white persons as organizers of racial demonstrations.

The complaint charged that the organizations "have instigated and conducted a program rapidly approaching mass hysteria which has resulted and will result in precipitating incidents dangerous to the peace of the city unless they are restrained."

NAACP officials named defendants were Eulah Johnson, president of the Fort Lauderdale branch; Dr. Von D. Mizell, a Fort Lauderdale Negro physician active in NAACP affairs; Callas Brown, a field representative from New York, and Robert Saunders of Tampa, regional representative.

Named defendants as representatives of the State's Righters, an unincorporated and unregistered association, were Roger F. Wolf of Fort Lauderdale and J. H. Keaphley Jr. of Miami.

City commissioners authorized filing the suit after hearing results of an investigation by Police Chief J. Lester Holt into a series of "wade-ins" started by Negroes at a beach here July 4.

Holt said police made no attempts to stop the wade-ins until rowdyism led to an "explosive situation."

LT. ALLAN JACKSON of Morrilton, Ark., is congratulated by Maj. Frederick Keifer, left, after the new officer was sworn into the Army as the two men floated to earth from a 4,000-foot parachute jump. Jackson got his commission at Arkansas Tech College, where Keifer is an ROTC professor and adviser to the school's Parachute Club. It was Jackson's 38th jump. And naturally he's slated for Army paratroop duty, with the 101st Airborne Division. (AP Wirephoto)

CLAIM U.S. PLOT

Castro's Regime Renews Charges

HAVANA (AP) — Prime Minister Fidel Castro's regime charged again Saturday that U. S. officials had planned to simulate an attack on the U. S. naval base at Guantanamo Bay last month to provide an excuse for armed aggression against Cuba.

The government also charged U. S. officials at the base armed men with a .30-caliber machine gun for an attempt to assassinate Castro's brother, Raul, Cuba's armed forces chief.

A government report said the U. S. Central Intelligence Agency masterminded the plot in which the gunmen were to fire on Raul from a house adjoining a stand in Santiago where he spoke July 26.

In Washington, the Pentagon declined comment5on the latest charges.

(The charges originally were aired earlier last week by Cuba's economic boss, Ernesto Guevara, in a speech at the inter-American economic and social conference at Punta del Este, Uruguay. U. S. chief delegate Douglas Dillon, Treasury secretary, shook his head in vigorous denial during Guevara's speech. Robert Woodward, U. S. undersecretary of state for Latin-American affairs, said the speech "was just a jack of lies."

Havana radio sadi 159 persons were arrested in the investigation following the plots, which the government claimed were foiled by Cuban militiamen.

The government report told this story: Six men were to have been in the Santiago house when Castro spoke—two to handle the machine gun and the other four to hurl grenades to cover their withdrawal.

Six more armed with mortars were to be stationed on a road leading to the airport and to fire on Castro if he attempted to get to an airplane.

The simulated attack on Guantanamo Bay called for at least four mortars to fire six rounds at the base from El Cuero ranch. Anti-Castro forces were to attempt to induce Cuban government artillery near the base to open fire.

This, the government said, would have supported U. S. claims that the base had been attacked.

Cuban militiamen broke up the plot, the government said, when they discovered a jeep loaded with arms and ammunition on La Perla ranch. Jose Amparado Rosabal, described as a friend of former President Carlos Prio Socarras, was arrested at the ranch, the government said.

Other plotters were identified as Antonio Marra Acosta, Lazaro Ponce, and Emilio Quintana Gonzales. They were said to have escaped capture. Ponce was termed the leader of the anti-Castro "Freedom Torch Movement."

Castro's regime claimed Capt. C. E. Schoenweiss, former Guantanamo acting commander, was involved in the plot but apparently was relieved of his command due to disagreements with the CIA.

(Defense Department records in Washington show Schoenweiss served as commander of the base during a brief period between departure of one rear admiral and arrival of his successor.

The Guantanamo Bay base, which the United States holds under a treaty with Cuba, long has been a thorn in the side of the Castro regime. The prime minister in the past has promised the United States would be forced to leave, but in recent months has been relatively silent on the issue.

Northeast Crater Of Mt. Etna Erupts

CATANIA, Sicily (AP) — The northeast crater of Mt. Etna belched cinders and burning articles skyward to 1,300 feet Saturday.

Lava from the subterminal crater added another 1,000 feet to an advancing column that has now flowed more than half a mile. There was no indication of danger to surrounding villages.

Dillon Will Confer With Betancourt

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (AP)—A U. S. delegation source disclosed Saturday that Treasury Secretary C. Douglas Dillon would confer with President Romulo Betancourt of Venezuela in Caracas next week.

Dillon will spend the night in Caracas on his way back to Washington after heading the U.S. delegation to the inter-American Economic and Social Conference here, the informant said.

Dillon and his party conferred with President Janio Quadros of Brazil on their flight to Punta del Este. Dillon went to Buenos Aires Thursday for talks with President Arturo Frondizi of Argentina.

Venezuela is considered one of the key areas of Kennedy's Alliance for Progress Program. Dillon's decision to stop off in Caracas en route home underscores Washington's desire for close relations.

Delegation sources did not mention the matter, but another reason for Dillon's decision to talk with Betancourt may have arisen from the flap that erupted when Cuba's Ernesto Guevara told the conference that secret U. S. Embassy documents reared in Caracas showed the Betancourt government had been "domesticated" by "Yankee imperialists."

Sheriff Takes Precautions For Riders' Arrival

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Sheriff J. R. Gilfoy said Saturday no loitering or congregating will be allowed around the courthouse Monday when about 187 "Freedom Riders" arrive to appeal their convictions.

Gilfoy said no one would be allowed inside the courtroom except the defendants, their counsel, the prosecutors, the judge and the press.

He said the citizens of Hinds County "have doone a great job so far in lettnig the law take its course. I will be grateful if you will stay away.

"Due to the large number of persons in this case," he said, "we are taking extra precaution to see that proceedings are completed in an orderly manner."

The sheriff said the street on the north side of the courthouse will be blocked off to allow buses and cars bringing defendants to park.

Delay Is Asked On Recognizing Congo Premier

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Some African and Asian countries have asked U.N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold to delay recognizing Cyrille Adoula as the Congo's premier until they can learn the views of Antoine Gizenga, who long claimed the post himself.

A private meeting was held Friday by Hammarskiold's Advisory Committee on the Congo—the first since the Congolese Parliament on Aug. 2 approved a coalition government headed by Adoula and included Gizenga as a deputy premier.

Diplomats said that at the meeting Hammarskiold asked how he should deal with a letter from Adoula requesting that he consider Adoula's Cabinet as the only central government of the Congo. The committee spent 2½ hours arguing whether Hammarskiold should grant recognition right away or delay action.

The diplomats reported that Hammarskiold said he would think things over and decide for himself. Some said he spoke as if he intended to send a favorable reply immediately.

Ghana, Ethiopia, India, Indonesia and the United Arab Republic strongly urged him to hold up his reply.

Bowles Returns From Tour Of Two Continents

WASHINGTON (AP) — Undersecretary of State Chester Bowles said Saturday Asian and African countries "realize fully that the issue in Berlin is not just a legal squabble—it is the issue of freedom itself."

Bowles, returning from conferences with U.S. officials on the two continents, told newsmen: "I think there is a growing awareness in Asia and Africa that the very principle of self-determination, so important in Berlin, is the same as that of the freedom and independence of the Asian and African nations," he added.

"If we in the United States should falter over the principle of self-determination in Berlin, no one will ever trust us again anywhere."

Bowles said he conferred with U. S. officials from 6 countries in meetings at Lagos, Nigeria; Nicosia, Cyprus, and New Delhi, India. He said he plans similar meetings in a few months in Latin America and the Far East.

Two Sought For Murder Of Widow

BALTIMORE (AP)—Police issued an alert to pick up two youths they charged Saturday with the murder of a widow found beaten in her burning apartment.

Named in warrants for fatally beating the widow, Ida Helen Baker, 64, were Ronald Giles, 19, and Ray Cantley, 20. The police had custody of two men and another youth suspected of being connected with the crime.

The police expressed the belief that the five originally plotted to rob Mrs. Baker, whose ransacked apartment showed signs of affluence. Mrs. Baker was raped and beaten into a semiconscious condition Friday morning. A bed was left on fire in the five-room apartment.

The police think the intruders took only $5. They overlooked $341 in cash, jewelry, stocks and bonds. A small safe also was untouched.

Three bank books showing deposits of $30,000 and government bonds worth $14,000 were found by the police.

The trio booked for questioning are Harvey Damron, 37; Thomas G. Whittaker, 22; and Robert L. Stevens, Jr. Stevens and Whittaker live only a block from Mrs. Baker's apartment in northwest Baltimore.

The trio booked for questioning are Harvey Damron, 37; Thomas G. Whittaker, 22; and Robert L. Stevens, Jr. Stevens and Whittaker live only a block from Mrs. Baker's apartment in northwest Baltimore.

Other occupants told the police they had seen four males enter Mrs. Baker's apartment late Thursday night. Two of them subsequently left. The neighbors called firemen early Friday morning after seeing smoke coming from her apartemnt.

Mrs. Baker told police on the way to a hosital where she died three hours later that she had encountered two boys in one of her two bedrooms. She said they had demanded money, raped her, beat her on the head and bound her.

Janet Leigh's Father Is Found Dead In Office

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)—Fred Morrison, 52, father of actress Janet Leigh, was found dead in his office by a business associate Saturday.

A bottle containing pills and a note were found near the body, police said. The contents of the note were kept secrt.

"It was directed to Morrison's wife, Helen," Police Chief Clinton H. Anderson said, "and from what we can make out there's been some domestic problem. It is not complimentary."

An autopsy was ordered.

The chief said Mrs. Morrison told him she last saw her husband who was an insurance broker, Friday night when he left their West Los Angeles home after a spat.

Collapse Of House

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—A two-story apartment house weakened by heavy rains collapsed before dawn Saturday killing at least three of its occupants and injuring 24.

Some of the survivors were reported in serious condition. One 31-year-old woman was critically injured by a stone that struck her in the back as she lay shielding her infant son from injury.

Steps Taken By Airlines In Hijackings

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's airlines were reported taking hesitant steps Saturday to protect their planes against further hijackings. President Kennedy announced Thursday that plainclothes border patrolmen will ride some airliners.

Many airline officials fear that armed guards aboard planes may prove a greater danger than the hijackers themselves. In four hijackings since May , the aerial pirates have been armed but there has been no gunfire.

But a hijacker coming up against an armed guard might precipitate a gun battle such as occurred Wednesday on a Cuban airliner over that island. A pilot, a guard and a hijacker were killed, although the plane's passengers escaped injury.

Another hazard in event of a gun battle aloft is that bullets might pierce the pressurized cabin, causing a plane crash.

Eastern Air Lines said through a spokesman, "We are taking precautions but we are not disclosing details for obvious security reasons."

Among the precautions were understood to be private guards, hired after an Eastern Electra jetprop airliner was hijacked July 24 and flown to Cuba, where it still is held.

Pan American World Airways let it be known that it is installing cross bars on cockpit doors of planes flying Latin-American runs. A Pan American DC8 jetliner was hijacked over Mexico Wednesday and forced to fly to Havana. It was released later the same day and returned to Miami.

Generally, also, airlines were barring firearms of a sporting type from passenger cabins. These must now be checked into the baggage compartment with other luggage. Formerly, hunting rifles and the like could accompany the passenger.

The airlines have long contended that it is impossible to subject passengers to a personal search for bombs, guns or other weapons. However, closer visual scrutiny of boarding passengers is expected.

Pan American said that besides locking doors to pilot compartments and installing reinforcing bars, that on "some flights border patrolmen are aboard as passengers."

At Kansas City, Mo., Trans World Airlines said its pilots are now locking doors to pilot compartments from the inside. TWA also said that passengers are being scrutinized as they check in at airports and as they board planes, through the cooperation of local police. Other precautions are being kept secret, TWA added. U.S. Urges Education Of Handicapped

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Welfare Abraham A. Ribicoff urged Saturday a special effort for the enrollment of handicapped children in schools that have special provisions for their education.

There are now about 4,000 public school systems providing special educational opportunity for exceptional pupils, he said. All states offer some special services.

There are approximately six-million children of school age, who require education different from routine school work.

Included are the blind, the deaf and the hard of hearing, those with speech defects, the mentally retarded, the emotionally maladjusted, the severely crippled, and children with special health problems.

"Now that every state offers some special educational opportunity to exceptional children," Ribicoff said, "this country should be educating more of them for independent and productive living."

Noting that only about one-fourth of the six-million exceptional children are in schools where they receive special help toward overcoming their handicaps, Ribicoff said: "Undoubtedly many of the estimated 4½-million children not being aided have some special education available if their parents only knew it.

"It seems to me that these parents might well spend part of the month of August finding out what special help their school systems and state departments of education are prepared to give."

Dr. Romaine P. Mackie, chief of the Division of Exceptional Children and Youth in the Office of Education, said that nearly all state educational agencies now have specialists in one or more areas. Some have as many as 15, she said.

She said programs for the mentally retarded have gone ahead fastest, largely because of the prodding of parents organized as the National Association for Retarded Children.

WITH HOLY RELIC

Red China Scores Propaganda Gains

TOKYO (AP) — Red China, which holds the standard Communist view that all religion is childish superstition, completed Saturday a notable propaganda triumph with one of the sacred relics of Buddhism—the tooth of Gautama Buddha.

The holy relic, a longtime possession of China, was loaned to Buddhist Ceylon two months ago. It returned to Peiping Saturday enshrined in a golden pagoda aboard a special plane. The Ceylonese minister of health, A. P. Jayasuriya, escorted it.

"Hundreds of Buddhist disciples gathered at a solemn religious ceremony to welcome it," the official New China News Agency reported, adding that a Buddhist band played religious music as the relic, placed on a decorated car, moved through the streets to Peiping's Kuangchi Monastery, its permanent resting place. The temple drums boomed and bells tinkled as the relic moved past 400 waiting monks, nuns and lamas to the incense-filled main hall.

Though little noticed by the occidental world, the transfer of the sacred tooth from Peiping to Ceylon aroused the interest of Asia's millions of Buddhists.

In permitting it to leave China, the Communists at no cost to themselves gained the good will of many Asians. The gesture did much to recover ground Peiping lost when it suppressed the independence movement in Buddhist Tibet.

The Ceylonese health minister said that several million had worshipped the tooth during its two-month exposure.

Though the Chinese Communists hold religion in contempt, they recognize they cannot quickly wipe out so powerful a force. As a result, they have concentrated on educating the young away from churches, which have been neutralized by turning them into state - controlled organizations.

In Tibet, the Communists maintain the fiction of Buddhist supremacy by giving outward leadership to the Panchen Lama, regarded as a living god by his followers. But the Buddhist heirachy has, according to reliable accounts, been purged and only Lamas loyal to the Chinese conquerors may continue to serve.

In the same way, religion on the mainland has been taken over as a property of the state. Churches and temples, travelers report, are open and services are held periodically. But priests and monks are hand-picked for their political trustworthiness, with spiritual attributes incidental.

Soviet Opens New Berlin Crisis Phase

WASHINGTON (A) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev opened a new and more dangerous phase of the Berlin crisis this week with nuclear-war threats to frighten European allies away from the United States.

Khrushchev also aims to strike terror into the leaders and peoples of neutralist nations. His aim is to induce them to put pressure on American and other Western leaders to yield to his Berlin demands.

A meeting of neutral government chiefs, including Indian Prime Minister Nehru, is scheduled for Belgrade, Yugoslavia, in three weeks. That meeting evidently is Khrushchev's immediate target.

Top U. S. officials say privately they think Khrushchev is running a gigantic bluff of "nuclear blackmail" with his talk of vast devastation in the countries of Europe unless the West backs down on Berlin. But they say also the situation has dangerous elements and needs careful handling to keep him from creating a situation in which war becomes almost inevitable.

Two top diplomats who are destined to play key roles in this effort so far as the United States is concerned were brought back from Europe by Secretary of State Dean Rusk for Washington consultations.

They are: Llewellyn Thompson, ambassador to Moscow, whose task will be to keep close watch on the temper of Soviet policy and Khrushchev's intentions. He will work also with allied diplomats to find openings for genuine negotiations over Berlin.

George F. Kennan, ambassador to Yugoslavia, whose position gives him an unusual opportunity for observing trends in neutralist policies.

Kennan will be in good position to see what happens when men like President Tito of Yugoslavia, President Nasser of Egypt and India's Nehru get together.

What U. S. officials most fear from the meeting of neutrals is that they will put the heat on London and Washington to compromise on Berlin. The neutrals figure that is an easier way to exert their influence than if they tried to bring pressure on Khrushchev.

Union Business Agent Is Slain In New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Police said an angry union member walked into the pile driver's union with a gun in a paper bag Saturday. He shot a business agent to death and then killed himself.

Dead were George Lux, 63, agent for the Pile Drivers Union, and Charles Vornado, 52, union member. Both are from New Orleans.

The shooting took place in Lux's second floor office on Chartres street in the French Quarter.

Witnesses said Vornado came to pay his dues, then accused Lux of "costing me my job."

Witnesses said Vornado shot Lux in an inner office, came out and told the men to get out.

They left and then heard another shot. Vornado was dead when they returned holding a .38 caliber gun in his hand. He was shot in the head.

Lux received two bullets in the temple.

French Riot Police Alert For Uprising

PARIS (AP) — Special police riot squads spot-checked motorists in the French capital Saturday in what appeared to be a move to thwart any possible civil disturbances.

Most of the motorists were halted in the vicinity of the Elysee Palace, President Chareles de Gaulle's official residence. De Gaulle left two days ago on his annual vacation at his country retreat of Colombey-les-Deux-Eglises, 120 miles from Paris.

The police contended the checks were only routine. But other officials connected them with reports of planned extremist uprisings and fears that an attempt might be made on De Gaulle's life.

French right-wing underground elements set off plastic bombs at the homes and businesses of 12 persons in Algeria and one in France Friday night and early Saturday. The blasts caused heavy damage but only one minor injury.

Algerian rebels countered by destroying 1,800 orange trees in the lush Mitidja plain south of Algiers.

Informed sources say there is a strong possibility of an attempted rightist coup d'etat this month. The breakdown in the Algerian peace talks, the Tunisian dispute, the Berlin crisis and troubles with disgruntled French farmers all added fuel to the reports.

Plot Is Reported Against Arab Chief

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — The newspaper Makhi, published by a former leader in the Greek underground that fought British rule here, charged Saturday Israeli agents were plotting to assassinate President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic during a visit to this island next month.

The paper quoted a man, unidentified, as saying the agents offered him $140,000 to kill Nasser. A spokesman at the Cypriot Interior Ministry commented, "No seriousness should be attached to this report."

BY CONGRESS GROUP

Gambling Probe Will Open Soon

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Congress will soon take its first look at organized gambling since 1951—the year the Kefauver crime committee exposed Frank Costello's quivering hands to a nationwide television audience.

The new investigation, which starts Aug. 22, will be directed by Sen. John L. McClellan, D - Ark. McClellan's Senate investigations subcommittee, it was learned, has issued nearly 50 subpoenas for men in New York, St. Louis, Chicago, New Orleans, Boston, Miami and other cities.

McClellan will start the week-long first series of open hearings in low key. He has mapped out these areas for investigation:

Manufacturers and distributors of crooked gambling equipment, including marked cards and fixed dice.

Teletype services which specialize in flashing horse - race and other sports result to bookmakers.

Handicappers, located chiefly in Chicago and Minneapolis, who determine the so - called "point spread" in basketball and football games.

Sources close to the subcommittee said the investigation will steer clear of the college basketball scandal. New York Dist. Atty. Frank Hogan believes public disclosures would hobble efforts to convict gamblers who bribed college athletes to shave points.

The sources said the hearings were planned several months ago, partly in the hope of spurring Congress to enact Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy's package of seven crime bills.

The anti-crime legislation has passed the Senate, and one bill—making it a federal offense to cross state lines to promote gambling, prostitution, narcotics and liquor "enterprises" has cleared the House Judiciary Committee.

Kennedy, chief counsel under McClellan in the old Senate rackets committee, estimates that 70,000 persons are involved in syndicate gambling.

"Huge" profits from the estimated gross "take" of $7 billion a year are used to corrupt public officials and bankroll most organized crime, he says.

Most gambling operations are not now illegal under federal law. McClellan hopes to show that further federal intervention is necessary to cut off the sinews of big-time gambling and bookmaking.

He also wants to show whether gambling syndicates have "taken over" equipment makers and handicappers.

MATADOR IS RECOVERING

MADRID, Spain (AP)—Matador Antonio Ordonez, nearly recovered from wounds inflicted by a bull in the Malaga ring 10 days ago, left the hospital Saturday to rest for his next appearance, in Linares on Aug. 28.

Legislature Will Probe N.Y. Scandal

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller agreed Saturday to call the New York State Legislature into special session to deal with New York City's scandal-rocked school system.

No date was set for the session.

Rockefeller acted on the recommendation of State Education Commissioner James E. Allen Jr. who proposed state intervention in the wake of charges of corruption and mismanagement in the city's school system.

Allen, with support of the State Board of Regents, recommended that an immediate special session enact laws that would supersede the New York City Board of Education with a unit appointed by the regents, governing body of education in the state.

Allen also asked for funds to prepare a permanent cure to the troubled city school situation.

His long-range proposals call for legislation that would change the present system of the mayor appointing members of the city's education board, and provide for more public participation in the government of the schools.

The commissioner said, "This is a time of crisis. And there can be no further delay."

In New York City, State Comptroller Arthur Levitt, who is opposing Mayor Robert F. Wagner for the Democratic nomination for mayor, endorsed Allen's action.

Wagner had proposed Friday that a city-state commission study the problems of the schools. Rockefeller rejected this.

A state investigative unit has leveled charges that school workers received gifts and kickbacks, and that there was shoddy construction work on New York City Schools and inadequate maintenance of existing schools.

In New York City, State Comptroller Arthur Levitt, who is opposing Mayor Robert F. Wagner for the Democratic nomination for mayor, endorsed Allen's action.

Wagner had proposed Friday that a city-state commission study the problems of the schools. Rockefeller rejected this.

A state investigative unit has leveled charges that school workers received gifts and kickbacks, and that there was shoddy construction work on New York City Schools and inadequate maintenance of existing schools.

WITH HOLY RELIC

Red China Scores Propaganda Gains

TOKYO (AP) — Red China, which holds the standard Communist view that all religion is childish superstition, completed Saturday a notable propaganda triumph with one of the sacred relics of Buddhism—the tooth of Gautama Buddha.

The holy relic, a longtime possession of China, was loaned to Buddhist Ceylon two months ago. It returned to Peiping Saturday enshrined in a golden pagoda aboard a special plane. The Ceylonese minister of health, A. P. Jayasuriya, escorted it.

"Hundreds of Buddhist disciples gathered at a solemn religious ceremony to welcome it," the official New China News Agency reported, adding that a Buddhist band played religious music as the relic, placed on a decorated car, moved through the streets to Peiping's Kuangchi Monastery, its permanent resting place. The temple drums boomed and bells tinkled as the relic moved past 400 waiting monks, nuns and lamas to the incense-filled main hall.

Though little noticed by the occidental world, the transfer of the sacred tooth from Peiping to Ceylon aroused the interest of Asia's millions of Buddhists.

In permitting it to leave China, the Communists at no cost to themselves gained the good will of many Asians. The gesture did much to recover ground Peiping lost when it suppressed the independence movement in Buddhist Tibet.

The Ceylonese health minister said that several million had worshipped the tooth during its two-month exposure.

Though the Chinese Communists hold religion in contempt, they recognize they cannot quickly wipe out so powerful a force. As a result, they have concentrated on educating the young away from churches, which have been neutralized by turning them into state - controlled organizations.

In Tibet, the Communists maintain the fiction of Buddhist supremacy by giving outward leadership to the Panchen Lama, regarded as a living god by his followers. But the Buddhist heirachy has, according to reliable accounts, been purged and only Lamas loyal to the Chinese conquerors may continue to serve.

In the same way, religion on the mainland has been taken over as a property of the state. Churches and temples, travelers report, are open and services are held periodically. But priests and monks are hand-picked for their political trustworthiness, with spiritual attributes incidental.

Soviet Opens New Berlin Crisis Phase

WASHINGTON (A) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev opened a new and more dangerous phase of the Berlin crisis this week with nuclear-war threats to frighten European allies away from the United States.

Khrushchev also aims to strike terror into the leaders and peoples of neutralist nations. His aim is to induce them to put pressure on American and other Western leaders to yield to his Berlin demands.

A meeting of neutral government chiefs, including Indian Prime Minister Nehru, is scheduled for Belgrade, Yugoslavia, in three weeks. That meeting evidently is Khrushchev's immediate target.

Top U. S. officials say privately they think Khrushchev is running a gigantic bluff of "nuclear blackmail" with his talk of vast devastation in the countries of Europe unless the West backs down on Berlin. But they say also the situation has dangerous elements and needs careful handling to keep him from creating a situation in which war becomes almost inevitable.

Two top diplomats who are destined to play key roles in this effort so far as the United States is concerned were brought back from Europe by Secretary of State Dean Rusk for Washington consultations.

They are: Llewellyn Thompson, ambassador to Moscow, whose task will be to keep close watch on the temper of Soviet policy and Khrushchev's intentions. He will work also with allied diplomats to find openings for genuine negotiations over Berlin.

George F. Kennan, ambassador to Yugoslavia, whose position gives him an unusual opportunity for observing trends in neutralist policies.

Kennan will be in good position to see what happens when men like President Tito of Yugoslavia, President Nasser of Egypt and India's Nehru get together.

What U. S. officials most fear from the meeting of neutrals is that they will put the heat on London and Washington to compromise on Berlin. The neutrals figure that is an easier way to exert their influence than if they tried to bring pressure on Khrushchev.

U.S. Urges Education Of Handicapped

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Welfare Abraham A. Ribicoff urged Saturday a special effoot for the enrollment of handicapped children in schools that have special provisions for their education.

There are now about 4,000 public school systems providing special educational opportunity for exceptional pupils, he said. All states offer some special services.

There are approximately six-million children of school age, who require education different from routine school work.

Included are the blind, the deaf and the hard of hearing, those with speech defects, the mentally retarded, the emotionally maladjusted, the severely crippled, and children with special health problems.

"Now that every state offers some special educational opportunity to exceptional children," Ribicoff said, "this country should be educating more of them for independent and productive living."

Noting that only about one-fourth of the six-million exceptional children are in schools where they receive special help toward overcoming their handicaps, Ribicoff said: "Undoubtedly many of the estimated 4½-million children not being aided have some special education available if their parents only knew it.

"It seems to me that these parents might well spend part of the month of August finding out what special help their school systems and state departments of education are prepared to give."

Dr. Romaine P. Mackie, chief of the Division of Exceptional Children and Youth in the Office of Education, said that nearly all state educational agencies now have specialists in one or more areas. Some have as many as 15, she said.

She said programs for the mentally retarded have gone ahead fastest, largely because of the prodding of parents organized as the National Association for Retarded Children.

MILITARY AID PROGRAM

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — The United States plans to give the Indonesians army two mobile radio communication centers as part of its military aid program. The centers will be part of a communications system linking Indonesia's major cities.

French Riot Police Alert For Uprising

PARIS (AP) — Special police riot squads spot-checked motorists in the French capital Saturday in what appeared to be a move to thwart any possible civil disturbances.

Most of the motorists were halted in the vicinity of the Elysee Palace, President Chareles de Gaulle's official residence. De Gaulle left two days ago on his annual vacation at his country retreat of Colombey-les-Deux-Eglises, 120 miles from Paris.

The police contended the checks were only routine. But other officials connected them with reports of planned extremist uprisings and fears that an attempt might be made on De Gaulle's life.

French right-wing underground elements set off plastic bombs at the homes and businesses of 12 persons in Algeria and one in France Friday night and early Saturday. The blasts caused heavy damage but only one minor injury.

Algerian rebels countered by destroying 1,800 orange trees in the lush Mitidja plain south of Algiers.

Informed sources say there is a strong possibility of an attempted rightist coup d'etat this month. The breakdown in the Algerian peace talks, the Tunisian dispute, the Berlin crisis and troubles with disgruntled French farmers all added fuel to the reports.

Union Business Agent Is Slain In New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Police said an angry union member walked into the pile driver's union with a gun in a paper bag Saturday. He shot a business agent to death and then killed himself.

Dead were George Lux, 63, agent for the Pile Drivers Union, and Charles Vornado, 52, union member. Both are from New Orleans.

The shooting took place in Lux's second floor office on Chartres street in the French Quarter.

Witnesses said Vornado came to pay his dues, then accused Lux of "costing me my job."

Witnesses said Vornado shot Lux in an inner office, came out and told the men to get out.

They left and then heard another shot. Vornado was dead when they returned holding a .38 caliber gun in his hand. He was shot in the head.

Lux received two bullets in the temple.

Plot Is Reported Against Arab Chief

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — The newspaper Makhi, published by a former leader in the Greek underground that fought British rule here, charged Saturday Israeli agents were plotting to assassinate President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic during a visit to this island next month.

The paper quoted a man, unidentified, as saying the agents offered him $140,000 to kill Nasser. A spokesman at the Cypriot Interior Ministry commented, "No seriousness should be attached to this report."

Promises Given On Foreign Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—The administration has promised to put its foreign aid program on a more businesslike basis if it gets the long-range financing it seeks.

The promise to congress was one of several given by a foreign aid administrator, Henry R. Labouisse, in a letter to 30 House Democrats who asked for assurances the aid program would be made more efficient and effective.

Also pledged were an intensive search for top-caliber administrators, a larger role for private enterprise, tighter screening of projects and insistence that nations receiving aid make efforts of their own to improve the welfare of their people.

Labouisse, head of the International Cooperation Administration, pinned all the promises to the long-term financing of the loan program—a provision the administration regards as the heart of the foreign aid bill now before Congress. It would authorize $8.8 billion in loans over a five-year period.

The Senate approved the new approach in a key vote Friday, but the House, which opens debate on the bill Monday, offers a far more difficult obstacle to the administration. Republicans are expected to make a strong effort to limit the authorization to two or three years, at the most.

The 30 Democrats, to whom Labouisse wrote, support the administration position but had asked for detailed information on how the program would be carried out. Rep. John Brademas, D-Ind., leader of the group, released Labouisse's reply Saturday.

In pledging a big talent hunt for people to run the program, Labouisse met one of the chief complaints raised in Congress about foreign aid.

At his news conference Thursday, President Kennedy said about 50 new administrators would be needed for effective operation of the program. Labouisse gave his assurance to Brademas they would be "men and women of the highest possible caliber."

Throughout his letter Labouisse expressed administration determination to see that U. S. aid reaches the people who need it.

The United States will "persistently use every form of influence to persuade recipient governments to adopt self - help measures leading to social reform and improvement of the welfare of their people," he said.

Any nation failing to use the aid for its intended purposes would have its funds cut off or severely limited, he said.

The bitter fight shaping up in the House was foreshadowed in comments made today by Rep. Otto E. Passman, D-La., a leading foe of the program, and Rep. John W. McCormack, D-Mass., the House majority leader.

In a television program with Rep. Melvin R. Laird, R-Wis., filmed for showing Sunday in Wisconsin, Passman said by granting the five-year authorization Congress would be surrendering its control over the foreign aid program. The administration is making its request, he added, because the program is "so loaded with extravagance, waste and inefficiency it can no longer stand close examination by congress."

McCormack, in a statement released by his office, charged opponents of the five-year plan with "wholesale distribution of statements not in accord with the facts."

He said the borrowing authority sought by the administration has long established precedence in other programs approved by Congress and insisted Congress would retain "full scrutiny and control" of all projects under such a program.

Although debate in the House starts Monday no votes will come before late Wednesday.

Long Quits Anti-Foreign Aid Position

WASHINGTON (Special) — Sen. Russell B. Long made a sudden switch to the administration's side on a key foreign aid amendment but some say it does not mean the Louisiana Democrat will go along with the entire bill.

Long, formerly one of the most outspoken critics of alleged corruption and mismanagement in the foreign aid program, backed President Kennedy Friday night by voting against an amendment limiting development loan financing to one year.

President Kennedy has been seeking authroity to make loans in underdeveloped countries with financing assured through funds borrowed from the treasury for periods up to five years.

The five - year loan provision has been denounced as "back - door" financing by critics of the plan. Long said two weeks ago such a plan would deny Congress its traditional power to keep control of administration spending.

Since then, however, Long has been a frequent visitor at the White House. He and President Kennedy worked closely together when the president was still a senator and co - sponsored several bills. They are apparently maintaining their friendship.

Long has issued no explanation of why he chose to support the five year loan provision, althouth he has privately indicated he will probably not vote for final passage of the bill.

Capitol Hill observers consider the Friday vote on the five year provision as the critical point in the bill's passage through the Senate. Having cleared that hurdle, they believe, Kennedy will have no trouble getting sufficient votes for final passage.

So far as the public has been informed, Long's sole purpose in seeing Kennedy has been to urge the chief executive to re - open Fort Polk, the vast Vernon Parish Army Base whose closing in 1958 inflicted a severe economic dislocation on the western Louisiana area.

Of all members of the Louisiana delegation, Long has been by far the optimistic about prospects the fort will be opened as a base for training reservists called to active duty as part of the Berlin crisis military preparations.

While some Louisiana delegation members in Congress are predicting flatly in private conversation that the opening of Fort Polk is imminent, there has been no confirmation of this from the White House or the Pentagon.

The Senate is expected to conclude work on the foreign aid bill by Wednesday or Thursday and the house will also take its version of the bill this week.

In the past, Long and Sen. Allen J. Ellender have an almost unbroken record of opposition to foreign aid bills. Ellender followed his previous position in voting for the loan - limitation amendment Friday.

Bodies Of Two Found In Cabin Cruiser Adrift

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP) — Coast Guardsmen [illegible] ies Saturday on a 22-foot cabin cruiser adrift six miles off [illegible] in Lake Ontario.

The dead were identified as Miss Carol Colton, 19, of nearby Irondequoit, and Richard Muir, 24, of Rochester, the owner of the cruiser, the Rawa II.

The cruiser was partially submerged when it was seen and reported by two fishermen.

Relatives said Muir and the Colton girl went for a ride and swim Friday night. When the girl failed to return, her father, Arthur, reported her missing.

Investigators said they had not determined what caused the semi-submerged condition of the boat.

The U. S. Weather Bureau here said there were high winds and scattered showers over some portions of the lake Friday night and early Saturday.

Republicans Set Regional Fall Meets

WASHINGTON (AP)—Republicans will hold four regional meetings covering every state this fall to study lessons learned in the 1960 election.

That election, GOP National Committee officers said Saturday, turned up organizational weaknesses, particularly in the big cities. One aim of the meetings, starting next month, will be to shore up creaky organization parts.

There has been some discussion of a full national committee meeting in the fall, but no date or place has been set. However, these regional sessions have been scheduled:

New England and Middle Atlantic States—Sept. 13-14 at Hartford, Conn.

Far Western states—Sept. 28-30 at Sun Valley, Idaho. This session will be tied in with the Western states' conference of 13 states, including Alaska and Hawaii.

Southern states—Nov. 17-18 at Atlanta.

Midwest states—Date and place yet to be set but will be held in November.

Participating in the regional meetings will be National Chairman William E. Miller, Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona and Rep. Bob Wilson of California, heads of the Senate and House Campaign Committes. Also, national committee members, state chairmen and vice chairmen, and women and Young Republican leaders.

Beside seeking ways to improve GOP vote getting in the large cities, a subject being studied by a subcommittee headed by Ohio State Chairman Ray C. Bliss, the regional meetings will plan programs to harness manpower at the precinct level to deal with particular segments of the voting public.

Albert B. Hermann, the party's director of political organization, said the meetings also will determine how the national, Senate and House committee organizations can be of service to the states in 1962 elections.

Bodies Of Two Found In Cabin Cruiser Adrift

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP) — Coast Guardsmen found two bodies Saturday on a 22-foot cabin cruiser adrift six miles offshore in Lake Ontario.

The dead were identified as Miss Carol Colton, 19, of nearby Irondequoit, and Richard Muir, 24, of Rochester, the owner of the cruiser, the Rawa II.

The cruiser was partially submerged when it was seen and reported by two fishermen.

Relatives said Muir and the Colton girl went for a ride and swim Friday night. When the girl failed to return, her father, Arthur, reported her missing.

Investigators said they had not determined what caused the semi-submerged condition of the boat.

The U. S. Weather Bureau here said there were high winds and scattered showers over some portions of the lake Friday night and early Saturday.

Republicans Set Regional Fall Meets

WASHINGTON (AP)—Republicans will hold four regional meetings covering every state this fall to study lessons learned in the 1960 election.

That election, GOP National Committee officers said Saturday, turned up organizational weaknesses, particularly in the big cities. One aim of the meetings, starting next month, will be to shore up creaky organization parts.

There has been some discussion of a full national committee meeting in the fall, but no date or place has been set. However, these regional sessions have been scheduled:

New England and Middle Atlantic States—Sept. 13-14 at Hartford, Conn.

Far Western states—Sept. 28-30 at Sun Valley, Idaho. This session will be tied in with the Western states' conference of 13 states, including Alaska and Hawaii.

Southern states—Nov. 17-18 at Atlanta.

Midwest states—Date and place yet to be set but will be held in November.

Participating in the regional meetings will be National Chairman William E. Miller, Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona and Rep. Bob Wilson of California, heads of the Senate and House Campaign Committes. Also, national committee members, state chairmen and vice chairmen, and women and Young Republican leaders.

Beside seeking ways to improve GOP vote getting in the large cities, a subject being studied by a subcommittee headed by Ohio State Chairman Ray C. Bliss, the regional meetings will plan programs to harness manpower at the precinct level to deal with particular segments of the voting public.

Albert B. Hermann, the party's director of political organization, said the meetings also will determine how the national, Senate and House committee organizations can be of service to the states in 1962 elections.

Jimmie Davis Will Speak At Colvin Fete

RUSTON (Special)—Gov. Jimmie H. Davis will be the guest speaker at the annual Colvin reunion at Unionville in Lincoln parish on Saturday, it was announced by Charles Ruel Colvin, president of the annual reunion.

Davis confirmed that he and his "Plainsmen" quartet will be on hand for the family gathering, an annual event since 1916, except during World War II.

Davis will speak at 10:30 a.m., and the Jimmie Davis quartet will entertain both before and after his talk.

Also scheduled for the day's events is the dedication of the Colvin Memorial Building, recently constructed at the original site of the family reunions.

The building will be used annually by the Colvin family for the reunion, and will also be made available for private, public and church gatherings.

The Colvins are descendents of John and Hannah Price Colvin who came to South Carolina from England in the 1700s. There are more than 2,000 direct descendents of the couple in Lincoln parish alone.

An actual cash outlay of well over $5,000 was made for the construction of the facility in addition to hundreds of dollars worth of materials and labor that were donated.

One of the original Colvin's sons, Daniel, came to Louisiana in 1809, and died there.

Another, son Andrew, died in South Carolina in 1849, but his wife Jemima Petrie Colvin, came with her 13 children to Mineral Springs Community north of Ruston. It is from this couple that most of the Colvins scattered across Louisiana and surrounding states are descended.

Mrs. Byrd, a native of San Diego, Calif., where she attended San Diego High School, now resides on Kendallwood Road in West Monroe.

Her professional career began as a hobby of raising dogs for her own pleasure. In the past nine years this hobby has grown into a profitable business.

Upon the announcement of her selection as Woman of the Year, she was presented a trophy inscribed with her name.

U.S. To Delay Recognition Of Outer Mongolia

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has decided not to set up diplomatic relations with Outer Mongolia at this time, the State Department announced.

The department said that, "In view of the existing world situation, it is in the best interests of the United States to suspend further exploration of that matter at this time."

Outer Mongolia lies between the Soviet Union and Red China in Asia. Its government is Communist.

The possibility of recognizing Outer Mongolia has been widely discussed within the Kennedy administration since it took office in January.

Those supporting the move contended that establishment of a U.S. Embassy in Outer Mongolia could provide a highly useful U.S. listening post deep inside Communist territory.

Some consideration had been given also to supporting a bid by Outer Mongolia for admission to the United Nations—a bid pushed by the Soviet Unoin but strongly opposed by the government of Nationalist China.

It was understood that President Kennedy made the basic decision not to extend recognition.

MOTIVE STILL PUZZLE

Police Probing Torture-Slaying

CHICAGO (AP) — The motive for the torture killing of 300-pound William (Action) Jackson, 40, a collector for money lenders, remained a puzzle Saturday.

An autopsy disclosed that Jackson, whose nearly nude body was found in the trunk of his Cadillac convertible Friday night, died of shock from severe beating on his chest and head. Rope burns around his waist and cuts and bruises told of torture before death.

James H. Gale, Chicago FBI chief, said that Jackson was indicted April 13 by a federal grand jury on charges of theft from an interstate shipment, but gave his name as William Murphy.

The larceny involved $70,000 worth of electrical appliances taken from the Burlington Railroad yards.

The victim's wife, Marian, said she had last seen him at 4 p.m., Monday, when she left for work as a waitress. She told police she had not been worried about his safety because he often disappeared for several days at a time.

Police theorized that Jackson's death may have been ordered because of his involvement in the federal prosecution. They said investigation indicated that Jackson had failed to turn over a substantial portion of his collections to his underworld loan shark employers.

One theory held that Jackson might have taken part in wholesale thefts in order to square his debts.

Other theories based upon a possible revenge motive in connection with one or more of five recent slayings which bore what police call the hoodlum stamp.

African Slain By Police In Rhodesia Clash

SALISBURY, Southern Rhodesia (AP)—Police fatally shot an African in a clash between a police patrol and a group armed with spears and axes, the government announced Saturday.

The announcement said the incident took place Friday in Northern Rhodesia. It added that another African shot by police in a skirmish last week had died.

The two cases raised the death list to seven since African nationalists launched a protest movement eight days ago against a new constitution. The announcement also said 11 schools in the Chinsali District had been burned and two bridges wrecked.

U.S. To Delay Recognition Of Outer Mongolia

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has decided not to set up diplomatic relations with Outer Mongolia at this time, the State Department announced.

The department said that, "In view of the existing world situation, it is in the best interests of the United States to suspend further exploration of that matter at this time."

Outer Mongolia lies between the Soviet Union and Red China in Asia. Its government is Communist.

The possibility of recognizing Outer Mongolia has been widely discussed within the Kennedy administration since it took office in January.

Those supporting the move contended that establishment of a U.S. Embassy in Outer Mongolia could provide a highly useful U.S. listening post deep inside Communist territory.

Some consideration had been given also to supporting a bid by Outer Mongolia for admission to the United Nations—a bid pushed by the Soviet Unoin but strongly opposed by the government of Nationalist China.

It was understood that President Kennedy made the basic decision not to extend recognition.

MOTIVE STILL PUZZLE

Police Probing Torture-Slaying

CHICAGO (AP) — The motive for the torture killing of 300-pound William (Action) Jackson, 40, a collector for money lenders, remained a puzzle Saturday.

An autopsy disclosed that Jackson, whose nearly nude body was found in the trunk of his Cadillac convertible Friday night, died of shock from severe beating on his chest and head. Rope burns around his waist and cuts and bruises told of torture before death.

James H. Gale, Chicago FBI chief, said that Jackson was indited April 13 by a federal grand jury on charges of theft from an interstate shipment, but gave his name as William Murphy.

The larceny involved $70,000 worth of electrical appliances taken from the Burlington Railroad yards.

The victim's wife, Marian, said she had last seen him at 4 p.m., Monday, when she left for work as a waitress. She told police she had not been worried about his safety because he often disappeared for several days at a time.

Police theorized that Jackson's death may have been ordered because of his involvement in the federal prosecution. They said investigation indicated that Jackson had failed to turn over a substantial portion of his collections to his underworld loan shark employers.

One theory held that Jackson might have taken part in wholesale thefts in order to square his debts.

Other theories based upon a possible revenge motive in connection with one or more of five recent slayings which bore what police call the hoodlum stamp.

TSHOMBE HURLS CHARGES

ELISABETHVILLE, Katanga (AP)—President Moise Tshombe accused the Antoine Gizenga regime in Stanleyville Saturday of having received arms and ammunition from the United Arab Republic.

Tshombe said he had advised the United Nations the arms arrived in Stanleyville in four planeloads Aug. 5, and were worth $530,000.

Pick Judges For Caldwell Flower Show

COLUMBIA (Special) — Mrs. Guy H. Kincaid, Winnsboro, Mrs. K. R. Young, Monroe, and Mrs. John P. Lewis, West Monroe, will judge the flower show division of the Caldwell Parish Library Art Festival, Oct. 14 at the Community Center here.

The 1961 Festival will introduce floral arrangements as an added attraction to art displays, handicrafts, and noted artists and speakers.

Mrs. Kincaid, chairman, has just completed two years as president of the Fifth District Council of National Accredited Judges.

To maintain her judges' certificate she displays floral arrangements in the Garden Center in Monroe, the Franklin Parish Library in Winnsboro, and for civic events.

Mrs. Young is a housewife who grows flowers for relaxation and pleasure, a board member of the State Council of Judges, and an active member of the Fifth District Judges Council.

Mrs. Lewis is employed by the Ouachita Parish Public Library in the West Monroe Branch as assistant to the librarian. She displays floral arrangements interpreting book titles.

All three are nationally accredited flower show judges, civic leaders in their communities, and frequent exhibiters and judges for area shows.

The judges invited any club or individual to exhibit at the 1961 Art Festival, keeping in mind the Civil War Centennial Theme and the use of flowers suitable for outdoor displays.

Found In Area Fields

Early Weapons

In this age of guided missiles and atomic weapons, the remains of primitive weapons once used by the Indians are being found in fields around the area.

In the past 20 years, Davis M. Baker, 49, of Douglas, near Choudrant, has collected more than 200 Indian arrowheads, in addition to tomahawk stones, grinding implements and other early objects.

The objects were collected at random by Baker, as he made his rounds as a conservation engineering technician with the Soil Conservation Service.

ASSIGNMENTS

At present he is assigned to the West Monroe work unit, but in the past 27 years he has served with units at Ruston and Calhoun.

A number of different types of stone and many patterns are present in the assortment of arrowheads and other remains of the early era.

The arrowheads range from tiny bird - shot type to larger sizes, but said Baker, "All these arrows were found near an abundance of water. Certainly the Indians camped near good, live water and game."

He continued, "A peculiarity about the collection, is that most of the small arrowheads were found in Jackson Parish on the banks of Choudrant Creek. The larger points were picked up at random in Lincoln, Jackson, Union and Ouachita parishes."

Some of the flintstone arrowheads had edges serrated like saw teeth, which Baker said was to facilitate penetration of an object and hold in place more firmly.

MANY TYPES

The arrowheads were made from many different types of stones. The conservationist said there were at least a dozen different kinds of hard stones not native to this area among the specimens.

He said probably these were left behind by Indians passing through the area, or were brought in by traders from Arkansas and other states.

Some of the arrowheads are of an almost translucent type of flintstone, others are of red and pink flint, and smooth finish yellow stone. The colors range from almost black to white.

The smallest arrowhead in the collection is about one - half inch by one - half inch wide at the broadest point. The tip of this small serrated stone is almost needle sharp.

Another arrowhead is 2½ inches by 1½ inches, and a larger one is 3½ by 1¼ inches.

UNUSUAL SHAPE

Another stone of unusual shape, which looks like a child's ankle and foot, "is actually some kind of grinding stone," Baker said. He found it about three miles north of Choudrant.

The largest tomahawk head in his collection is eight inches long and four inches wide and is of native red rock. It was found on a farm at Downsville.

A smaller tomahawk stone is five inches by 3¼ inches. It's a skillfully fashioned weapon of a white stone not common to this area. It has a fairly thin huing edge.

A very heavy, almost metallic, red - iron hued grinding stone in the collection, which was picked up on a farm near Sibley, is 11 by 3½ by 1½ inches in size. Baker said the stone is not native to this area.

Baker displayed still another stone hollowed in the center as if by the attrition of extensive grinding. A large egg - shaped stone in the collection could be fitted snuggly into the hollow as if it had been fashioned as a grinding instrument to be used with it.

Asked how he developed the hobby of collecting stones and arrowheads, Baker said, "They are of historic interest. After you've picked up two or three your interest grows and you're a collector."

OFFER

The conservation engineering technician said, "If any school students or teachers engaged in a study of local Indian tribes would like to come by the office and look at this collection, they will be welcome."

The collection is kept at the Soil Conservation Office in the Agriculture Building in West Monroe.

Baker has been engaged in soil conservation work since October 4, 1934. He started out at Ruston, then transferred to Calhoun in 1941,. He was transferred to West Monroe when the work unit was moved there in May, 1951.

When he started in this type of work, the Soil Conservation Service had not been organized. Its predecessor was the Soil Erosion Experimental Area.

Baker is married, has three boys and one girl. One son is a mechanic, another is attending Louisiana Tech. The smallest is five years old. His daughter will graduate from Choudrant High School this year.

Baker is a member of the Douglas Methodist Church, is a Bible class teacher, chairman of the official board, a trustee, and serves on several church committees.

His experience in soil and water conservation dates from the day of the horse and mule to the present high degree of mechanization.

"My early farm experience was all with horses," he explained.

In describing the value of conservation work, he said, "There's no way to estimate in acres the amount of land saved through conservation. We know there's been a big improvement out in the hills since we got it covered with vegetation."

Continuing, he said, "The hills used to erode badly when there was extensive cultivation there. The modern trend is to plant most of this land back to pasture and timber.

"I guess I've helped run hundreds of miles of terraces which were used in the early days to save hill land from eroding. Now that's about a thing of the past, and work is moving toward modern application of land leveling and drainage. Of course, there's still considerable interest in building lakes and ponds."

'The Perfect Hobby'

EDITOR'S NOTE—The Fishermen have had their say, the sailors, the gardeners, the birdwatchers. As the final article in a summer series on hobbies, here's the testimonial of a man who claims the most unsung hobby of all—yet the very oldest. Readers are kindly requested not to begin its practice until they finish the paper.

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
Associated Press Writer

The more I see of my fellow man at rest and at play, the more I become convinced that mine is the perfect hobby.

Its negative values alone commend it to the earnest consideration of anyone seeking surcease from the woes of daily existence.

I don't stand hip deep in an icy stream trying to unsnarl a reel of soggy line in order to effect the demise of a fish that can be obtained frozen and eviscerated at any neighborhood supermarket.

NO SCAMPERING

I don't scamper like a demented orangutan about the rigging of a fragile craft that by any rights of reason should be as extinct as the Roman trireme and the Viking long boat.

I don't rise up early to pursue a ball of any size with club, cue, bat or racquet, and I don't labor late into the night over a darkroom sink, a ceramics kiln, a hand loom, a spinning wheel, a metal lathe, a model railway layout or a do-it-yourself embalming kit.

I don't collect stamps, old coins, first editions, theater programs, Reo hubcaps, Confederate minnie balls or hotel towels. I don't watch birds or stars or bees or trees.

I don't play bridge. I don't play lacrosse. I don't play the horses.

I don't plant 'taters, and I don't plant cotton. No, nor peonies, begonias nor marigolds either.

I just plant myself in a chair (or better still on a couch or a bed) and do nothing. Absolutely nothing. Glorious, wonderful, delectable, enviable nothing.

There is nothing in the world like doing nothing. Nothing is quite so relaxing, quite so engrossing, quite so satisfying as doing nothing, absolutely nothing, for hours on end.

OLDEST HOBBY

The oldest hobby in the world ("and on the seventh day, God rested"), mine is the only one that doesn't cost a cent, doesn't require a professional instructor or a fancy hat, and doesn't depend for its orderly execution on the vagaries of the weather, the availability of partners or accommodations, or the density of local traffic.

I don't have to wait in line to do nothing. I don't even have to wait for the weekend or summer vacation. As long as the boss thinks I m doing something (deception adds spice to the battle), I can practice my favorite hobby at all sorts of odd moments during the day, so much so that it has taken me more than a month to get around to doing something about this article on the glories of doing nothing.

That's the way it is with doing nothing. You have to be firm, you have to really set your mind to it, or sooner or later someone will suggest doing something, which breaks the spell.

TOTAL LACK

The true do-nothing perfectionist achieves in time the inner serenity and the outward torpor of a coral reef lying dormant in a lazy lagoon. His total lack of ambition, his utter unwillingness to bestir himself for any reason would make a Tibetan lama fidgety.

The wonderful thing about doing nothing, complete and all pervading nothing, is that it gives you all the time in the world to think about what you always wanted to do. Things like writing the great American novel, cleaning out the roof gutters, translating Horace's "Ars Poetica" from the original Latin, reading the complete works of Ford Maddox Ford, whittling a totem pole for the front lawn, writing a nasty letter to your congressman.

Since your rigid dedication to complete nothingness never permits you to do any of these things, you are that much ahead of yourself in free time, time that might have been squandered doing something.

Cause For Rejoicing

EDITOR'S NOTE — Everywhere in the world young boys run and jump and parents take their play for granted. But in a home near Athens, Greece, the vigorous activity of a 6-year-old causes constant rejoicing. There a father and mother will forever be grateful to a surgeon and an American newsman.

By PHIL DOPOULOS

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — On a nice day, you'll find Stellakis Parthenopoulos playing in the yard, whooping it up and chasing a pair of frisky lambs.

Then company comes and the 6-year-old lad scrambles back into the house to show off three prize possessions: a toy from Associated Press reporter John O. B. Wallace, a photograph of himself with Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, taken at the White House, and a picture of the late Dr. Aaron Gorelik.

Stellakis' mother, Calliope Parthenopoulos, looks at her boisterous, dark-eyed son and says, indicating Gorelik's picture, "without that fine doctor who permitted my child to live and play normally, our house would not be a happy one."

NOT HAPPY

Two years ago, the house was far from happy. The Parthenopoulos' family doctor had diagnosed a congenital heart defect in Stellakis, causing increasing strain. The boy needed a delicate heart operation of a kind not performed in their country.

In their appeals for help, the Parthenopoulos' turned to Wallace. The New York newsman had undergone similar heart surgery by Dr. Gorelik. It was performed under local anesthetic, Wallace remaining conscious throughout, and afterward he wrote a story about it which was widely printed.

That's how the Parthenopoulos' heard about him. Wallace helped arrange the boy's trip to the United States, where he was operated on by Dr. Gorelik.

After the successful surgery, Stellakis and his mother visited President Eisenhower before returning to Greece.

Today the whole town of Nikala, a suburb of Athens, marvels at the change in Stellakis. His family doctor, Dr. Jordanis Hadjiannastasiou, says "there's no doubt that Stellakis would have died if he attempted to live a normal life. Or he would have remained handicapped for the rest of his life."

AMBITION

Just now the family is preparing for September. Mrs. Parthenopoulos says Stellakis will begin school. He's getting anxious to start learning how to read and write.

Stellakis says "I want to become an architect. I want to construct buildings like I saw when I was in the United States."

Discipline is no problem with their now-active child, his parents say. All Mrs. Parthenopoulos has to tell him is, "I'll write Mr. Wallace and tell him of your bad behavior." Stellakis, she says, "greatly respects Mr. Wallace and I will always remember him in my heart. Mr. Wallace writes to us often and Dr. Hadjiannastasiou translates all his letters."

Stellakis' father, Pantellis, is an iron worker with a monthly income of about $47. Recalling his son's illness, he says, "The transportation costs alone would have taken me a lifetime to repay. We could never have managed to pay for such an operation."

In his letter to Wallace, Pantellis wrote: "Do you think that the heart of a child has to stop because his father has no money to pay for an operation?"

Wallace didn't think so. "It's almost," he said at the time, "as if I feel responsible for that boy's life."

He spent a busy three months helping to raise money and arranging for the trip. Dr. Gorelik volunteered to perform the surgery without fee. Medical laboratories donated their services, and many individuals chipped in with money.

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — On a nice day, you'll find Stellakis Parthenopoulos playing in the yard, whooping it up and chasing a pair of frisky lambs.

Then company comes and the 6-year-old lad scrambles back into the house to show off three prize possessions: a toy from Associated Press reporter John O. B. Wallace, a photograph of himself with Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, taken at the White House, and a picture of the late Dr. Aaron Gorelik.

Stellakis' mother, Calliope Parthenopoulos, looks at her boisterous, dark-eyed son and says, indicating Gorelik's picture, "without that fine doctor who permitted my child to live and play normally, our house would not be a happy one."

NOT HAPPY

Two years ago, the house was far from happy. The Parthenopoulos' family doctor had diagnosed a congenital heart defect in Stellakis, causing increasing strain. The boy needed a delicate heart operation of a kind not performed in their country.

In their appeals for help, the Parthenopoulos' turned to Wallace. The New York newsman had undergone similar heart surgery by Dr. Gorelik. It was performed under local anesthetic, Wallace remaining conscious throughout, and afterward he wrote a story about it which was widely printed.

That's how the Parthenopoulos' heard about him. Wallace helped arrange the boy's trip to the United States, where he was operated on by Dr. Gorelik.

After the successful surgery, Stellakis and his mother visited President Eisenhower before returning to Greece.

Today the whole town of Nikala, a suburb of Athens, marvels at the change in Stellakis. His family doctor, Dr. Jordanis Hadjiannastasiou, says "there's no doubt that Stellakis would have died if he attempted to live a normal life. Or he would have remained handicapped for the rest of his life."

AMBITION

Just now the family is preparing for September. Mrs. Parthenopoulos says Stellakis will begin school. He's getting anxious to start learning how to read and write.

Stellakis says "I want to become an architect. I want to construct buildings like I saw when I was in the United States."

Discipline is no problem with their now-active child, his parents say. All Mrs. Parthenopoulos has to tell him is, "I'll write Mr. Wallace and tell him of your bad behavior." Stellakis, she says, "greatly respects Mr. Wallace and I will always remember him in my heart. Mr. Wallace writes to us often and Dr. Hadjiannastasiou translates all his letters."

Stellakis' father, Pantellis, is an iron worker with a monthly income of about $47. Recalling his son's illness, he says, "The transportation costs alone would have taken me a lifetime to repay. We could never have managed to pay for such an operation."

In his letter to Wallace, Pantellis wrote: "Do you think that the heart of a child has to stop because his father has no money to pay for an operation?"

Wallace didn't think so. "It's almost," he said at the time, "as if I feel responsible for that boy's life."

He spent a busy three months helping to raise money and arranging for the trip. Dr. Gorelik volunteered to perform the surgery without fee. Medical laboratories donated their services, and many individuals chipped in with money.

Found In Area Fields

Early Weapons

In this age of guided missiles and atomic weapons, the remains of primitive weapons once used by the Indians are being found in fields around the area.

In the past 20 years, Davis M. Baker, 49, of Douglas, near Choudrant, has collected more than 200 Indian arrowheads, in addition to tomahawk stones, grinding implements and other early objects.

The objects were collected at random by Baker, as he made his rounds as a conservation engineering technician with the Soil Conservation Service.

ASSIGNMENTS

At present he is assigned to the West Monroe work unit, but in the last 27 years he has served with units at Ruston and Calhoun.

A number of different types of stone and many patterns are present in the assortment of arrowheads and other remains of the early era.

The arrowheads range from tiny bird - shot type to larger sizes, but said Baker, "All these arrows were found near an abundance of water. Certainly the Indians camped near good, live water and game."

He continued, "A peculiarity about the collection, is that most of the small arrowheads were found in Jackson Parish on the banks of Choudrant Creek. The larger points were picked up at random in Lincoln, Jackson, Union and Ouachita parishes."

Some of the flintstone arrowheads had edges serrated like saw teeth, which Baker said was to facilitate penetration of an object and hold in place more firmly.

MANY TYPES

The arrowheads were made from many different types of stones. The conservationist said there were at least a dozen different kinds of hard stones not native to this area among the specimens.

He said probably these were left behind by Indians passing through the area, or were brought in by traders from Arkansas and other states.

Some of the arrowheads are of an almost translucent type of flintstone, others are of red and pink flint, and smooth finish yellow stone. The colors range from almost black to white.

The smallest arrowhead in the collection is about one - half inch by one - half inch wide at the broadest point. The tip of this small serrated stone is almost needle sharp.

Another arrowhead is 2½ inches by 1½ inches, and a larger one is 3½ by 1¼ inches.

UNUSUAL SHAPE

Another stone of unusual shape, which looks like a child's ankle and foot, "is actually some kind of grinding stone," Baker said. He found it about three miles north of Choudrant.

The largest tomahawk head in his collection is eight inches long and four inches wide and is of native red rock. It was found on a farm at Downsville.

A smaller tomahawk stone is five inches by 3¼ inches. It's a skillfully fashioned weapon of a white stone not common to this area. It has a fairly thin huing edge.

A very heavy, almost metallic, red - iron hued grinding stone in the collection, which was picked up on a farm near Sibley, is 11 by 3½ by 1½ inches in size. Baker said the stone is not native to this area.

Baker displayed still another stone hollowed in the center as if by the attrition of extensive grinding. A large egg - shaped stone in the collection could be fitted snuggly into the hollow as if it had been fashioned as a grinding instrument to be used with it.

Asked how he developed the hobby of collecting stones and arrowheads, Baker said, "They are of historic interest. After you've picked up two or three your interest grows and you're a collector."

OFFER

The conservation engineering technician said, "If any school students or teachers engaged in a study of local Indian tribes would like to come by the office and look at this collection, they will be welcome."

The collection is kept at the Soil Conservation Office in the Agriculture Building in West Monroe.

Baker has been engaged in soil conservation work since October 4, 1934. He started out at Ruston, then transferred to Calhoun in 1941,. He was transferred to West Monroe when the work unit was moved there in May, 1951.

When he started in this type of work, the Soil Conservation Service had not been organized. Its predecessor was the Soil Erosion Experimental Area.

Baker is married, has three boys and one girl. One son is a mechanic, another is attending Louisiana Tech. The smallest is five years old. His daughter will graduate from Choudrant High School this year.

Baker is a member of the Douglas Methodist Church, is a Bible class teacher, chairman of the official board, a trustee, and serves on several church committees.

His experience in soil and water conservation dates from the day of the horse and mule to the present high degree of mechanization.

"My early farm experience was all with horses," he explained.

In describing the value of conservation work, he said, "There's no way to estimate in acres the amount of land saved through conservation. We know there's been a big improvement out in the hills since we got it covered with vegetation."

Continuing, he said, "The hills used to erode badly when there was extensive cultivation there. The modern trend is to plant most of this land back to pasture and timber.

"I guess I've helped run hundreds of miles of terraces which were used in the early days to save hill land from eroding. Now that's about a thing of the past, and work is moving toward modern application of land leveling and drainage. Of course, there's still considerable interest in building lakes and ponds."

'The Perfect Hobby'

EDITOR'S NOTE—The Fishermen have had their say, the sailors, the gardeners, the birdwatchers. As the final article in a summer series on hobbies, here's the testimonial of a man who claims the most unsung hobby of all—yet the very oldest. Readers are kindly requested not to begin its practice until they finish the paper.

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
Associated Press Writer

The more I see of my fellow man at rest and at play, the more I become convinced that mine is the perfect hobby.

Its negative values alone commend it to the earnest consideration of anyone seeking surcease from the woes of daily existence.

I don't stand hip deep in an icy stream trying to unsnarl a reel of soggy line in order to effect the demise of a fish that can be obtained frozen and eviscerated at any neighborhood supermarket.

NO SCAMPERING

I don't scamper like a demented orangutan about the rigging of a fragile craft that by any rights of reason should be as extinct as the Roman trireme and the Viking long boat.

I don't rise up early to pursue a ball of any size with club, cue, bat or racquet, and I don't labor late into the night over a darkroom sink, a ceramics kiln, a hand loom, a spinning wheel, a metal lathe, a model railway layout or a do-it-yourself embalming kit.

I don't collect stamps, old coins, first editions, theater programs, Reo hubcaps, Confederate minnie balls or hotel towels. I don't watch birds or stars or bees or trees.

I don't play bridge. I don't play lacrosse. I don't play the horses.

I don't plant 'taters, and I don't plant cotton. No, nor peonies, begonias nor marigolds either.

I just plant myself in a chair (or better still on a couch or a bed) and do nothing. Absolutely nothing. Glorious, wonderful, delectable, enviable nothing.

There is nothing in the world like doing nothing. Nothing is quite so relaxing, quite so engrossing, quite so satisfying as doing nothing, absolutely nothing, for hours on end.

OLDEST HOBBY

The oldest hobby in the world ("and on the seventh day, God rested"), mine is the only one that doesn't cost a cent, doesn't require a professional instructor or a fancy hat, and doesn't depend for its orderly execution on the vagaries of the weather, the availability of partners or accommodations, or the density of local traffic.

I don't have to wait in line to do nothing. I don't even have to wait for the weekend or summer vacation. As long as the boss thinks I m doing something (deception adds spice to the battle), I can practice my favorite hobby at all sorts of odd moments during the day, so much so that it has taken me more than a month to get around to doing something about this article on the glories of doing nothing.

That's the way it is with doing nothing. You have to be firm, you have to really set your mind to it, or sooner or later someone will suggest doing something, which breaks the spell.

TOTAL LACK

The true do-nothing perfectionist achieves in time the inner serenity and the outward torpor of a coral reef lying dormant in a lazy lagoon. His total lack of ambition, his utter unwillingness to bestir himself for any reason would make a Tibetan lama fidgety.

The wonderful thing about doing nothing, complete and all pervading nothing, is that it gives you all the time in the world to think about what you always wanted to do. Things like writing the great American novel, cleaning out the roof gutters, translating Horace's "Ars Poetica" from the original Latin, reading the complete works of Ford Maddox Ford, whittling a totem pole for the front lawn, writing a nasty letter to your congressman.

Since your rigid dedication to complete nothingness never permits you to do any of these things, you are that much ahead of yourself in free time, time that might have been squandered doing something.

Fulbright's New Job

Senator William J. Fulbright, D., Ark., must have seen the handwriting on the wall. He must expect that when he comes up for election next year he will be defeated. He must be busy currying for New Frontier favor in the hope of getting some sort of federal job.

Otherwise, there can be no reason why a man from a southern state, supposedly in full possession of his senses, should go far out on a limb for the radical-liberal cause.

Fulbright's remark that the Western allies might well negotiate with Premier Nikita Khrushchev of Russia on some way to stop the mass exodus of East Germans by way of West Berlin and his smear attack on United States military leaders and his now infamous memorandum calling for muzzling outspoken military personnel are direct affronts to the people of his state, who elected him, to the south in general and to anyone in these good United States of ours who is not a radical-liberal, who believes in freedom of speech and who does not believe in either appeasing or collaborating with the Reds.

We know full well that Fulbright's remarks won't offend Adlai Stevenson, whose words and actions make it difficult to tell whether he likes the United States or Russia better and who seems to have a definite preference for the Russian form of government and Russian performances. Fulbright has now put himself in Stevenson's class.

Such actions as these have turned the stomachs of some of the northern papers as well as those in the south. Commenting on this in an editorial, the New York Daily News said:

"Senator W. J. Fulbright on a TV show July 30 remarked that the Western allies might well negotiate with Khrushchev on some way to stop the mass exodus of East Germans from their Red hell via West Berlin.

"Thus the Arkansas Democrat and chairman of the senate foreign relations committee proposes to give comfort and aid to slave-driver Khrushchev, and to cancel the best single advertisement the free world has of the horrors of communism contrasted with the blessings of freedom.

"We hope Fulbright's fellow Arkansans will remember this and numerous other appeasement gestures on his part when he tries for election next year."

It is obvious that Fulbright has abandoned his job of supporting the wishes of his constituents. It is plain that his views on stifling American free expression and his softness toward the communists constitute a real danger to the safety of this country. It is evident that he is trying to carry the ball for the New Frontier in the hope of getting some diplomatic position. The trouble is, he is running out of bounds so often even on the New Frontier field that he is failing to advance the ball.

Fulbright has joined Stevenson and ex-huckster Chester Bowles in taking the door against communism off its hinges and out of the way "so the Reds won't batter it down."

Fulbright will be practically compelled to run for re - election when his term expires so he will be a "lame duck" senator and therefore in line for some sort of government handout.

At least, the Arkansas voters will have a chance to tell him they are through with him.

Teaching Communism

A leading southern newspaper has come out in favor of teaching communism in the high schools, in the belief that fore-knowledge will give forewarning and that this is the best way to defeat the communist ideology.

It has this to say:

"Only when we faced the cold reality and ripped the curtain of secrecy from cancer, tuberculosis, mental illness and venereal disease did we begin to curb and control those ancient scourges.

"Frank and honest education was the weapon that turned the tide.

"Now we are confronted by a sinister ideological scourge whose mission is to destroy the spirit of man even as physical ailments once gnawed away the vitals of his body. Again education is the significant and effective weapon to throttle this pandemic communism which pollutes and corrupts the soul of man.

"It is good, then, that the nation's educators have gone on record as favoring the teaching of communism to high school students. that they may recognize it in its most insidious and camouflaged forms, and build up a resistance against its sinister incursions.

"Ignorance is the perfect breeding grounds for virus.

"By all means, let us teach communism, and by all means let us be sure that we teach it for the cruel, dishonest, deceptive vice-virus that it is."

What is said here may be partly true but there are many dangers to be considered. One is that we would have to be on guard constantly to see that those teaching communism did not, themselves, fall for its philosophy and teach it favorably, rather than ufavorably, to the students. Another is that overemphasis on this subject might cause the students to give it undue consideration, to study it outside of class and to become converted to its ideology.

It is well known that those who delve too deeply into many religions and who begin to put the study of theology ahead of the practice of faith are likely to lose the close touch that is so essential to their calling.

The mind of man is not comprehensive enough to probe deeply into all things and if he attempts to understand all things he becomes so broad that he has no depth.

We still need most of all to teach the advantages of the republican or democratic form of government, or a combination of the two, which must inevitably result in a country which believes in the theory of "of the people, by the people and for the people."

Any teaching of any other form of government should be minor compared to that of teaching the fundamental American form of government. We need to teach that many things are bad in communism and in some other forms of government and to show how the fundamental American form of government not only is more desirable for those who wish to maintain their individual freedom but is more conclusive to sociological, scientific, economic and spiritual advancement than any other form of government.

We don't really have time in this life to teach people the full details of all the things that are bad. What we need to do is to teach them the things that are good and how to avoid the things we know are bad.

Teaching the evil effects of communism as a part of the general education on world government undoubtedly would be good. To devote a full subject to the teaching of communism not only would be a waste of time but would be dangerous.

Trade And Tariff Battle

First Major Struggle Since Passage Of Smoot--Hawley Bill In 1930 Certain In Congress In January

An all - out fight over trade and tariff policies, the first since 1930 when the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill was passed, is a certainty in the session of Congress beginning in January.

The battle will be joined over the renewal, or replacement, of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act, originally enacted in the early New Deal days.

Until recently it has been expected that the Kennedy Administration would merely ask for a renewal of the Agreements, which were proposed by Secretary of State Cordell Hull and enacted in 1934.

Now the Administration is leaning to a proposal that the Trade Agreements Act be scrapped and an entirely new law passed. President Kennedy has decided on the appointment of Howard C. Petersen, president of the Fidelity-Philadelphia Trust Co., as a special assistant, to work on the question of what the new program should include.

Petersen has been told to bring the various proposals together and to prepare the public for a battle that will be hotter than the foreign aid fight now in progress in Congress. Congressional leaders say that Petersen had really been given a man-size job. They think a renewal of the Trade Agreements Act might be won after a hard fight, but take a dim view of the success of a fight for an entirely new law.

There is a Congressional belief that the President may ask for even broader power over tariff matters in the proposed new law than he has under the Trade Agreements Act. Petersen holds closely similar views to George Ball, Undersecretary of State for Economic Affairs, on tariff and trade matters. Ball, a former law partner of Adlai Stevenson, is the pet dislike of some industries, notably textiles.

In the forefront of the fight against renewal of the Reciprocal Trade Act has been the textile industry, which has been telling Congress of numerous factory failures and threatened chronic unemployment as the result of a deluge of imports from low-wage countries.

The Administration has sought to muffle the clamor by a provisional 16-country agreement recently reached at Geneva for an experimental quota system. The attitude of the textile industry is that the agreement will perhaps alleviate to some degree some of the problems of the industry, but it will not prevent the continuing liquidation of the American textile industry.

The lack of enthusiasm for the plan in the textile industry is partly due to the fact that such a program is virtually impossible to police and that the State Department would be left free to make deals with low - wage foreign countries.

Equally as hard hit as the textile industry has been the glass industry. Glass, of course, is not as far-flung an industry as textiles. West Virginia is the leading producer of glass. Of the 14 plants accounting for virtually all the United States production of sheet glass, 4 are located in West Virginia, 2 each in Oklahoma and Pennsylvania, and one each in Arkansas, Louisiana, Tennessee, Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois. Some of them have closed down.

American glass workers receive, when working, $4 per hour. The average glass worker in Japan is paid an average of 33½ cents per hour. In addition to the lower wage-rates, ocean freight rates are cheaper than domestic freight rates. It costs 26 cents less per hundredweight to ship glass from Japan to San Francisco than it costs to ship it from Henryetta, Oklahoma, to San Francisco. It costs 6 cents per hundredweight less to ship glass from Liverpool, England, to Miami, Fla., than it costs to ship from Clarksburg, W. Va., to Miami.

On May 17, after a hearing the Tariff Commission unanimously found that sheet glass is being imported into the United States in such increased quantities that the "peril point" has been reached insofar as the survival of the domestic glass industry is concerned.

The Commission recommended prompt application of a higher tariff. The recommendation went to President Kennedy, who refused to put it into effect, sending it back to the Commission, and asking for a supplemental report on certain technical economic questions.

Textile and glass are only two of the many industries where opposition to extension of the Reciprocal Trade agreements is building up.

Plan For Peace

Proposal For Europe Might Be Different Enough To Work

There has been offered to me, by a government official who is extraordinarily knowledgeable and passionately anonymous, a European peace plan which is sufficiently different from most — in that it might work.

I write European rather than German, although the plan solely rests upon German soil. It envisions what my friend calls a "scientific Switzerland" in Central Germany, although such analogies are always faulty and frequently misleading.

My own convictions are that "peace" is a myth word, that we are universally at war with communism, that our generation or the next will have to shoot it out, and that there is a very good argument for do-it-now.

Still, this is a plan which concedes nothing and has some positive gains for our side. Its very first poposition is that we get the United Nations out of New York and relocate it in a united Berlin. This city, as we should more often remind ourselves, is the center and symbol of German aggression which lashed out at its nethers in 1864, 1866, 1870, 1914, 1939. Germany's aggressive nature is to this day a matter of genuine concern in east and west Europe. These, as well as its geographical location, its definite charm and superb transportation systems by land, air and sea, make Berlin a logical UN site.

The advantages to our side are that we would get the UN off American soil, get our UN ambassadors out of the Waldorf Astoria and possibly deemphasize, I would hope, our daft obsession with every nation that emits a growing pain or suffers from the aching joints of old age. If the UN capital never returned to the USA, that would be soon enough. And the prosperity which its new construction and free - spending delegates would bring to East Berlin would remove an unnecessary slum and eyesore.

But the plan, while benefitting the USA and the West, is remarkable in that it offers Khrushchev some harmless attractions, too. He, like many Americans, would like to have the UN moved. He would welcome the economic uplift in the Soviet sector, which was still a shambles when I last looked. Finally, if Berlin were made a capital city, like Washington, it could be run by a commission government. The bothersome matter of whether or not the city would be "free" could be circumvented. Berliners, like Washingtonians, could vote in national elections, and could occasionally vote on bond issues and the like — but as a UN capital it would not have self-rule.

This much of the plan merely leads into the rest of it. Most ideas of "neutralizing" or "demilitarizing" Germany are rejectable because of their sterility. But it would be something quite different if Germany were rearmed as the garrison of a small UN standing force.

I never believed in UN police work until I visited Israel and saw the white - painted jeeps scooting to trouble spots and stopping trouble before it could grow. I see no reason why some of the old Prussian - type drillmasters whom I've met in Germany couldn't organize a division or two of unemployed Africans, Asians and Latin Americans to act as security guards and as flying riot - squads which would not be permitted, however, to interfere with any nation's sovereignty.

But the main body of the peace plan calls for an establishment in such East German cities as Leipzig, Erfurt, Weimar, Jena, Magdeburg and Dresden of a Russo - American scientific research center. I am not talking about "disarmament." Both nations could and would go on making bombs. They could go to war at will. The "partnership" in research would be on a while-it-works basis and could be instantaneously dissolved.

The plan is not utopian, but in the autumn of 1959 there was a series of joint press conferences which suggest that it might be feasible. The press conferences were held by our then Atomic Energy Commission Chairman, John A. McCone, and his somewhat opposite number from Russia, Prof. Vasily S. Emelyanov, in charge of non - military atomic research in the USSR.

Out of the conferences, the records of which I have reread, came some ideas which will be offered in another column.

Views Of Our Readers

Pressure Relentless

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

Day by day and week by week the relentless pressure continues, and I might say grows, for public acceptance of federal aid to education. To my mind, submission to federal aid to education would be a better way to put it.

This is made painfully clear in two letters to the editor in your August 6th Morning World. In one of the letters Mrs. Thomas Williamson of Winnsboro says she HOPES that we will be ALLOWED to continue to handle education on a local basis. (Caps of words hope and allowed are the writers) Miss Rowena Ramage of Winnsboro frankly expresses the fear, and justifiably so, that federal aid will be FORCED upon us.

No more dangerous legislation has come before Congress in many a year.

Writes To Passman

West Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

Dear Mr. Passman,

Thank you for your letter of July 17 in which you acknowledge receipt of mine of July 13 concerning the conference with West Monroe folks about the West Monroe post office .

The present rented space confined to a down town spot of ground without adequate parking space or sufficient square foot space within needed for normal working conditions of its excellent personnel, all give pause to the folks around here for the consideration of Washington toward a town with a spread of city and suburban population of some thirty odd thousand as compared with the city of Monroe with a city and suburban population of some sixty odd thousand. You will find that populations served by each post office approximately correct.

The disparity in floor space considered percentagewise between the two cities is obviously to the disadvantage of the west side area, with twice the people served on the East side area, as you know, this disparity is obvious. I am told floor space served on the east side area is as much as four times that of the west side area. The difficulty of being placed in line for a post-office building and the securing adequate floor space apparently out, quite naturally lets us complain a little bit.

This is not complaint, Mr. Passman, directed at you but to you and is, as you know by being a resident of Monroe, our sister city, an evaluation of local conditions that is difficult to disprove. I know that comparisons are considered odious, Mr. Passman, but it is often a cliche that may be used with emphasis and it is this sort of emphasis we wish to present.

It is surprising to note from you that congressman McKenzie was toying with us in presenting a commitment in writing to us for a $90.000 building to be used as a branch. We refused. We secured freedom July 1, 1947. However, it did not come from congressional sources. It came about through the instrumentality of our local senator, the Hon. John Francis McCormick and the then governor of the state. I ought to know for I was the field hand that did the water boy act of waiting on the effort to secure this freedom. In fact I was chairman of the committee and communication servant.

Ironically, the postmaster general, Mr. Hannega, to whom all communications were addressed, and that over a period of some two and half years, had never seen one of my letters. Did not know we wanted or needed freedom. Immediately upon contact with our governor he ordered a free office. This all may be verified. And is advanced because of obstinacy of our friends at bureaucratic Washington and as is about the situation now. A building is beside the main issue involved as evidenced by the paragraph above. More floor space out in the area somewhere else would neutralize our complaint.

'Obey Whose Laws'

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

Thank you for publishing my article "Obey Whose Laws" in your Views of Our Readers' column in the Sunday paper.

I particularly like the view of the news expressed in editorials and I find myself looking for the fourth dimension or God's dimensio nin editorials. I have found in some of your editorials this fourth dimension. It gives to the people a feeling of confidence instead of frustration when they lay the paper down. No matter how serious, deadly or argumentative a problem is if it is presented with its relation to divine guidance there is a possibility that it carries more power than the atom bomb scare. And after all, we do know Who can control atom bombs — certainly not Mr. Kennedy or Mr. K. of Russia. All they can do is dish them out.

Thanks again for carrying my article in your paper.

To the Editor:

Following is a copy of a letter sent to Congressman Otto E. Passman:

Representative Otto Passman
House of Representatives
Washington, D. C.

Dear Representative Passman:

Bravo! Your performance before Meet the Press Sunday was exemplary. Your continued uphill battle to curb the folly of foreign "aid" is heart warming. I am proud to number you among our Louisiana congressmen and sincerely wish that you were representing the Fourth Congressional District.

Keep up the battle for the salvation of our republic. I also welcome any suggestions as to how we may help you in your courageous fight.

How Do You Stand, Sir?

By BARRY GOLDWATER

U. S. Senator

In the days of my childhood we had the expression "Well, here we go again." We used this phrase whenever a familiar problm reoccurred — such as report cards—which aroused my mother's anger and produced the usual lecture. My brother Bob and sister Caroline would invariably say, "Well, here we go again."

As our State Department continues to press for recognition of Outer Mongolia this old family saying pops up in my mind.

Outer Mongolia is a totally - controlled Soviet satellite. We can expect its representatives to the UN to vote exactly as Mr. Khrushchev dictates. Outer Mongolia is not a separate and sovereign nation and what it can contribute to world peace or world order will, in my opinion, amount to mighty little.

We have in the past admitted to the UN other nations no more sovereign and no more independent than Outer Mongolia — nations totally under the domination of Russian communism — and each such nation admitted has diminished our strength and our influence in the deliberations and actions of this world body.

Even more disturbing is the information Mr. Owen Lattimore, Professor of Far Eastern History at Johns Hopkins University, is traveling throughout Outer Mongolia. His departure for that Soviet satellite coincided with the State Department announcement that we were seriously considering recognizing this bit of Asian real estate and admitting its representatives into the United Nations.

A spokesman for the State Department denied that Mr. Lattimore's visit to Outer Mongolia has official blessing, but the same spokesman says the State Department will eagerly listen to Mr. Lattimore's views on this subject when he returns to the United States.

I have no desire to revive old controversies, but I feel compelled to repeat the fact that a responsible committee of the United States Senate described Mr. Lattimore as "a conscious, articulate instrument of the Soviet conspiracy."

Mr. Lattimore was involved in the controversial Amerasia Magazine Case and while I'm not suggesting that he is or ever has been a Communist, it is impossible to escape the fact that his actions in the past have been in line with and beneficial to the Communists' desires.

A number of well - informed people here in Washington believe if Outer Mongolia is admitted to the UN without too much protest from the American people, those in the State Department who advocate the two - China policy will press for the recognition of Red China and the admission of Red China into the world body.

We should remember that Outer Mongolia sent 5,000 troops to fight against the United Nations forces in the Korean War. If it is proper to admit one of our antagonists in the Korean War, then, say those who are clamoring for the admission of Red China, we can hardly refuse to admit the principal enemy of that conflict.

It is encouraging to report that the House Republican Policy Committee recently sent the Kennedy administration a strongly worded statement opposing the admission of Outer Mongolia on the following grounds (1) that recognition would imply acceptance of "the fiction that this satellite is an independent nation;" (2) that recognition would "do incalculable damage" to the U. S. position in the Far East and represents a "form of appeasement;" and (3) the State Department must "refrain from engaging in such dangerous distractions;" in view of the Berlin crisis, and "concentrate upon solidifying our relationships with our allies rather than disrupting them."

The secretary of State, Mr. Rusk, has personally expressed fear that we might be outvoted on the admission of Red China question when the UN meets to consider this problem again. If we continue to admit new nations who are totally committed to the Soviet line, we're bound to be outvoted in regard to the Red China admission and in regard to every other question which affects the future of freedom in this world. How do you stand, sir?

Fulbright's New Job

Senator William J. Fulbright, D., Ark., must have seen the handwriting on the wall. He must expect that when he comes up for election next year he will be defeated. He must be busy currying for New Frontier favor in the hope of getting some sort of federal job.

Otherwise, there can be no reason why a man from a southern state, supposedly in full possession of his senses, should go far out on a limb for the radical-liberal cause.

Fulbright's remark that the Western allies might well negotiate with Premier Nikita Khrushchev of Russia on some way to stop the mass exodus of East Germans by way of West Berlin and his smear attack on United States military leaders and his now infamous memorandum calling for muzzling outspoken military personnel are direct affronts to the people of his state, who elected him, to the south in general and to anyone in these good United States of ours who is not a radical-liberal, who believes in freedom of speech and who does not believe in either appeasing or collaborating with the Reds.

We know full well that Fulbright's remarks won't offend Adlai Stevenson, whose words and actions make it difficult to tell whether he likes the United States or Russia better and who seems to have a definite preference for the Russian form of government and Russian performances. Fulbright has now put himself in Stevenson's class.

Such actions as these have turned the stomachs of some of the northern papers as well as those in the south. Commenting on this in an editorial, the New York Daily News said:

"Senator W. J. Fulbright on a TV show July 30 remarked that the Western allies might well negotiate with Khrushchev on some way to stop the mass exodus of East Germans from their Red hell via West Berlin.

American glass workers receive, when working, $4 per hour. The average glass worker in Japan is paid an average of 33½ cents per hour. In addition to the lower wage-rates, ocean freight rates are cheaper than domestic freight rates. It costs 26 cents less per hundredweight to ship glass from Japan to San Francisco than it costs to ship it from Henryetta, Oklahoma, to San Francisco. It costs 6 cents per hundredweight less to ship glass from Liverpool, England, to Miami, Fla., than it costs to ship from Clarksburg, W. Va., to Miami.

The Commission recommended prompt application of a higher tariff. The recommendation went to President Kennedy, who refused to put it into effect, sending it back to the Commission, and asking for a supplemental report on certain technical economic questions.

Textile and glass are only two of the many industries where opposition to extension of the Reciprocal Trade agreements is building up.

If the UN capital never returned to the USA, that would be soon enough. And the prosperity which its new construction and free - spending delegates would bring to East Berlin would remove an unnecessary slum and eyesore.

But the plan, while benefitting the USA and the West, is remarkable in that it offers Khrushchev some harmless attractions, too. He, like many Americans, would like to have the UN moved. He would welcome the economic uplift in the Soviet sector, which was still a shambles when I last looked. Finally, if Berlin were made a capital city, like Washington, it could be run by a commission government. The bothersome matter of whether or not the city would be "free" could be circumvented. Berliners, like Washingtonians, could vote in national elections, and could occasionally vote on bond issues and the like — but as a UN capital it would not have self-rule.

This much of the plan merely leads into the rest of it. Most ideas of "neutralizing" or "demilitarizing" Germany are rejectable because of their sterility. But it would be something quite different if Germany were rearmed as the garrison of a small UN standing force.

I never believed in UN police work until I visited Israel and saw the white - painted jeeps scooting to trouble spots and stopping trouble before it could grow. I see no reason why some of the old Prussian - type drill-masters whom I've met in Germany couldn't organize a division or two of unemployed Africans, Asians and Latin Americans to act as security guards and as flying riot - squads which would not be permitted, however, to interfere with any nation's sovereignty.

But the main body of the peace plan calls for an establishment in such East German cities as Leipzig, Erfurt, Weimar, Jena, Magdeburg and Dresden of a Russo - American scientific research center. I am not talking about "disarmament." Both nations could and would go on making bombs. They could go to war at will. The "partnership" in research would be on a while-it-works basis and could be instantaneously dissolved.

The plan is not utopian, but in the autumn of 1959 there was a series of joint press conferences which suggest that it might be feasible. The press conferences were held by our then Atomic Energy Commission Chairman, John A. McCone, and his somewhat opposite number from Russia, Prof. Vasily S. Emelyanov, in charge of non - military atomic research in the USSR.

Out of the conferences, the records of which I have reread, came some ideas which will be offered in another column.

Pressure Relentless

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

Day by day and week by week the relentless pressure continues, and I might say grows, for public acceptance of federal aid to education. To my mind, submission to federal aid to education would be a better way to put it.

This is made painfully clear in two letters to the editor in your August 6th Morning World. In one of the letters Mrs. Thomas Williamson of Winnsboro says she HOPES that we will be ALLOWED to continue to handle education on a local basis. (Caps of words hope and allowed are the writers) Miss Rowena Ramage of Winnsboro frankly expresses the fear, and justifiably so, that federal aid will be FORCED upon us.

No more dangerous legislation has come before Congress in many a year.

Writes To Passman

West Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

Dear Mr. Passman,

Thank you for your letter of July 17 in which you acknowledge receipt of mine of July 13 concerning the conference with West Monroe folks about the West Monroe post office .

The present rented space confined to a down town spot of ground without adequate parking space or sufficient square foot space within needed for normal working conditions of its excellent personnel, all give pause to the folks around here for the consideration of Washington toward a town with a spread of city and suburban population of some thirty odd thousand as compared with the city of Monroe with a city and suburban population of some sixty odd thousand. You will find that populations served by each post office approximately correct.

The disparity in floor space considered percentagewise between the two cities is obviously to the disadvantage of the west side area, with twice the people served on the East side area, as you know, this disparity is obvious. I am told floor space served on the east side area is as much as four times that of the west side area. The difficulty of being placed in line for a post-office building and the securing adequate floor space apparently out, quite naturally lets us complain a little bit.

This is not complaint, Mr. Passman, directed at you but to you and is, as you know by being a resident of Monroe, our sister city, an evaluation of local conditions that is difficult to disprove. I know that comparisons are considered odious, Mr. Passman, but it is often a cliche that may be used with emphasis and it is this sort of emphasis we wish to present.

It is surprising to note from you that congressman McKenzie was toying with us in presenting a commitment in writing to us for a $90,000 building to be used as a branch. We refused. We secured freedom July 1, 1947. However, it did not come from congressional sources. It came about through the instrumentality of our local senator, the Hon. John Francis McCormick and the then governor of the state. I ought to know for I was the field hand that did the water boy act of waiting on the effort to secure this freedom. In fact I was chairman of the committee and communication servant.

Ironically, the postmaster general, Mr. Hannega, to whom all communications were addressed, and that over a period of some two and half years, had never seen one of my letters. Did not know we wanted or needed freedom. Immediately upon contact with our governor he ordered a free office. This all may be verified. And is advanced because of obstinacy of our friends at bureaucratic Washington and as is about the situation now. A building is beside the main issue involved as evidenced by the paragraph above. More floor space out in the area somewhere else would neutralize our complaint.

'Obey Whose Laws'

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

Thank you for publishing my article "Obey Whose Laws" in your Views of Our Readers' column in the Sunday paper.

I particularly like the view of the news expressed in editorials and I find myself looking for the fourth dimension or God's dimensio nin editorials. I have found in some of your editorials this fourth dimension. It gives to the people a feeling of confidence instead of frustration when they lay the paper down. No matter how serious, deadly or argumentative a problem is if it is presented with its relation to divine guidance there is a possibility that it carries more power than the atom bomb scare. And after all, we do know Who can control atom bombs — certainly not Mr. Kennedy or Mr. K. of Russia. All they can do is dish them out.

Thanks again for carrying my article in your paper.

Compliments Passman

To the Editor:

Following is a copy of a letter sent to Congressman Otto E. Passman:

Representative Otto Passman
House of Representatives
Washington, D. C.

Dear Representative Passman:

Bravo! Your performance before Meet the Press Sunday was exemplary. Your continued uphill battle to curb the folly of foreign "aid" is heart warming. I am proud to number you among our Louisiana congressmen and sincerely wish that you were representing the Fourth Congressional District.

Keep up the battle for the salvation of our republic. I also welcome any suggestions as to how we may help you in your courageous fight.

How Do You Stand, Sir?

By BARRY GOLDWATER

U. S. Senator

In the days of my childhood we had the expression "Well, here we go again." We used this phrase whenever a familiar problm reoccurred — such as report cards— which aroused my mother's anger and produced the usual lecture. My brother Bob and sister Caroline would invariably say, "Well, here we go again."

As our State Department continues to press for recognition of Outer Mongolia this old family saying pops up in my mind.

Outer Mongolia is a totally - controlled Soviet satellite. We can expect its representatives to the UN to vote exactly as Mr. Khrushchev dictates. Outer Mongolia is not a separate and sovereign nation and what it can contribute to world peace or world order will, in my opinion, amount to mighty little.

We have in the past admitted to the UN other nations no more sovereign and no more independent than Outer Mongolia — nations totally under the domination of Russian communism — and each such nation admitted has diminished our strength and our influence in the deliberations and actions of this world body.

Even more disturbing is the information Mr. Owen Lattimore, Professor of Far Eastern History at Johns Hopkins University, is traveling throughout Outer Mongolia. His departure for that Soviet satellite coincided with the State Department announcement that we were seriously considering recognizing this bit of Asian real estate and admitting its representatives into the United Nations.

A spokesman for the State Department denied that Mr. Lattimore's visit to Outer Mongolia has official blessing, but the same spokesman says the State Department will eagerly listen to Mr. Lattimore's views on this subject when he returns to the United States.

I have no desire to revive old controversies, but I feel compelled to repeat the fact that a responsible committee of the United States Senate described Mr. Lattimore as "a conscious, articulate instrument of the Soviet conspiracy."

Mr. Lattimore was involved in the controversial Amerasia Magazine Case and while I'm not suggesting that he is or ever has been a Communist, it is impossible to escape the fact that his actions in the past have been in line with and beneficial to the Communists' desires.

A number of well - informed people here in Washington believe if Outer Mongolia is admitted to the UN without too much protest from the American people, those in the State Department who advocate the two - China policy will press for the recognition of Red China and the admission of Red China into the world body.

We should remember that Outer Mongolia sent 5,000 troops to fight against the United Nations forces in the Korean War. If it is proper to admit one of our antagonists in the Korean War, then, say those who are clamoring for the admission of Red China, we can hardly refuse to admit the principal enemy of that conflict.

It is encouraging to report that the House Republican Policy Committee recently sent the Kennedy administration a strongly worded statement opposing the admission of Outer Mongolia on the following grounds (1) that recognition would imply acceptance of "the fiction that this satellite is an independent nation;" (2) that recognition would "do incalculable damage" to the U. S. position in the Far East and represents a "form of appeasement;" and (3) the State Department must "refrain from engaging in such dangerous distractions;" in view of the Berlin crisis, and "concentrate upon solidifying our relationships with our allies rather than disrupting them."

The secretary of State, Mr. Rusk, has personally expressed fear that we might be outvoted on the admission of Red China question when the UN meets to consider this problem again. If we continue to admit new nations who are totally committed to the Soviet line, we're bound to be outvoted in regard to the Red China admission and in regard to every other question which affects the future of freedom in this world. How do you stand, sir?

TAX RAISE DECISION — President Kennedy wavered for 24 hours on whether or not to ask tax raise for stepped - up military program. His decision left out on limb some influential members of Congress who had privately told friends they knew amount had been fixed and that he would ask for 3 billion. Advice finally taken not to ask for taxes now withheld the position of Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy. Secretary of Treasury Douglas Dillon hemmed and hawed, took no firm stand either way. Some fiscal experts doubt tax yield predicted by President Kennedy will fully materialize; therefore, that tax increase will be asked in January, and may be close to $5 billion.

CONGRESS ADJOURNMENT — New date picked for adjournment of Congress is last day of Summer, September 21. President's message did not give legislators as much sweaty work as they had expected. Defense bill, which had already passed House, was held up in Senate to include his recommendations, thus assuring that it would be quickly passed and speeded to the White House. Some members of Congress think adjournment will come by mid-September; that some bills now called "musts" will be jettisoned until next year.

CABINET RUMORS — Discount new reports that Secretary of Commerce Luther Hodges is on way out — that is, in near future. It is true that Hodges is no White House favorite and even less a favorite of Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy. But after Bowles episode and with Berlin crisis, President Kennedy has no idea of any Cabinet shake - up. It still could be a good guess that Hodges will be first break in Kennedy Cabinet, but look for no Cabinet changes in 1961, unless a Supreme Court vacancy results in Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Abraham Ribicoff going to the high tribunal.

NEW YORK MAYORALITY RACE — there is little wagering on the result to date, but there have been some bets reported at 8 to 5 that Arthur Levill, New York State Comptroller, will defeat Mayor Robert Wagner for Democratic nomination at the September 7 primary. Some estimates are that only 30 percent of Democratic voters will participate in primary, and small vote always helps organization, which in this case is supporting Levitt. Kennedy Administration, which is backing Wagner, would like to find some effective way to aid him, but has not come up with any plan.

ALMOND AND BENCH —Soon to retire Virginia Governor L. Lindsay Almond's age (63) is somewhat high for the Federal Judge post he wants, but President Kennedy would like to appoint him notwithstanding. It all depends on position Senator Harry F. Byrd takes. Byrd and Almond broke over Byrd mass resistence to school integration policy, also on fiscal matters. If Byrd objects, Senate would not confirm Almond to bench. Some anti-Almond Virginians say Governor refused to attend or send representatives to Southern Governors meeting in Jackson, Mississippi, last week, fearing it would jeopardize his chances for bench appointment by angering Kennedy Administration.

EXECUTIVE LIST — Federal agencies are bringing up to date their list of executive reserves as result of Berlin trouble. On the list are business and labor leaders and others outside of Government who could be drafted for Federal posts during emergencies.

TAYLOR BUILD - UP — Joint Chiefs of Staff worry that President Kennedy will by - pass them and listen more to General Maxwell Taylor, his White House military adviser, increased as Taylor began building up his staff. Taylor is starting with five military assistants and three secretaries. He probably will enlarge this later.

WHITE HOUSE GOOF — Telephone lines between the White House and the Capitol get right busy when the Kennedy Administration has some good news to pass along. Any Congressman whose district is affected is quick to get a personal call, if not from the President himself, from one of his many aides. But sometimes this person - to - person diplomacy goes haywire, as witness this incident the other day. For obvious reasons the Congressmen in question prefers anonymity. Several weeks ago many Congressmen got their dander up when the White House announced the closing of a number of military installations around the country. But along came the Berlin crisis and a decision was made to keep some of them open. So it was that the central figure in this piece received one of those "good news" calls from the White House. A big military base in his district would not be closed after all, said the happy voice at the White House. The Congressman heard him out, thanked him unenthusiastically, and hung up. The White House informant had the right state but the wrong Congressman. Not only was the installation in this lawmaker's baliwick still scheduled for a shutdown but half the personnel in another in his district was set to be transferred to the district of his colleague for whom the White House call was really intended.

SHORT PEDIGREE — Washington's ultra select Cosmos Club is very particular about the men it picks for membership. It's not merely enough for the candidate to have achieved fame or fortune. He must also have "contributed" something to society. Writing a book, for example. So it is that currently posted on the club bulletin board is the name and qualifications of the newest applicant and which read: "Kennedy, John F. — author and public official."

DISTAFF DOCTORS — While Dr. Janet G. Travell is the first woman to hold the position of White House physician she is not the first doctor of her sex to treat an ailing President. Practically forgotten in the rush of history is white - haired, grandmotherly Dr. Susan Ann Edson who tended President Garfield during the three months before he died from the wounds of an assassin's bullets. She had just returned to her home in Washington after caring for President Garfield's wife in May and June of 1881 when she got word the chief executive was shot and critically wounded by Charles J. Guiteau at the Baltimore and Potomac Depot in Washington. Here's the way Dr. Edson's reported the day's events: "My brother and sister were at Washington's famous market, near the depot, when the shooting occurred, and they immediately drove home to bring me the startling news. I started at once to go to the President, and met him as he was being borne to the White House, and went with him there."

NEWS BULLETIN — No sooner had the news flashed from El Paso, Texas, that another American plane was hijacked (and at which time Castro was believed the villain again) than reporters began badgering the White House for a statement from President Kennedy. They checked and rechecked but no statement. As the day wore on the White House continued to put out news releases on a multiplicity of subjects. One item showed that no matter what's going on in the world the routine will be handled along with the spectacular. An afternoon release announced: "The President has concurred with the U. S. Tariff Commission's recent finding that no formal investigation should be instituted at this time to determine whether the tariff should be reduced on imports of clinical thermometers."

Here And There

Do you feel more worthwhile? You should. The chemicals in your body used to be worth 87 cents, now they're worth about 98 cents.

Today's college man is no Beau Brummell. He has an average of only 2.9 suits.

Now is the time to be careful. Accidents hit a peak in the summer months, are lowest in the months of January, February and March.

Worth repeating: Half the world's miseries are caused by hardness of heart—the other half by softness of head.

Odd items about famous folk: Singer Polly Bergen modeled bathing suits as a teen-ager, didn't learn to swim until last summer. Sigmund Freud, the father of psychoanalysis, smoked 20 cigars a day. Thomas Jefferson, who drafted the U.S. Declaration of Independence, studied up to 15 hours daily as a college student.

One reason doctor's bills are getting higher: It now takes $67,000 to train a specialist.

Many soldiers would be surprised to know the rocket gun isn't new to military science. The Chinese invented it some 3,000 years ago.

Long - winded: The oldest president at the start of his term in office, William Henry Harrison, (68 years, 23 days), delivered the longest inaugural address — more than 8,000 words. Wearing neither hat nor great coat he rode on horseback through a storm to the ceremony, caught a cold and died a month later. Pride led him to his tomb.

While we're on this subject, we might as well admit Harrison (a general) in that speech used the personal pronoun "I" a record 45 times . . . a colonel, Theodore Roosevelt, was the only president who never used the word "I" in his inaugural address, yet he was one of the most magnetic and forceful of our national leaders.

News in its nose: A bloodhound doesn't trail just footprints. It follows the entire body scent of a lost or fugitive person, and can in damp weather smell him half a mile away, or follow him 10 days later along his path.

The growth of an industry: The number of aircraft produced in America increased from a known 45 in 1912 to an estimated 10,881 in 1960. But wartime 1945 was the fabulous year: The U. S. built 95,272 military planes, contrasting with 1909 when it produced one.

Wisecrack of the week: Divorces are getting so friendly, says Tom Jones, that alimony should be called "palimony."

Harriet Beecher Stowe helped influence the course of a nation with "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Her first literary effort at the age of 12 was an essay titled "Can the Immortality of the Soul be Proved by the Light of Reason?" For some reason it never became a best seller.

Coals to Newcastle: The Irish are rich in lions. Some 550 lion cubs have been born in the Dublin Zoo during its 127-year history . . . Many have been exported all over the world, including — of all places — Africa.

Battle Of Mobile Bay Is Recalled

Editors' Note—Ninety - seven years ago today, Union Adm. David Farragut led a fleet of warships into Mobile Bay. Navymen proudly recall his battlecry: "Damn the torpedoes. Full speed ahead!" But did Farragut actually say those words?

By DAVID ZINMAN

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Confederate Adm. Franklin Buchanan peered seaward from the ironclad Tennessee in Mobile Bay. He strained to catch the first glimpse of an unseen enemy.

Outside the harbor, the eyes of crusty Union Adm. David Glasgow Farragut scanned the horizon. The southern sun flickered on the white sails of his flagship Hartford.

At 6:30 a.m., Farragut ended six months of waiting. He ordered his fleet of 14 men-of-war and four metal-hulled ironclads into the harbor. They were after the Tennessee, reputed to be the most powerful warship afloat.

Death would spare the two 636-year-old admirals that day—Aug. 5, 1864. It would not be as kind to their sailors. They would die from the red hot missiles and the smoking splinters and they would drown without a chance.

History would call what followed "The Battle of Mobile Bay."

The USS Brooklyn, Hartford and Tecumseh led the Union ships into the harbor. Wind ruffled spray across the bows. Flags snapped at mastheads.

Farragut's target, Mobile, was the one remaining trouble spot to federal squadrons. It had become a blockade-runners' nest and a Rebel center of commerce. Its three-pronged defense defied penetration:

1. Mobile Bay, shaped like a great bell 30 miles in depth, was defended at its narrow mouth by Fort Morgan's 40 cannons.

2. Rebel forces had planted in the channel three rows of 180 deadly mines, called "torpedoes" then.

3. The Tennessee was inside the bay. Built on the lines of the famous Merrimac, the ram looked like a gigantic raft with a fort set down in her middle. She was 209 feet long and 48 feet wide. An armored casemate — backed with six inches of iron and 25 inches of wood—rose from her hull like a tank turret. She carried 7-inch rifle cannons at her ends and two 6-inch rifle cannons on each side.

Shortly after 7 a.m., Fort Morgan opened up. Jagged iron poured on the Brooklyn, then on the Hartford. The Union ships' heavy guns lacked the range to counter.

A 120-pound shell hit the Hartford's foremast. Another smashed her mainmast.

There was no firing on the monitor Tecumseh. In utter silence and with every man alert, Cmdr. Tunis A. Craven went across the torpedo lines after the Tennessee.

As Craven was about to order open fire, the Tecumseh's bow scraped a bobbing object. A torpedo exploded right under her turret. The Tecumseh lurched crazily. Her stern lifted high. It was all over in two minutes. She carried down 113 of a crew of 135.

Then, a second unforeseen thing happened. The Brooklyn, leading the column of sloops, suddenly stopped. Capt. James Alden, her skipper, saw the Tecumseh go down. His lookouts reported suspicious-looking buoys. Alden began backing to get clear.

The ships behind were closing fast. Alden was putting the entire column in danger of becoming hopelessly entangled under Fort Morgan's guns. From the Hartford, next in line, Farragut frantically signaled Alden to go ahead. Alden seemed paralyzed.

Farragut had to act. But his decision had to be right. A wrong move would mean defeat, possibly the slaughter of his 3,000 sailors. He made the most important decision of his life. Farragut ordered the Hartford forward.

His man-of-war twisted around and sailed past the Brooklyn. There were warning cries, "Up ahead. Torpedoes."

"Damn the torpedoes," Farragut is reported to have shouted. Then, to his own captain, he is said to have added: "Four bells! Captain Drayton, go ahead." And to the skipper of the Metacomet, lashed alongside, "Jouett, full speed."

The words are now immortalized as, "Damn the torpedoes. Full speed ahead!" But in the ear-shattering din, there is question of their accuracy.

There is no mention of the order in official naval records. Or is there any account of it in the letters and memoirs of Farragut or the Hartford's officers.

The phrase reportedly first appeared 14 years after the battle in Scribner's monthly magazine Similar versions followed. Today, some historians disagree on the actual wording. One account, for example, has it that what really happened was chief engineer Thomas Williamson, standing near Farragut, heard the quick order, "Go ahead."

"Shall I ring four bells, sir?" Williamson replied.

Farragut roared: "Four bells—eight bells—16 bells—damn it. I don't care how many bells you ring."

Whatever the admiral said, the Hartford's 225-foot keel slid through the torpedo lines. There were clicks heard as the ship sailed on. The torpedo primers were snapping as the Hartford passed over them. They didn't go off. Some of the torpedoes had rusted.

Probably no straighter course was ever steered as the rest of the column followed in her wake.

On the Tennessee, moored under Fort Morgan's guns, Adm. Buchanan wondered if he should stay under the fort's cover in the shallow waters. Only the three remaining monitors could follow him here. Or should be do battle in the spacious harbor?

Buchanan made his decision. He elected to dash into the fleet and do all the damage he could. It was as bold a move as Farragut's. But it was foolhardy. By leaving the fort's guns, he was tossing his advantage to the winds.

Buchanan, steaming into the midst of the Union fleet, where the water was deep, was offering battle on his enemy's best terms.

The wooden Monongahela began the engagement. She ran full speed at the Tennessee and crashed into her amidships. The blow would have sunk almost any ship in the Union navy. It didn't do the slightest damage to the ram. Instead, the Monongahela saw her own prow and cutwater drop away.

The Lackawana came next. She plowed up the water at a ten knot clip and smashed into the Tennessee astern of her casemate. When she pulled free, the Lackawana's bow was crushed and a leak had sprung. The only perceptible effect on the Tennessee was a slight lurch.

This Story Is A Tug On Your Heart Strings

THE COURTSHIP OF EDDIE'S FATHER. By Mark Toby. Bernard Geis. $3.50.

When Eddie's mother died, Eddie was 6½. It is an age when tragedy strikes deeply but does not last, and an age when the child's unsubtle mind seeks direct and immediate solutions to every problem that present itself.

So before long Eddie was doing what he could to encourage his father to marry again. He did not have much luck at first, and when his father began to show some interest in the wrong woman, Eddie had another problem on his hands.

These are serious themes, but essentially this is a book of humor, and a good one. The author knows the affinity of tears and laughter, but when he tugs the old heart strings there is nothing maudlin about it.

Not all the episodes in this narrative are related to the dilmma of Eddie's father. We find the youngster encountering a good many problems of his own, including those at school and camp. There are some delightful passages in which a small boy's mind tries to grapple with adult ideas, including sex. There is a memorable party on Eddie's seventh birthday. There is some interesting byplay when Eddie and his father are picked up by a beauty contest winner in Times Square.

Toby's humor is dry and spare. He writes in a lean style filled with dialog. He has made Eddie a wonderful person, and his evocation of the boyish mind is brilliant. This is a first novel of merit.

Lilith Has That Magic Quality That Few Have

LILITH. By J. R. Salamanca. Simon & Schuster. $5.50.

There is a magical quality about this novel that few authors are able to achieve.

It is a story told by a sensitive young man whose name is Vincent Bruce. After war service in the South Pacific, he has decided against going to college. Instead, he takes a job in his home town at a private mental hospital. He is called an occupational therapist which is a glorified name for an attendant.

This hospital is for schizophrenics, the treatment is by psychoanalysis, and because it caters only to people whose families can afford expensive care, it has only a few patients.

One of them is Lilith, an attractive young woman with an intelligent and imaginative mind that has gone wrong. She has created a dream world of her own which she prefers to the world of sanity. For this dream world she has invented a language and a system of thought and beauty that bears little relationship to human concepts.

Vincent is drawn to her at first by the possibility of restoring her contact with reality, and he succeeds in getting responses from her that her analyst had been unable to get. But for every step that he helps her take toward reality, he finds himself taking a step into the fringes of her dream world. And when finally they fall in love there is no certainty as to which world their love is to be nurtured in. Eventually, a jealous act by Vincent shatters their rapport and there is a tragic ending.

This bare, stark outline of the story gives no hint of the deep, shimmering, evanescent play of the mind — sane or insane — which is at the heart of this book. Salamanca has mastered brilliantly the skill of conveying the essence of mental light and darkness; in this respect he makes Edgar Allen Poe seem like a crude amateur.

He writes with a heightened perception that rewards any reader whose own powers of insight can be heightened. He has taken an unusual theme and has made a master work of it. No one who reads this book can forget Lilith.

Guide To Good Reading

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

In a day when so many of the modern novels deal with the abnormal and strange members of society, it is refreshing to read a book about plain people, with kind hearts, whose chief interest in life is helping others. Such is the theme of "The Amiable Meddlers," by Josephine Lawrence.

This is the story of Miss Belle and Miss Zinne, two sisters who are dressmakers and who remake the lives of their clients as well as their clothes. It is definitely a woman's book and while certainly not great literature, it is a pleasant book for late summer reading.

An outstanding and versatile modern writer is Richard Llewellyn. Famous for his stories set in the Welsh mining country, he also ranges far afield in some of his books. His latest novel is an example of this ability. "A Man in a Mirror," is a novel of Africa today and of the dilemma of her young people, raised partly in the primitive tribal ways and partly in European-operated schools, to adopt themselves to twentieth century living, while remaining true to their heritage.

Llewellyn has lived among the Masai people of whom he writes and we have a feeling that he knows and understands them as few Europeans do. This is a thoughtful book and one that will merit careful reading.

MYSTERY STORIES

Mystery stories are always popular with the patrons of he Ouachia Parish Public Library and there are four new ones available this week. "Search for a Sultan," is the title of the new book by Manning Coles. This is another of the exciting Tommy Hambleton stories filled with international intrigue. "Eye Witness," by John Stephen Strange is an excellent suspense story. The setting is modern New York and it is a good story, if your nerves are strong enough to take it. "The White Savage," by Arthur W. Upfield is another Inspector Napoleon Bonaparte story. It's setting is the wild cave country of western Australia and it is the story of an exciting manhunt.

"Bodies and Souls," by Dan Herr and Joel Wells is a collection of 14 tales of worldy and other wordly murder, mayhem and mystery. The authors range from Agathie Christie to G. K. Chesterton, and they al make for chilling reading.

Books of non-fiction continue to offer a great variety of material. A useful book for many people is "New Church Programs with the Aging," by Elsie T. Culver. This book gives many practical and useful suggestions. Those interested in the field of investments will want to read "Invest Smartly," by Morton Yarmon. It contains pertinent advice. Everyone is interested in "America—Too Young To Die," by Major Alexander P. De Seversky, which appeared in our local papers. The library now has five copies of this book, so if you have asked for it, you should receive it soon. There has been much discussion in recent months in regard to our educational system. Two new books discuss the program frankly. They are "Education for the Emerging Age," by Theodore Brameld, and "The Schools," by Martin Mayer.

NEW BOOK

"TV The Big Picture," is the title of the new book by Stan Optowsky. In this book the author takes a close hard look at the world of television. Exhaustive, revealing and totally absorbsorbing, this is the book that does for television what "Madison Avenue U.S.A." did for advertising. It goes behind the screen to give the complete story of the world of television . . . how it all began, how it works today, and what lies ahead . . . "TV, the Big Picture." A new and different cook book is called "You Can Cook for One (or even Two)" written by Louise Pickoff. It contains a good collection of recipes for small amounts and should be most valuable. An unusual book is "Lost Languages," by P. E. Cleator. This is an account of the early languages which scholars are just now learning to decipher. This book fills a gap in the library collection and will be most useful to students of history.

"Fact of Crystal," by Abbie Hustor Evans is a new collection of poetry, by one of our most talented modern writers. It is well worth reading. "Elegy in Manhattan," is a book of blank verse written by George Jessel. It is his tribute to the city which he loves. "The New America," is the title of the book by Karl E. Meyer. This is a study of politics and society today and sheds much light on contemporary society. The Civil War Centennial Reading Club sponsored by the Ouachita Parish Public Library for the children of Ouachita Parish, has been a complete success. If you have enrolled in the club, but have not completed your reading, remember that you have just three more weeks in which to do so. The club ends on September 2. Many hundreds of boys and girls have completed their reading, but there are others who have not done so and the time if growing short. Visit your branch of the library tomorrow and try to finish before September 2.

Sound Music Star Writes On Big Broadway

BROADWAY

By MARY MARTIN
Written For UPI

NEW YORK (UPI) —My husband, Richard Halliday, and I still feel somewhat like the couple who came to dinner — in Brazil.

We started out to visit our good friend, Janet Gaynor, and her late husband, Adrian, the designer, in their new home in Goiaz and stayed on and on.

But we did eventually provide our own house. We fell in love with the climate. The air was, and still is, like nectar. We fell in love with the views. And the privacy. And the general well-ness and alive-ness that came over us. We had to have our home there. And so we did.

It was two years ago last April that we were finally able to visit our place in Brazil — 14 degrees below the Equator, where the temperature ranges 12 months a year from 68 to 78 degrees, and our land goes from 2,500 to 3,000 feet high.

I had six months' vacation before rehearsals for "The Sound of Music" began, so Richard and I went right off to our new home. On the way down, we talked seriously about whether or not it was practical to keep approximately 26 people farming there. Seventy-two hours after we arrived, we bought additional land adjoining ours.

When we first bought our place, we could get to the nearest town, Anapolis, 17 miles away, only by jeep or horseback. The red clay roads were so rutted that we had to allow an hour by jeep each way. Now there are three main paved highways that meet 11 miles from our land.

It took us 25½ hours from New York to Anapolis, via Rio De Janeiro and Sao Paulo, where we changed planes. Now, we can fly directly to Brasilia, the new capital of Brazil, from New York in less than nine hours. We leave the 16-lane highway going out of Brasilia by car and are home within an hour.

When we first bought our place, there were several hundred chickens. Now we have 7,500.

We have built a dam which supplies our electricity. We filled the streams and the small lake with fish.

Almost every inch of the land, with the exception of the bamboo forest and about 10 acres of jungle is now under cultivation. We grow sufficient corn to feed the chickens. There is coffee and every kind of vegetable and citrus fruit — limes, lemons, tangerines, grapefruit, and bahia oranges, so

Novels And Biographies Top Fall Publishing List

By MILES A. SMITH
AP Arts Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — When September brings in the fall tide of books, there will be a plethora of novels with greatly varying themes and a wide range of biographies.

One established novelist, Carsen McCullers, will be represented in the publishing lists for the first time in nine years. Her "Clock Without Hands" is described by Houghton Mifflin as a story of moral issues in a southern setting, with two men and two boys as the principal figures.

Among the historical novels will be Nicholas Monsarrat's "White Rajah" (Sloane), about a 19th Century Englishman in the Far East, and F. Van Wyck Mason's "The Sea 'Venture' " (Doubelday), which is about an expedition that started for Virginia and wound up by settling Bermuda.

B. J. Chute has written for Dutton "The Moon and the Thorn," her first novel since "Greenwillow," and it is a romance in a modern setting. George Johnston describes life on a Greek isle in "Closer to the Sun," published by Morrow. John Selby's "Madame" (Dodd, Mead) is "about a woman who played God." Little, Brown is bringing out A. J. Cronin's "The Judas Tree," about a very egotistical man, and Morrow will present Nevil Shute's "Stephen Morris."

Lin Yutang has written "The Red Peony" (World), about a young widow in 19th Century China. France of 1815 is the setting for "Holy Week" (Putnam) by Louis Aragon.

Among the biographies will be W. A. Swanberg's "Citizen Hearst," (Scribners) on the life of the millionaire publisher, William Randolph Hearst.

Mark Schorer's "Sinclair Lewis, an American Life" (McGraw - Hill), was scheduled earlier but has been delayed until September.

Opera star Nellie Melba is the subject of "Red Plush and Black Velvet," which Josepr Wechsberg has written for Little, Brown. The same publisher will have "A Churchill Canvas," a memoir by John Spencer Churchill, the family's self - styled clown. He is a nephew of Sir Winston.

"The Autobiography of Eleanor Roosevelt," published by Harper, is based on the three volumes of her memoirs, with some new chapters added.

Two literary figures have been writing about themselves. "From the Shadow of the Mountain" (Dutton) is the third and final volume of Van Wyck Brooks' autobiographical series. Virgilia Peterson, author, critic and lecturer, has written an autobiography "A Matter of Life and Death" (Atheneum).

The nonfiction field will present the seventh volume, "The Age of Reason," in Will Durant's history series. The humor will include Edward Streeter's "Chairman of the Bored" (Harper). "Last Trains Over the Rostov Bridge," by Capt. Marion Aten and Arthur Ormont (Messner) is the story of the only American (Aten) to participate in the southern campaign of the Russian civil war.

Controversy On Location Of Dam Cited

JONESVILLE (Special) — Members of the Jonesville Lions Club spoke out sharply at their meeting this week and adopted a resolution accusing the Daily Town Talk of Alexandria for "utter disregard to the facts" on the proposed locks and dam controversy, and threatened a boycott of Alexandria merchants.

The club said the newspaper was slanting its stories in regards to the locks and dam controversy.

It called on citizens to boycott businesses that advertise in the Town Talk and shop in other towns "which have newspapers that report matters of interest to the general public in a factual and accurate manner.'

Several members pointed out that organizations such as the Realtors Board had passed a resolution favoring the location of the locks above Jonesville.

"The only side heard by the real estate group was that of the paid employee of the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission, Harry Gates of Lake Charles, a man who was employed only a few weeks ago when this controversy of the location of the locks began," a member of the club stated.

Other organizations in Rapides and Alexandria adopting resolutions favoring a north of Jonesville location of the locks and dam included the Rapides Police Jury, and the Cosmopolitan Club it was stated at the meeting.

Twenty - four governing bodies, civic clubs and other organizations in Catahoula, Concordia and LaSalle parishes have adopted and re - adopted, some for the third time, favoring the south of Jonesville location.

TAX RAISE DECISION — President Kennedy wavered for 24 hours on whether or not to ask tax raise for stepped - up military program. His decision left out on limb some influential members of Congress who had privately told friends they knew amount had been fixed and that he would ask for 3 billion. Advice finally taken not to ask for taxes now upheld the position of Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy. Secretary of Treasury Douglas Dillon hemmed and hawed, took no firm stand either way. Some fiscal experts doubt tax yield predicted by President Kennedy will fully materialize; therefore, that tax increase will be asked in January, and may be close to $5 billion.

CONGRESS ADJOURNMENT — New date picked for adjournment of Congress is last day of Summer, September 21. President's message did not give legislators as much sweaty work as they had expected. Defense bill, which had already passed House, was held up in Senate to include his recommendations, thus assuring that it would be quickly passed and speeded to the White House. Some members of Congress think adjournment will come by mid-September; that some bills now called "musts" will be jettisoned until next year.

CABINET RUMORS — Discount new reports that Secretary of Commerce Luther Hodges is on way out — that is, in near future. It is true that Hodges is no White House favorite and even less a favorite of Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy. But after Bowles episode and with Berlin crisis, President Kennedy has no idea of any Cabinet shake - up. It still could be a good guess that Hodges will be first break in Kennedy Cabinet, but look for no Cabinet changes in 1961, unless a Supreme Court vacancy results in Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Abraham Ribicoff going to the high tribunal.

NEW YORK MAYORALITY RACE — there is little wagering on the result to date, but there have been some bets reported at 3 to 5 that Arthur Levill, New York State Comptroller, will defeat Mayor Robert Wagner for Democratic nomination at the September 7 primary. Some estimates are that only 30 percent of Democratic voters will participate in primary, and small vote always helps organization, which in this case is supporting Levitt. Kennedy Administration, which is backing Wagner, would like to find some effective way to aid him, but has not come up with any plan.

ALMOND AND BENCH —Soon to retire Virginia Governor L. Lindsay Almond's age (63) is somewhat high for the Federal Judge post he wants, but President Kennedy would like to appoint him notwithstanding. It all depends on position Senator Harry F. Byrd takes. Byrd and Almond broke over Byrd mass resistence to school integration policy, also on fiscal matters. If Byrd objects, Senate would not confirm Almond to bench. Some anti-Almond Virginians say Governor refused to attend or send representatives to Southern Governors meeting in Jackson, Mississippi, last week, fearing it would jeopardize his chances for bench appointment by angering Kennedy Administration.

EXECUTIVE LIST — Federal agencies are bringing up to date their list of executive reserves as result of Berlin trouble. On the list are business and labor leaders and others outside of Government who could be drafted for Federal posts during emergencies.

TAYLOR BUILD - UP — Joint Chiefs of Staff worry that President Kennedy will by - pass them and listen more to General Maxwell Taylor, his White House military adviser, increased as Taylor began building up his staff. Taylor is starting with five military assistants and three secretaries. He probably will enlarge this later.

WHITE HOUSE GOOF — Telephone lines between the White House and the Capitol get right busy when the Kennedy Administration has some good news to pass along. Any Congressman whose district is affected is quick to get a personal call, if not from the President himself, from one of his many aides. But sometimes this person - to - person diplomacy goes haywire, as witness this incident the other day. For obvious reasons the Congressmen in question prefers anonymity. Several weeks ago many Congressmen got their dander up when the White House announced the closing of a number of military installations around the country. But along came the Berlin crisis and a decision was made to keep some of them open. So it was that the central figure in this piece received one of those "good news" calls from the White House. A big military base in his district would not be closed after all, said the happy voice at the White House. The Congressman heard him out, thanked him unenthusiastically, and hung up. The White House informant had the right state but the wrong Congressman. Not only was the installation in this lawmaker's baliwick still scheduled for a shutdown but half the personnel in another in his district was set to be transferred to the district of his colleague for whom the White House call was really intended.

SHORT PEDIGREE — Washington's ultra select Cosmos Club is very particular about the men it picks for membership. It's not merely enough for the candidate to have achieved fame or fortune. He must also have "contributed" something to society. Writing a book, for example. So it is that currently posted on the club bulletin board is the name and qualifications of the newest applicant and which read: "Kennedy, John F. — author and public official."

DISTAFF DOCTORS — While Dr. Janet G. Travell is the first woman to hold the position of White House physician she is not the first doctor of her sex to treat an ailing President. Practically forgotten in the rush of history is white - haired, grandmotherly Dr. Susan Ann Edson who tended President Garfield during the three months before he died from the wounds of an assassin's bullets. She had just returned to her home in Washington after caring for President Garfield's wife in May and June of 1881 when she got word the chief executive was shot and critically wounded by Charles J. Guiteau at the Baltimore and Potomac Depot in Washington. Here's the way Dr. Edson's reported the day's events: "My brother and sister were at Washington's famous market, near the depot, when the shooting occurred, and they immediately drove home to bring me the startling news. I started at once to go to the President, and met him as he was being borne to the White House, and went with him there."

NEWS BULLETIN — No sooner had the news flashed from El Paso, Texas, that another American plane was hijacked (and at which time Castro was believed the villain again) than reporters began badgering the White House for a statement from President Kennedy. They checked and rechecked but no statement. As the day wore on the White House continued to put out news releases on a multiplicity of subjects. One item showed that no matter what's going on in the world the routine will be handled along with the spectacular. An afternoon release announced: "The President has concurred with the U. S. Tariff Commission's recent finding that no formal investigation should be instituted at this time to determine whether the tariff should be reduced on imports of clinical thermomenters."

Here And There

Do you feel more worthwhile? You should. The chemicals in your body used to be worth 87 cents, now they're worth about 98 cents.

Today's college man is no Beau Brummell. He has an average of only 2.9 suits.

Now is the time to be careful. Accidents hit a peak in the summer months, are lowest in the months of January, February and March.

Worth repeating: Half the world's miseries are caused by hardness of heart—the other half by softness of head.

Odd items about famous folk: Singer Polly Bergen modeled bathing suits as a teen-ager, didn't learn to swim until last summer. Sigmund Freud, the father of psychoanalysis, smoked 20 cigars a day. Thomas Jefferson, who drafted the U.S. Declaration of Independence, studied up to 15 hours daily as a college student.

One reason doctor's bills are getting higher: It now takes $67,000 to train a specialist.

Many soldiers would be surprised to know the rocket gun isn't new to military science. The Chinese invented it some 3,000 years ago.

Long - winded: The oldest president at the start of his term in office, William Henry Harrison, (68 years, 23 days), delivered the longest inaugural address — more than 8,000 words. Wearing neither hat nor great coat he rode on horseback through a storm to the ceremony, caught a cold and died a month later. Pride led him to his tomb.

While we're on this subject, we might as well admit Harrison (a general) in that speech used the personal pronoun "I" a record 45 times . . . a colonel, Theodore Roosevelt, was the only president who never used the word "I" in his inaugural address, yet he was one of the most magnetic and forceful of our national leaders.

News in its nose: A bloodhound doesn't trail just footprints. It follows the entire body scent of a lost or fugitive person, and can in damp weather smell him half a mile away, or follow him 10 days later along his path.

The growth of an industry: The number of aircraft produced in America increased from a known 45 in 1912 to an estimated 10,881 in 1960. But wartime 1945 was the fabulous year: The U. S. built 95,272 military planes, contrasting with 1909 when it produced one.

Wisecrack of the week: Divorces are getting so friendly, says Tom Jones, that alimony should be called "palimony."

Harriet Beecher Stowe helped influence the course of a nation with "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Her first literary effort at the age of 12 was an essay titled "Can the Immortality of the Soul be Proved by the Light of Reason?" For some reason it never became a best seller.

Coals to Newcastle: The Irish are rich in lions. Some 550 lion cubs have been born in the Dublin Zoo during its 127-year history . . . Many have been exported all over the world, including — of all places — Africa.

We all start small. The whale and the mouse begin from an egg of approximatey the same size.

It was Anntole France who observed, "We do not know what to do with this short life, yet we want another which will be eternal."

Battle Of Mobile Bay Is Recalled

Editors' Note—Ninety - seven years ago today, Union Adm. David Farragut led a fleet of warships into Mobile Bay. Navymen proudly recall his battlecry: "Damn the torpedoes. Full speed ahead!" But did Farragut actually say those words?

By DAVID ZINMAN

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Confederate Adm. Franklin Buchanan peered seaward from the ironclad Tennessee in Mobile Bay. He strained to catch the first glimpse of an unseen enemy.

Outside the harbor, the eyes of crusty Union Adm. David Glasgow Farragut scanned the horizon. The southern sun flickered on the white sails of his flagship Hartford.

At 6:30 a.m., Farragut ended six months of waiting. He ordered his fleet of 14 men-of-war and four metal-hulled ironclads into the harbor. They were after the Tennessee, reputed to be the most powerful warship afloat.

Death would spare the two 636-year-old admirals that day—Aug. 5, 1864. It would not be as kind to their sailors. They would die from the red hot missiles and the smoking splinters and they would drown without a chance.

History would call what followed "The Battle of Mobile Bay."

The USS Brooklyn, Hartford and Tecumseh led the Union ships into the harbor. Wind ruffled spray across the bows. Flags snapped at mastheads.

Farragut's target, Mobile, was the one remaining trouble spot to federal squadrons. It had become a blockade-runners' nest and a Rebel center of commerce. Its three-pronged defense defied penetration:

1. Mobile Bay, shaped like a great bell 30 miles in depth, was defended at its narrow mouth by Fort Morgan's 40 cannons.

2. Rebel forces had planted in the channel three rows of 180 deadly mines, called "torpedoes" then.

3. The Tennessee was inside the bay. Built on the lines of the famous Merrimac, the ram looked like a gigantic raft with a fort set down in her middle. She was 209 feet long and 48 feet wide. An armored casemate — backed with six inches of iron and 25 inches of wood—rose from her hull like a tank turret. She carried 7-inch rifle cannons at her ends and two 6-inch rifle cannons on each side.

Shortly after 7 a.m., Fort Morgan opened up. Jagged iron poured on the Brooklyn, then on the Hartford. The Union ships' heavy guns lacked the range to counter.

A 120-pound shell hit the Hartford's foremast. Another smashed her mainmast.

There was no firing on the monitor Tecumseh. In utter silence and with every man alert, Cmdr. Tunis A. Craven went across the torpedo lines after the Tennessee.

As Craven was about to order open fire, the Tecumseh's bow scraped a bobbing object. A torpedo exploded right under her turret. The Tecumseh lurched crazily. Her stern lifted high. It was all over in two minutes. She carried down 113 of a crew of 135.

Then, a second unforeseen thing happened. The Brooklyn, leading the column of sloops, suddenly stopped. Capt. James Alden, her skipper, saw the Tecumseh go down. His lookouts reported suspicious-looking buoys. Alden began backing to get clear.

The ships behind were closing fast. Alden was putting the entire column in danger of becoming hopelessly entangled under Fort Morgan's guns. From the Hartford, next in line, Farragut frantically signaled Alden to go ahead. Alden seemed paralyzed.

Farragut had to act. But his decision had to be right. A wrong move would mean defeat, possibly the slaughter of his 3,000 sailors. He made the most important decision of his life. Farragut ordered the Hartford forward.

His man-of-war twisted around and sailed past the Brooklyn. There were warning cries, "Up ahead. Torpedoes."

"Damn the torpedoes," Farragut is reported to have shouted. Then, to his own captain, he is said to have added: "Four bells! Captain Drayton, go ahead." And to the skipper of the Metacomet, lashed alongside, "Jouett, full speed."

The words are now immortalized as, "Damn the torpedoes. Full speed ahead!" But in the ear-shattering din, there is question of their accuracy.

There is no mention of the order in official naval records. Or is there any account of it in the letters and memoirs of Farragut or the Hartford's officers.

The phrase reportedly first appeared 14 years after the battle in Scribner's monthly magazine Similar versions followed. Today, some historians disagree on the actual wording. One account, for example, has it that what really happened was chief engineer Thomas Williamson, standing near Farragut, heard the quick order, "Go ahead."

"Shall I ring four bells, sir?" Williamson replied.

Farragut roared: "Four bells—eight bells—16 bells—damn it. I don't care how many bells you ring."

Whatever the admiral said, the Hartford's 225-foot keel slid through the torpedo lines. There were clicks heard as the ship sailed on. The torpedo primers were snapping as the Hartford passed over them. They didn't go off. Some of the torpedoes had rusted.

Probably no straighter course was ever steered as the rest of the column followed in her wake.

On the Tennessee, moored under Fort Morgan's guns, Adm. Buchanan wondered if he should stay under the fort's cover in the shallow waters. Only the three remaining monitors could follow him here. Or should be do battle in the spacious harbor?

Buchanan made his decision. He elected to dash into the fleet and do all the damage he could. It was as bold a move as Farragut's. But it was foolhardy. By leaving the fort's guns, he was tossing his advantage to the winds.

Buchanan, steaming into the midst of the Union fleet, where the water was deep, was offering battle on his enemy's best terms.

The wooden Monongahela began the engagement. She ran full speed at the Tennessee and crashed into her amidships. The blow would have sunk almost any ship in the Union navy. It didn't do the slightest damage to the ram. Instead, the Monongahela saw her own prow and cutwater drop away.

The Lackawana came next. She plowed up the water at a ten knot clip and smashed into the Tennessee astern of her casemate. When she pulled free, the Lackawana's bow was crushed and a leak had sprung. The only perceptible effect on the Tennessee was a slight lurch.

Lilith Has That Magic Quality That Few Have

LILITH. By J. R. Salamanca. Simon & Schuster. $5.50.

There is a magical quality about this novel that few authors are able to achieve.

It is a story told by a sensitive young man whose name is Vincent Bruce. After war service in the South Pacific, he has decided against going to college. Instead, he takes a job in his home town at a private mental hospital. He is called an occupational therapist which is a glorified name for an attendant.

This hospital is for schizophrenics, the treatment is by psychoanalysis, and because it caters only to people whose families can afford expensive care, it has only a few patients.

One of them is Lilith, an attractive young woman with an intelligent and imaginative mind that has gone wrong. She has created a dream world of her own which she prefers to the world of sanity. For this dream world she has invented a language and a system of thought and beauty that bears little relationship to human concepts.

Vincent is drawn to her at first by the possibility of restoring her contact with reality, and he succeeds in getting responses from her that her analyst had been unable to get. But for every step that he helps her take toward reality, he finds himself taking a step into the fringes of her dream world. And when finally they fall in love there is no certainty as to which world their love is to be nurtured in. Eventually, a jealous act by Vincent shatters their rapport and there is a tragic ending.

This bare, stark outline of the story gives no hint of the deep, shimmering, evanescent play of the mind — sane or insane — which is at the heart of this book. Salamanca has mastered brilliantly the skill of conveying the essence of mental light and darkness; in this respect he makes Edgar Allen Poe seem like a crude amateur.

He writes with a heightened perception that rewards any reader whose own powers of insight can be heightened. He has taken an unusual theme and has made a master work of it. No one who reads this book can forget Lilith.

Guide To Good Reading

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

In a day when so many of the modern novels deal with the abnormal and strange members of society, it is refreshing to read a book about plain people, with kind hearts, whose chief interest in life is helping others. Such is the theme of "The Amiable Meddlers," by Josephine Lawrence.

This is the story of Miss Belle and Miss Zinne, two sisters who are dressmakers and who remake the lives of their clients as well as their clothes. It is definitely a woman's book and while certainly not great literature, it is a pleasant book for late summer reading.

An outstanding and versatile modern writer is Richard Llewellyn. Famous for his stories set in the Welsh mining country, he also ranges far afield in some of his books. His latest novel is an example of this ability. "A Man in a Mirror," is a novel of Africa today and of the dilemma of her young people, raised partly in the primitive tribal ways and partly in European-operated schools, to adopt themselves to twentieth century living, while remaining true to their heritage.

Llewellyn has lived among the Masai people of whom he writes and we have a feeling that he knows and understands them as few Europeans do. This is a thoughtful book and one that will merit careful reading.

MYSTERY STORIES

Mystery stories are always popular with the patrons of he Ouachia Parish Public Library and there are four new ones available this week. "Search for a Sultan," is the title of the new book by Manning Coles. This is another of the exciting Tommy Hambleton stories filled with international intrigue. "Eye Witness," by John Stephen Strange is an excellent suspense story. The setting is modern New York and it is a good story, if your nerves are strong enough to take it. "The White Savage," by Arthur W. Upfield is another Inspector Napoleon Bonaparte story. It's setting is the wild cave country of western Australia and it is the story of an exciting manhunt.

"Bodies and Souls," by Dan Herr and Joel Wells is a collection of 14 tales of worldy and other wordly murder, mayhem and mystery. The authors range from Agathie Christie to G. K. Chesterton, and they al make for chilling reading.

Books of non-fiction continue to offer a great variety of material. A useful book for many people is "New Church Programs with the Aging," by Elsie T. Culver. This book gives many practical and useful suggestions. Those interested in the field of investments will want to read "Invest Smartly," by Morton Yarmon. It contains pertinent advice. Everyone is interested in "America—Too Young To Die," by Major Alexander P. De Seversky, which appeared in our local papers. The library now has five copies of this book, so if you have asked for it, you should receive it soon. There has been much discussion in recent months in regard to our educational system. Two new books discuss the program frankly. They are "Education for the Emerging Age," by Theodore Brameld, and "The Schools," by Martin Mayer.

NEW BOOK

"TV The Big Picture," is the title of the new book by Stan Opotowsky. In this book the author takes a close hard look at the world of television. Exhaustive, revealing and totally absorbsorbing, this is the book that does for television what "Madison Avenue U.S.A." did for advertising. It goes behind the screen to give the complete story of the world of television . . . how it all began, how it works today, and what lies ahead . . . "TV, the Big Picture." A new and different cook book is called "You Can Cook for One (or even Two)" written by Louise Pickoff. It contains a good collection of recipes for small amounts and should be most valuable. An unusual book is "Lost Languages," by P. E. Cleator. This is an account of the early languages which scholars are just now learning to decipher. This book fills a gap in the library collection and will be most useful to students of history.

"Fact of Crystal," by Abbie Huston Evans is a new collection of poetry, by one of our most talented modern writers. It is well worth reading. "Elegy in Manhattan," is a book of blank verse written by George Jessel. It is his tribute to the city which he loves. "The New America," is the title of the book by Karl E. Meyer. This is a study of politics and society today and sheds much light on contemporary society. The Civil War Centennial Reading Club sponsored by the Ouachita Parish Public Library for the children of Ouachita Parish, has been a complete success. If you have enrolled in the club, but have not completed your reading, remember that you have just three more weeks in which to do so. The club ends on September 2. Many hundreds of boys and girls have completed their reading, but there are others who have not done so and the time if growing short. Visit your branch of the library tomorrow and try to finish before September 2.

Sound Music Star Writes On Big Broadway

BROADWAY

By MARY MARTIN
Written For UPI

NEW YORK (UPI) —My husband, Richard Halliday, and I still feel somewhat like the couple who came to dinner — in Brazil.

We started out to visit our good friend, Janet Gaynor, and her late husband, Adrian, the designer, in their new home in Goiaz and stayed on and on.

But we did eventually provide our own house. We fell in love with the climate. The air was, and still is, like nectar. We fell in love with the views. And the privacy. And the general well-ness and alive-ness that came over us. We had to have our home there. And so we did.

It was two years ago last April that we were finally able to visit our place in Brazil — 14 degrees below the Equator, where the temperature ranges 12 months a year from 68 to 78 degrees, and our land goes from 2,500 to 3,000 feet high.

I had six months' vacation before rehearsals for "The Sound of Music" began, so Richard and I went right off to our new home. On the way down, we talked seriously about whether or not it was practical to keep approximately 26 people farming there. Seventy-two hours after we arrived, we bought additional land adjoining ours.

When we first bought our place, we could get to the nearest town, Anapolis, 17 miles away, only by jeep or horseback. The red clay roads were so rutted that we had to allow an hour by jeep each way. Now there are three main paved highways that meet 11 miles from our land.

It took us 25½ hours from New York to Anapolis, via Rio De Janeiro and Sao Paulo, where we changed planes. Now, we can fly directly to Brasilia, the new capital of Brazil, from New York in less than nine hours. We leave the 16-lane highway going out of Brasilia by car and are home within an hour.

When we first bought our place, there were several hundred chickens. Now we have 7,500.

We have built a dam which supplies our electricity. We filled the streams and the small lake with fish.

Almost every inch of the land, with the exception of the bamboo forest and about 10 acres of jungle is now under cultivation. We grow sufficient corn to feed the chickens. There is coffee and every kind of vegetable and citrus fruit — limes, lemons, tangerines, grapefruit, and bahia oranges, so

Novels And Biographies Top Fall Publishing List

By MILES A. SMITH
AP Arts Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — When September brings in the fall tide of books, there will be a plethora of novels with greatly varying themes and a wide range of biographies.

One established novelist, Carsen McCullers, will be represented in the publishing lists for the first time in nine years. Her "Clock Without Hands" is described by Houghton Mifflin as a story of moral issues in a southern setting, with two men and two boys as the principal figures.

Among the historical novels will be Nicholas Monsarrat's "White Rajah" (Sloane), about a 19th Century Englishman in the Far East, and F. Van Wyck Mason's "The Sea 'Venture' " (Doubelday), which is about an expedition that started for Virginia and wound up by settling Bermuda.

B. J. Chute has written for Dutton "The Moon and the Thorn," her first novel since "Greenwillow," and it is a romance in a modern setting. George Johnston describes life on a Greek isle in "Closer to the Sun," published by Morrow. John Selby's "Madame" (Dodd, Mead) is "about a woman who played God." Little, Brown is bringing out A. J. Cronin's "The Judas Tree," about a very egotistical man, and Morrow will present Nevil Shute's "Stephen Morris."

Lin Yutang has written "The Red Peony" (World), about a young widow in 19th Century China. France of 1815 is the setting for "Holy Week" (Putnam) by Louis Aragon.

Among the biographies will be W. A. Swanberg's "Citizen Hearst," (Scribners) on the life of the millionaire publisher, William Randolph Hearst.

Mark Schorer's "Sinclair Lewis, an American Life" (McGraw - Hill), was scheduled earlier but has been delayed until September.

Opera star Nellie Melba is the subject of "Red Plush and Black Velvet," which Joseph Wechsberg has written for Little, Brown. The same publisher will have "A Churchill Canvas," a memoir by John Spencer Churchill, the family's self - styled clown. He is a nephew of Sir Winston.

"The Autobiography of Eleanor Roosevelt," published by Harper, is based on the three volumes of her memoirs, with some new chapters added.

Two literary figures have been writing about themselves. "From the Shadow of the Mountain" (Dutton) is the third and final volume of Van Wyck Brooks' autobiographical series. Virgilia Peterson, author, critic and lecturer, has written an autobiography "A Matter of Life and Death" (Atheneum).

The nonfiction field will present the seventh volume, "The Age of Reason," in Will Durant's history series. The humor will include Edward Streeter's "Chairman of the Bored" (Harper). "Last Trains Over the Rostov Bridge," by Capt. Marion Aten and Arthur Ormont (Messner) is the story of the only American (Aten) to participate in the southern campaign of the Russian civil war.

This Story Is A Tug On Your Heart Strings

THE COURTSHIP OF EDDIE'S FATHER. By Mark Toby. Bernard Geis. $3.50.

When Eddie's mother died, Eddie was 6½. It is an age when tragedy strikes deeply but does not last, and an age when the child's unsubtle mind seeks direct and immediate solutions to every problem that present itself.

So before long Eddie was doing what he could to encourage his father to marry again. He did not have much luck at first, and when his father began to show some interest in the wrong woman, Eddie had another problem on his hands.

These are serious themes, but essentially this is a book of humor, and a good one. The author knows the affinity of tears and laughter, but when he tugs the old heart strings there is nothing maudlin about it.

Not all the episodes in this narrative are related to the dilmma of Eddie's father. We find the youngster encountering a good many problems of his own, including those at school and camp. There are some delightful passages in which a small boy's mind tries to grapple with adult ideas, including sex. There is a memorable party on Eddie's seventh birthday. There is some interesting byplay when Eddie and his father are picked up by a beauty contest winner in Times Square.

Toby's humor is dry and spare. He writes in a lean style filled with dialog. He has made Eddie a wonderful person, and his evocation of the boyish mind is brilliant. This is a first novel of merit.

Controversy On Location Of Dam Cited

JONESVILLE (Special) — Members of the Jonesville Lions Club spoke out sharply at their meeting this week and adopted a resolution accusing the Daily Town Talk of Alexandria for "utter disregard to the facts" on the proposed locks and dam controversy, and threatened a boycott of Alexandria merchants.

The club said the newspaper was slanting its stories in regards to the locks and dam controversy.

It called on citizens to boycott businesses that advertise in the Town Talk and shop in other towns "which have newspapers that report matters of interest to the general public in a factual and accurate manner."

Several members pointed out that organizations such as the Realtors Board had passed a resolution favoring the location of the locks above Jonesville.

"The only side heard by the real estate group was that of the paid employee of the Louisiana Wilf Life and Fisheries Commission, Harry Gates of Lake Charles, a man who was employed only a few weeks ago when this controversy of the location of the locks began," a member of the club stated.

Other organizations in Rapides and Alexandria adopting resolutions favoring a north of Jonesville location of the locks and dam included the Rapides Police Jury, and the Cosmopolititan Club it was stated at the meeting.

Twenty - four governing bodies, civic clubs and other organizations in Catahoula, Concordia and LaSalle parishes have adopted and re - adopted, some for the third time, favoring the south of Jonesville location.

Crisis Slows U.S. Business

SECOND IN ROW

Record Market Week On Books

NEW YORK (AP)—Like a sailboat tacking first in one direction and then the other, the stock market seemed to move sideways most of this week, but it ended at the goal sought by most investors—record highs on average.

For the second week in a row, the Associated Press 60-stock average and Dow Jones average of 30 industrials closed Friday at new peaks. Right there, however, any similarity between the two weeks ended. In contrast to the previous vigorous rise on expanding trading volume, this week's advance was weak and on declining turnover.

The AP average rose 0.50 to 254.40, but a close look at its components showed industrials down 0.20, rails down 0.40 and utilities up 1.40. Dow Jones industrials were up only 1.92 at 722.61 for the week.

Trading interest spread from the blue chip issues making up the popular averages to other, secondary issues, including many which had previously starred in the long advance from last October until this spring.

Analysts said the market seemed to be paying little attention to such things as Russia's second successful space flight, Soviet Premier Khrushchev's tough talk on bombs and Berlin and a generally favorable batch of business news. Instead, they said, traders and investors were concentrating on individual issues.

Despite profit-taking in some stocks, there was plenty of buying interest in others. Such things as a stock's technical position on the chart patterns apparently out weighed traditional yardsticks such as price-earnings ratios and the outlook for the issue's industry.

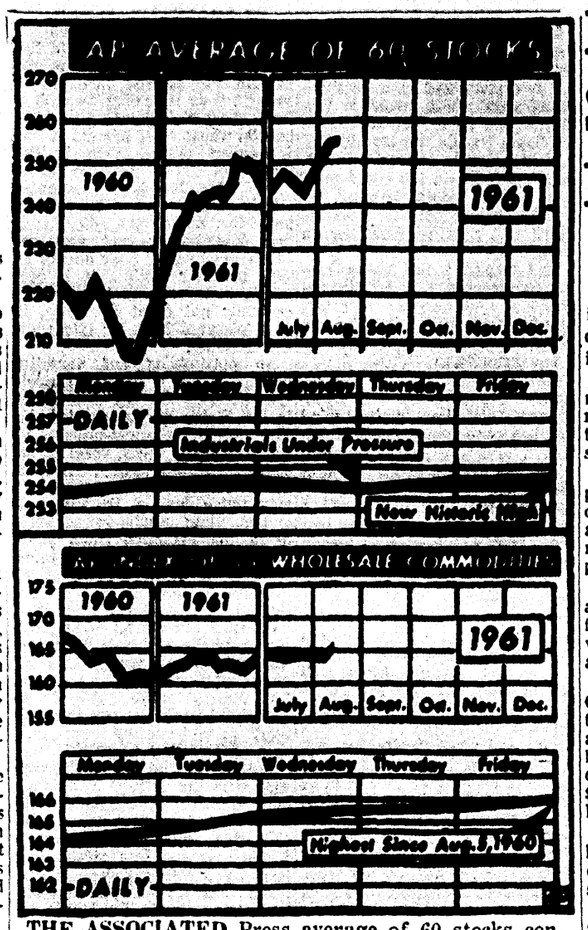
The Thursday-Friday rise, coupled with simultaneous advances by the Dow Jones industrial average, caused some concern to technicians, since trading was lower both days. The Street starts to worry when volume contracts on rising prices; grins when volume goes up along with prices.

Share turnover came to 18,163,380, off slightly from 18,832,710 a week earlier.

The main background factor continued to be the prospect of increased defense spending on conjunction with an already expanding economy.

Brokers were pleased at the way the market easily digested the previous gains and said it was consolidating these while "building a base" for further upward moves. They noted little selling pressure against any issues.

The bond markets remained mired in the minus column for the third week in a row. The U. S. government list was off a maximum of almost one point—nearly as much as the previous setback which was the worst since late May. Corporate volume declined to $30,569,000 par value from $44,036,000 the previous week.



THE ASSOCIATED Press average of 60 stocks continued to climb to a new historic high when it closed this week at 254.4, up from 253.9 a week ago, as shown in the above chart. The commodity index, led by livestock, hit a new 1961 high, closing at 166.0 from 164.1 in the preceding period. This is the highest since August, 1960. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

Camera Notes

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

One of the important aspects of summer snapshooting, easily overlooked, is some sort of system for the preservation and filing of negatives and prints. It is so easy to keep shooting but it gets progressively harder to maintain order as the pile of pictures accumulates.

The sensible thing to do is to keep pace with the shooting by identifying and dating of pictures as they are processed. It should be one of the first chores attended to after returning from a vacation trip while the names, places and activities are still memory fresh.

Fortunately there is a trend on the part of commercial processors to aid in this direction. For one thing, it's a help when prints and color slides have the processing date imprinted on them because it's a neat and permanent record. This is more prevalent in the color field but could be extended to all commercial processing.

In the black - and - white photo finishing field, a new type of envelope has been developed to make negative filing easier. It is the brainchild of Max Froehlich of Philadelphia after studying the methods of picture - conscious Japan and Europe.

As a prolific picture taker himself, he was quite unhappy with the various ways in which negatives are returned to camera fans in this country. None of them seemed to make an orderly system for saving and identifying the precious negatives. So he designed his own.

It had to be incorporated, however, in the same envelope which would hold the original rolls of films brought in to camera shops for processing and which is returned to the photographer with the finished results.

Froehlich's answer was an inner compartment to hold negatives of all roll film sizes. This compartment is perforated all around so it can be separated instantly from the envelope and used as a permanent negative folder. It is printed to provide all pertinent data by the photographer for filing away. It also has a reprint order blank so none of the negatives need go astray even for later reprinting.

The final step was to make an inexpensive storage box to hold a large number of these negative preservers for the filing system. It is likely that these boxes will be given as premiums to camera fans by their camera dealers or wherever films are processed.

Frohlich's idea appealed to a centry - old packaging firm in Philadelphia and is now making its appearance nationally as the Wolfotofile envelope. But if these aren't available yet in your local area, get started on your own system at once. Any system is better than no system at all or the haphazard accumulation of an assortment of negative envelopes which are likely to get dog-eared or play hide - and - seek as time goes on.

Tech Receives $17,000 Gift From Lion Oil

RUSTON (Special) —Moving day for the research department of Lion Oil Company, a Division of Monsanto Chemical Company, at El Dorado, Ark., proved a bonzana for Louisiana Polytechnic Institute in Ruston last week when a large and varied quantity of chemicals and heavy testing equipment was donated to the school's chemistry and engineering departments.

Total value of the gift was listed at $17,000, according to Dr. Charles Hooper Smith, head of LPI's chemistry department, and Dean Ben F. Bogard, head of the school's engineering department. The donation was arranged through Dr. R. C. Tallman, Lion vice president and director of research, prior to the group's transfer on July 25 to St. Louis where Monsanto has just completed a fully equipped multi-million dollar research center.

In addition to about $4,000 worth of chemicals, LPI received a 100-horsepower General Electric dynamometer and auxiliary equipment originally costing more than $20,000 but valued presently at about $13,000. Wheat Futures Apparently Best Trading Buys

CHICAGO (AP)—Wheat futures apparently became the best buy this week on the Board of Trade. Brokers frequently mentioned them as holding good promise for profits, and the opinion seemed to attract a good deal of speculative trade.

It was the only grain on the exchange to show even moderate general gains, as almost all other contracts continued under fairly steady selling pressure.

Soybeans were hardest hit and slid off more than five cents a bushel on the September delivery while other months declined as much as three cents on liquidation linked with the outlook for a record high yield.

Wheat closed the week ⅞-1⅜ cents a bushel higher than a week ago. September $1.98⅝-½; corn ⅞-1⅛ lower, September $1.11½-⅜; oats ½ lower to ¾ higher, September 68½-⅝; rye ½-1¾ lower, September $1.29½-¾; soybeans 2½-5¾ lower, September $2.45½-¼.

Berlin Issue Settlement Is Predicted

By JACK LEFLER
AP BNews Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Mounting international tensions, failed to dampen the business outlook during the week.

Despite Khrushchev's rocket-rattling, the consensus among financial leaders seemed to be that the Berlin crisis would be settled short of war.

In that case, they felt, the pumping of additional billions of dollars into defense spending will accelerate a business recovery already moving along at a good pace.

Senate and House conferees agreed on a record $46-billion defense appropriations bill which will make its impact felt through a wide range of industries.

Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg predicted the gross national product—total of all goods and services—will reach a $535-billion annual rate in the fourth quarter. He estimated the rate at $515 billion currently and $500 billion last January.

"What this means is that we have a substantial amount of recovery from the recession," he said.

The Labor Department reported the average weekly hours of factory workers increased by one-tenth of an hour to 40.1 hours in July.

It said the survey of manufacturing payrolls showed that "we have recovered to prerecession levels in terms of wage and salary workers."

The statistical publishing firm, F. W. Dodge Corp., reported that construction contracts in the first half of this year totaled $18.2 billion, up 4 per cent from the 1960 first half. It predicted the yearly total would be a record.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York, looking at the economy as a whole, found that the current rate of recovery has been pretty much in line with those experienced during the early stages of other postwar cyclical upturns.

The Commerce Department announced that retail sales in July totaled $18.06 billion, down 1 per cent from the June figure of $18.27 billion.

A smattering of price increases occurred. Canon Mills, Inc., boosted the prices of white towels 3 per cent; steel scrap prices advanced up to $2 a ton in Chicago; Continental Can Co. marked up corrugated material used in making shipping containers $9.50 a ton, or 8 per cent.

Beef prices are expected to go tenth of an hour to 40.1 hours in tions at major livestock centers have advanced $2.50 a hundred pounds, the sharpest rise in five years.

The steel industry found encouragement in a production increase during the week. Output advanced about 2 per cent from the previous week to 1.85 million tons.

The industry publication, Iron Age, said a sharp upturn in steel demand and production is developing.

All of the automobile assembly plants except Ford were closed during the week for model change over. As a result, production sagged to an estimated 21,000 passenger cars. The industry built 32,432 cars the previous week and 84,139 a year ago. First 1962 models will be turned out in the coming week.

Dealers sold 419,982 new cars in July, down only 2 per cent from the July 1960 total. This was the closest that sales for any month this year had come to the like month last year.

Labor negotiations between the carmakers and the United Auto Workers plodded on. General Motors and Chrysler local union leaders across the country asked for a strike authorization vote by the union's executive board. Contracts at General Motors, Chrysler and Ford expire Aug. 31.

U.S. OIL AND GAS

Lease Acreage Down

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON (AP) — Oil and gas acreage leases in the United States declined by nearly two million acres last year.

The 1960 decline was only the second for the domestic industry since the end of World War II.

The industry had 422.3 million acres under lease at the end of the year, compared to a record 424.2 million at the end of 1959.

All of the decline resulted from leases held in unexplored or nonproductive areas.

Leases in proven areas climbed 700,000 acres to a record 25.8 million but non-productive leases declined 2.6 million to 396.5 million acres.

The figures reflect the industry's problems of oversupply. The world surplus of crude oil has caused many domestic operators to place more emphasis on less expensive development wells and pour less money into risky wildcats in unproven areas.

The 1960 figures were released this week in the latest edition of "The Oil Industry in Your State," a biannual publication the Independent Petroleum Association of America began compiling in 1951.

The seven editions published so far reflect impressive growth by the industry the past decade despite recurring problems of too much oil.

Domestic crude production averaged only 6,149,000 (m) barrels a day in 1951. It reached a record 7,169,600 (m) in 1957 but dropped back to 7,035,350 (m) last year.

Acreage held under lease in 1951 totaled only 273 million acres. The 422.3 million held at the end of 1960 represented a 54 per cent increase in 10 years.

Leases held in productive or proven areas increased 40 per cent, totaling only 17.6 million acres in 1951.

Non-productive leases in unexplored areas jumped 55 per cent.

The number of oil and gas producing states increased from 27 to 33.

Nevada and South Dakota were added in 1954, Washington in 1957, and Arizona in 1958. Alaska, with production since 1944, was added to domestic operations in 1959. Maryland, with a bit of production as early as 1949, moved out of the miscellaneous category in 1959.

Acreage under lease has declined in 10 years in only seven states — Florida, Illinois, Kentucky, Montana, New York, North Dakota, and Virginia.

West Virginia replaced North Dakota as the state with the largest percentage of its total acreage under lease.

A boom got under way in North Dakota in 1950 and operators had 67 per cent of the states' 44.8 million acres under lease by the end of 1951. Leases were dropped as the boom leveled off but 48 per cent of the state still was under lease last year.

Operators meanwhile were showing renewed interest in West Virginia, which recorded its first production in 1956. Only 38 per cent of the state's 15.4 million acres were under lease in 1951. A jump to 52 per cent last year moved the state into first place.

The most impressive percentage gains of the decade were made by Mississippi and Colorado.

Mississippi, with 19 per cent of its 30.2 million acres under lease in 1951, had 45 per cent under lease last year. Colorado, with 66.5 million acres, jumped from 15 to 41 per cent.

Pennsylvania, the birthplace of the domestic industry in 1859, also made an impressive comeback. The state began the decade with oilmen interested in only 15 per cent of its 28.8 million acres. By 1960, operators held leases on 11.1 million acres or 39 per cent.

The top 10 states with the largest percentages of their total acreage under lease in 1951 were North Dakota, Florida, West Virginia, Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Montana, Kentucky, Wyoming, and Missouri.

At the end of 1960, the top 10 were West Virginia, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Texas, Mississippi, Wyoming, Colorado, Utah, Pennsylvania, and Louisiana.

Auto Company Wants Profit Sharing Plan

Industry In 1958 Turned Down A Similar Demand

EDITOR'S NOTE — The auto industry turned down profit-sharing in 1958, when presently expiring wage pacts were written. Now smallish, but money - making American Motors has proposed it. Why does American Motors believe it can live with profit-sharing? Why do the Big Three — General Motors, Ford and Chrysler fear it? Here are some of the answers.

DETROIT (AP) — American Motors Corp. terms its profit-sharing offer to the United Auto Workers Union "progress-sharing."

But it doesn't quibble if you call it profit-sharing, and Vice President Edward L. Cushman grins as he spreads before you screaming, 47-year-old newspaper headlines.

Henry Ford made the headlines when he jumped auto wages from $2.34 to $5 a day in 1914 and termed it the "profit-sharing plan of the Ford Motor Co. for its employes."

In the view of Cushman, AMC's architect in building labor relations, Ford was sharing the progress his company had made in advancing from financial weakling to profit-making giant.

In the view of the Big Three—General Motors Corp., Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp.—production workers have shared ever since in the industry's progress.

The average wage is now $2.80 an hour—$22.40 a day. Additionally, workers now get more pension and other fringe benefits in a day than they got total wages before Jan. 12, 1914.

Cushman agrees with the Big Three view but adds: "We have believed for many yars that profit-sharing is the mainspring advancing the American economy. We have given it intense scrutiny since 1958. We also have got the thinking of outside consultants.

"Our studies indicate profit-sharing companies generally are more profitable than others of like type which do not have one. I'm not saying, of course, that's the only reason, but it must be something more than a coincidence."

The 1961 offer of American Motors is quite different from the 1958 profit-sharing demand of the United Auto Workers Union.

Cushman said AMC's package was designed expressly for AMC and not as a pattern for the industry. It proposes giving workers a 10 per cent cut of profits before taxes—after deducting 10 per cent of the company's net worth for stockholders. AMC figures its net worth at $220 million and 10 per cent of this would be $22 million.

The plan UAW President Walter P. Reuther unsuccessfully proposed in 1958 would have given a company profits equal to 10 per cent of net capital invested in it. Of the remaining profits, also before taxes, 50 per cent would have gone to stockholders and company executives, 25 per cent to hourly rated and salaried workers and 25 per cent to customers as rebates.

Some 28,000 profit-sharing plans are registered with the Internal Revenue Service including Procter & Gamble, which inaugurated its plan in 1887; Eastman Kodak (1912), Sears, Roebuck & Co., Standard Oil of California, Dow Chemical, Jewell Tea, Johnson's Wax, and the Washington Post and Times-Herald.

All elements of the industry fear a profit-sharing wage plan might lead to attempts by the United Auto Workers to win a voice in matters now reserved exclusively to management.

AMC in its proposal demands "a clear unchangeable management rights clause."

Stamp News

Three of Israel's Biblical heroes — Samson, Simon Bar Kochba and Judah Maccabeus — will be honored on three new stamps to be issued by Israel to commemorate the Jewish New Year.

These stamps are a continuation of last year's popular series which had as its theme the first three kings of Israel, reports the Israel Philatelic Agency in America.

The 7 agorot features Samson carrying a torch. His feats of strength have been recorded through the ages including his slaying a thousand enemies with an animal's jawbone.

The 25 agorot shows Bar Kochba carrying a shield. He was the leader of the Jewish insurrection against Roman Emperor Hadrian and his heroic deeds in battle are legendary.

The 40 agorot depicts Maccabeus kneeling with bow and arrows. His bravery in battle helped preserve the Jewish ancestral faith and his particular exploits on one occasion are responsible for the celebration of the Feast of Lights (Chanukah).

West Germany continues its new definitive series featuring world famous Germans by issuing two new stamps honoring Johann Gutenberg and Elizabeth Von Thuringen.

Gutenberg, born in 1398, is famous for printing the first book from movable type. His Gutenberg Bible is extremely rare with only 49 copies known to be in existence. 13 of them in the United States. Gutenberg was honored by the U. S. in 1952 when a postage stamp commemorated the 500th anniversary of the printing of his Bible. The new West German adhesive bearing his likeness is an 8 pfennig value.

Elizabeth Von Thuringen, depicted on the 7 pfennig, was born in 1207 and was the daughter of King Andrew II. She married Louis IV of Thuringia and devoted herself to religion and charity. She died in 1231 and was canonized in 1235. The new stamp carries the inset "Berlin."

Happy Over Full Car Size; Wants To Remain Thus

By BEN PHLEGAR
AP Automotive Writer

DETROIT (AP)—Clare Briggs says he is quite happy his Chrysler division stuck to a full-sized car for 1961 and he intends no change in strategy for 1962.

Briggs chose the big car route last year while his competition, mainly Buick, Oldsmobile and Pontiac, introduced compact cars to supplement the medium-price lines.

Over-all sales results are far from clear cut, but Briggs insists he is satisfied.

Through the first six months of 1961 when the total new car market was down 15 per cent Chrysler sales—the car, not the corporation—were up 9 per cent from 1960. For the similar period sales of the standard-size Pontiac were off 41 per cent; standard Oldsmobile was off 31 per cent and standard Buick was off 29 per cent.

Several other factors must also be considered, however. Chrysler introduced a new, slightly lower-priced series called the Newport, which accounts for almost half of the Chrysler sales. The parent corporation finally abandoned DeSoto, which had been offered in the Newport price range.

The marketing strategy hopefully was that the Chrysler nameplate would sell as many or more cars than Chrysler-DeSoto combined had done in the previous year. It hasn't. Chrysler sales are 19 per cent under the 1960 Chrysler-DeSoto total.

At the GM divisions the new compacts have taken up much of the slack in big car sales. At Buick, combined sales of standard Buicks and the compact Buick Specials in the first six months of this year were 3 per cent ahead of Buick sales in the first half of 1960.

Oldsmobile, plus the new F-85, was down 12 per cent (against 31 per cent for the big car alone) and Pontiac, plus the Tempest, was down 15 per cent, same as the market as a whole.

Briggs says he firmly believes the GM compacts will continue to make inroads on the standard-size cars of Pontiac, Oldsmobile and Buick.

Cotton Futures Rose For Week After Slow Start

NEW YORK (AP)—Cotton futures rose again this week, firming up after an indecisive start. They closed 3 to 18 points higher than a week earlier.

One of the factors credited with giving strength to prices was the announcement of the government's official crop forecast.

At first there was little reaction —and considerable comment. Most observers had anticipated a prospective output of more than 14 million bales.

The official forecast, however, was for 13,900,000 bales, considerably below last year's output of 14,272,000 bales. One cause was abandonment of plantings because of low temperatures and wet soils.

The low forecast tended to firm prices later in the week. Also aiding was demand attributed to the prospect of heavy loan impoundings this season.

Crisis Slows U.S. Business

SECOND IN ROW

Record Market Week On Books

NEW YORK (AP)—Like a sailboat tacking first in one direction and then the other, the stock market seemed to move sideways most of this week, but it ended at the goal sought by most investors—record highs on average.

For the second week in a row, the Associated Press 60-stock average and Dow Jones average of 30 industrials closed Friday at new peaks. Right there, however, any similarity between the two weeks ended. In contrast to the previous vigorous rise on expanding trading volume, this week's advance was weak and on declining turnover.

The AP average rose 0.50 to 254.40, but a close look at its components showed industrials down 0.20, rails down 0.40 and utilities up 1.40. Dow Jones industrials were up only 1.92 at 722.61 for the week.

Trading interest spread from the blue chip issues making up the popular averages to other, secondary issues, including many which had previously starred in the long advance from last October until this spring.

Analysts said the market seemed to be paying little attention to such things as Russia's second successful space flight, Soviet Premier Khrushchev's tough talk on bombs and Berlin and a generally favorable batch of business news. Instead, they said, traders and investors were concentrating on individual issues.

Despite profit-taking in some stocks, there was plenty of buying interest in others. Such things as a stock's technical position on the chart patterns apparently out weighed traditional yardsticks such as price-earnings ratios and the outlook for the issue's industry.

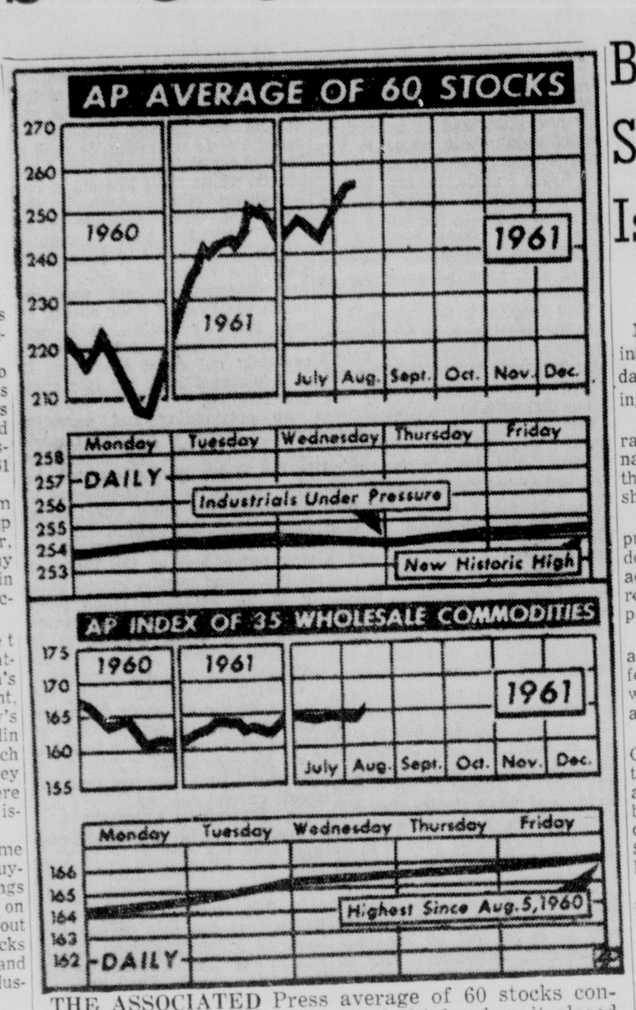
The Thursday-Friday rise, coupled with simultaneous advances by the Dow Jones industrial average, caused some concern to technicians, since trading was lower both days. The Street starts to worry when volume contracts on rising prices; grins when volume goes up along with prices.

Share turnover came to 18,163,380, off slightly from 18,832,710 a week earlier.

The main background factor continued to be the prospect of increased defense spending on conjunction with an already expanding economy.

Brokers were pleased at the way the market easily digested the previous gains and said it was consolidating these while "building a base" for further upward moves. They noted little selling pressure against any issues.

The bond markets remained mired in the minus column for the third week in a row. The U. S. government list was off a maximum of almost one point—nearly as much as the previous setback which was the worst since late May. Corporate volume declined to $30,569,000 par value from $44,036,000 the previous week.



THE ASSOCIATED Press average of 60 stocks continued to climb to a new historic high when it closed this week at 254.4, up from 253.9 a week ago, as shown in the above chart. The commodity index, led by livestock, hit a new 1961 high, closing at 166.0 from 164.1 in the preceding period. This is the highest since August, 1960. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

Berlin Issue Settlement Is Predicted

By JACK LEFLER
AP BNews Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Mounting international tensions, failed to dampen the business outlook during the week.

Despite Khrushchev's rocket-rattling, the consensus among financial leaders seemed to be that the Berlin crisis would be settled short of war.

In that case, they felt, the pumping of additional billions of dollars into defense spending will accelerate a business recovery already moving along at a good pace.

Senate and House conferees agreed on a record $46-billion defense appropriations bill which will make its impact felt through a wide range of industries.

Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg predicted the gross national product—total of all goods and services—will reach a $535-billion annual rate in the fourth quarter. He estimated the rate at $515 billion currently and $500 billion last January.

"What this means is that we have a substantial amount of recovery from the recession," he said.

The Labor Department reported the average weekly hours of factory workers increased by one-tenth of an hour to 40.1 hours in July.

It said the survey of manufacturing payrolls showed that "we have recovered to prerecession levels in terms of wage and salary workers."

The statistical publishing firm, F. W. Dodge Corp., reported that construction contracts in the first half of this year totaled $18.2 billion, up 4 per cent from the 1960 first half. It predicted the yearly total would be a record.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York, looking at the economy as a whole, found that the current rate of recovery has been pretty much in line with those experienced during the early stages of other postwar cyclical upturns.

The Commerce Department announced that retail sales in July totaled $18.06 billion, down 1 per cent from the June figure of $18.27 billion.

A smattering of price increases occurred. Canon Mills, Inc., boosted the prices of white towels 3 per cent; steel scrap prices advanced up to $2 a ton in Chicago; Continental Can Co. marked up corrugated material used in making shipping containers $9.50 a ton, or 8 per cent.

Beef prices are expected to go tenth of an hour to 40.1 hours in tions at major livestock centers have advanced $2.50 a hundred pounds, the sharpest rise in five years.

The steel industry found encouragement in a production increase during the week. Output advanced about 2 per cent from the previous week to 1.85 million tons.

The industry publication, Iron Age, said a sharp upturn in steel demand and production is developing.

All of the automobile assembly plants except Ford were closed during the week for model change over. As a result, production sagged to an estimated 21,000 passenger cars. The industry built 32,432 cars the previous week and 84,139 a year ago. First 1962 models will be turned out in the coming week.

Dealers sold 419,982 new cars in July, down only 2 per cent from the July 1960 total. This was the closest that sales for any month this year had come to the like month last year.

Labor negotiations between the carmakers and the United Auto Workers plodded on. General Motors and Chrysler local union leaders across the country asked for a strike authorization vote by the union's executive board. Contracts at General Motors, Chrysler and Ford expire Aug. 31.

Stamp News

Three of Israel's Biblical heroes — Samson, Simon Bar Kochba and Judah Maccabeus — will be honored on three new stamps to be issued by Israel to commemorate the Jewish New Year.

These stamps are a continuation of last year's popular series which had as its theme the first three kings of Israel, reports the Israel Philatelic Agency in America.

The 7 agorot features Samson carrying a torch. His feats of strength have been recorded through the ages including his slaying a thousand enemies with an animal's jawbone.

The 25 agorot shows Bar Kochba carrying a shield. He was the leader of the Jewish insurrection against Roman Emperor Hadrian and his heroic deeds in battle are legendary.

The 40 agorot depicts Maccabeus kneeling with bow and arrows. His bravery in battle helped preserve the Jewish ancestral faith and his particular exploits on one occasion are responsible for the celebration of the Feast of Lights (Chanukah).

West Germany continues its new definitive series featuring world famous Germans by issuing two new stamps honoring Johann Gutenberg and Elizabeth Von Thuringen.

Gutenberg, born in 1398, is famous for printing the first book from movable type. His Gutenberg Bible is extremely rare with only 49 copies known to be in existence, 13 of them in the United States. Gutenberg was honored by the U. S. in 1952 when a postage stamp commemorated the 500th anniversary of the printing of his Bible. The new West German adhesive bearing his likeness is an 8 pfennig value.

Elizabeth Von Thuringen, depicted on the 7 pfennig, was born in 1207 and was the daughter of King Andrew II. She married Louis IV of Thuringia and devoted herself to religion and charity. She died in 1231 and was canonized in 1235. The new stamp carries the inset "Berlin."

Happy Over Full Car Size; Wants To Remain Thus

By BEN PHLEGAR
AP Automotive Writer

DETROIT (AP)—Clare Briggs says he is quite happy his Chrysler division stuck to a full-sized car for 1961 and he intends no change in strategy for 1962.

Briggs chose the big car route last year while his competition, mainly Buick, Oldsmobile and Pontiac, introduced compact cars to supplement the medium-price lines.

Over-all sales results are far from clear cut, but Briggs insists he is satisfied.

Through the first six months of 1961 when the total new car market was down 15 per cent Chrysler sales—the car, not the corporation—were up 9 per cent from 1960. For the similar period sales of the standard-size Pontiac were off 41 per cent; standard Oldsmobile was off 31 per cent and standard Buick was off 29 per cent.

Several other factors must also be considered, however. Chrysler introduced a new, slightly lower-priced series called the Newport, which accounts for almost half of the Chrysler sales. The parent corporation finally abandoned DeSoto, which had been offered in the Newport price range.

The marketing strategy hopefully was that the Chrysler nameplate would sell as many or more cars than Chrysler-DeSoto combined had done in the previous year. It hasn't. Chrysler sales are 19 per cent under the 1960 Chrysler-DeSoto total.

At the GM divisions the new compacts have taken up much of the slack in big car sales. At Buick, combined sales of standard Buicks and the compact Buick Specials in the first six months of this year were 3 per cent ahead of Buick sales in the first half of 1960.

Oldsmobile, plus the new F-85, was down 12 per cent (against 31 per cent for the big car alone) and Pontiac, plus the Tempest, was down 15 per cent, same as the market as a whole.

Briggs says he firmly believes the GM compacts will continue to make inroads on the standard-size cars of Pontiac, Oldsmobile and Buick.

Cotton Futures Rose For Week After Slow Start

NEW YORK (AP)—Cotton futures rose again this week, firming up after an indecisive start. They closed 3 to 18 points higher than a week earlier.

One of the factors credited with giving strength to prices was the announcement of the government's official crop forecast.

At first there was little reaction —and considerable comment. Most observers had anticipated a prospective output of more than 14 million bales.

The official forecast, however, was for 13,900,000 bales, considerably below last year's output of 14,272,000 bales. One cause was abandonment of plantings because of low temperatures and wet soils.

The low forecast tended to firm prices later in the week. Also aiding was demand attributed to the prospect of heavy loan impoundings this season.

Camera Notes

One of the important aspects of summer snapshooting, easily overlooked, is some sort of system for the preservation and filing of negatives and prints. It is so easy to keep shooting but it gets progressively harder to maintain order as the pile of pictures accumulates.

The sensible thing to do is to keep pace with the shooting by identifying and dating of pictures as they are processed. It should be one of the first chores attended to after returning from a vacation trip while the names, places and activities are still memory fresh.

Fortunately there is a trend on the part of commercial processors to aid in this direction. For one thing, it's a help when prints and color slides have the processing date imprinted on them because it's a neat and permanent record. This is more prevalent in the color field but could be extended to all commercial processing.

In the black - and - white photo finishing field, a new type of envelope has been developed to make negative filing easier. It is the brainchild of Max Froehlich of Philadelphia after studying the methods of picture - conscious Japan and Europe.

As a prolific picture taker himself, he was quite unhappy with the various ways in which negatives are returned to camera fans in this country. None of them seemed to make an orderly system for saving and identifying the precious negatives. So he designed his own.

It had to be incorporated, however, in the same envelope which would hold the original rolls of films brought in to camera shops for processing and which is returned to the photographer with the finished results.

Froehlich's answer was an inner compartment to hold negatives of all roll film sizes. This compartment is perforated all around so it can be separated instantly from the envelope and used as a permanent negative folder. It is printed to provide all pertinent data by the photographer for filing away. It also has a reprint order blank so none of the negatives need go astray even for later reprinting.

The final step was to make an inexpensive storage box to hold a large number of these negative preservers for the filing system. It is likely that these boxes will be given as premiums to camera fans by their camera dealers or wherever films are processed.

Frohlich's idea appealed to a century - old packaging firm in Philadelphia and is now making its appearance nationally as the Wolfotofile envelope. But if these aren't available yet in your local area, get started on your own system at once. Any system is better than no system at all or the haphazard accumulation of an assortment of negative envelopes which are likely to get dog-eared or play hide - and - seek as time goes on.

Tech Receives $17,000 Gift From Lion Oil

RUSTON (Special) —Monday for the research department of Lion Oil Company, a Division of Monsanto Chemical Company, at El Dorado, Ark., proved a bonzana for Louisiana Polytechnic Institute in Ruston last week when a large and varied quantity of chemicals and heavy testing equipment was donated to the school's chemistry and engineering departments.

Total value of the gift was listed at $17,000, according to Dr. Charles Hooper Smith, head of LPI's chemistry department, and Dean Ben F. Bogard, head of the school's engineering department. The donation was arranged through Dr. R. C. Tallman, Lion vice président and director of research, prior to the group's transfer on July 25 to St. Louis where Monsanto has just completed a fully equipped multi-million dollar research center.

In addition to about $4,000 worth of chemicals, LPI received a 100-horsepower General Electric dynamometer and auxiliary equipment originally costing more than $20,000 but valued presently at about $13,000. Some of the miscellaneous pieces were listed as a 1958 Oldsmobile engine mounted on test block, control panels, load resistors, two electric blowers, one jaw crusher, two electrically driven pumps, and an "exciter."

Wheat Futures Apparently Best Trading Buys

CHICAGO (AP)—Wheat futures apparently became the best buy this week on the Board of Trade. Brokers frequently mentioned them as holding good promise for profits, and the opinion seemed to attract a good deal of speculative trade.

It was the only grain on the exchange to show even moderate general gains, as almost all other contracts continued under fairly steady selling pressure.

Soybeans were hardest hit and slid off more than five cents a bushel on the September delivery while other months declined as much as three cents on liquidation linked with the outlook for a record high yield.

Wheat closed the week ⅞-1⅜ cents a bushel higher than a week ago. September $1.98⅜-½; corn ⅞-1⅛ lower, September $1.11½-⅜; oats ½ lower to ¾ higher, September 68½-⅝; rye ½-1¾ lower, September $1.29½-¾; soybeans 2½-5¾ lower, September $2.45½-¾.

U.S. OIL AND GAS

Lease Acreage Down

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON (AP) — Oil and gas acreage leases in the United States declined by nearly two million acres last year.

The 1960 decline was only the second for the domestic industry since the end of World War II.

The industry had 422.3 million acres under lease at the end of the year, compared to a record 424.2 million at the end of 1959.

All of the decline resulted from leases held in unexplored or nonproductive areas.

Leases in proven areas climbed 700,000 acres to a record 25.8 million but non-productive leases declined 2.6 million to 396.5 million acres.

The figures reflect the industry's problems of oversupply. The world surplus of crude oil has caused many domestic operators to place more emphasis on less expensive development wells and pour less money into risky wildcats in unproven areas.

The 1960 figures were released this week in the latest edition of "The Oil Industry in Your State," a biannual publication the Independent Petroleum Association of America began compiling in 1951.

The seven editions published so far reflect impressive growth by the industry the past decade despite recurring problems of too much oil.

Domestic crude production averaged only 6,149,000 (m) barrels a day in 1951. It reached a record 7,169,600 (m) in 1957 but dropped back to 7,035,350 (m) last year.

Acreage held under lease in 1951 totaled only 273 million acres. The 422.3 million held at the end of 1960 represented a 54 per cent increase in 10 years.

Leases held in productive or proven areas increased 40 per cent, totaling only 17.6 million acres in 1951.

Non-productive leases in unexplored areas jumped 55 per cent.

The number of oil and gas producing states increased from 27 to 33.

Nevada and South Dakota were added in 1954, Washington in 1957, and Arizona in 1958. Alaska, with production since 1944, was added to domestic operations in 1959. Maryland, with a bit of production as early as 1949, moved out of the miscellaneous category in 1959.

Acreage under lease has declined in 10 years in only seven states — Florida, Illinois, Kentucky, Montana, New York, North Dakota, and Virginia.

West Virginia replaced North Dakota as the state with the largest percentage of its total acreage under lease.

A boom got under way in North Dakota in 1950 and operators had 67 per cent of the states' 44.8 million acres under lease by the end of 1951. Leases were dropped as the boom leveled off but 48 per cent of the state still was under lease last year.

Operators meanwhile were showing renewed interest in West Virginia, which recorded its first production in 1956. Only 38 per cent of the state's 15.4 million acres were under lease in 1951. A jump to 52 per cent last year moved the state into first place.

The most impressive percentage gains of the decade were made by Mississippi and Colorado.

Mississippi, with 19 per cent of its 30.2 million acres under lease in 1951, had 45 per cent under lease last year. Colorado, with 66.5 million acres, jumped from 15 to 41 per cent.

Pennsylvania, the birthplace of the domestic industry in 1859, also made an impressive comeback. The state began the decade with oilmen interested in only 15 per cent of its 28.8 million acres. By 1960, operators held leases on 11.1 million acres or 39 per cent.

The top 10 states with the largest percentages of their total acreage under lease in 1951 were North Dakota, Florida, West Virginia, Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Montana, Kentucky, Wyoming, and Missouri.

At the end of 1960, the top 10 were West Virginia, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Texas, Mississippi, Wyoming, Colorado, Utah, Pennsylvania, and Louisiana.

Men Dream Of Colonies On Planets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Men have dreamed of colonizing other planets in the solar system if the earth should become too crowded for comfort and safety.

Many scientists agree that our own planet may become overstocked with people some day. Last November a group of University of Illinois scientists reported the mathematical conclusion that doomsday will arrive on earth on Friday, Nov. 13, 2026 — if the population continues to grow in future as it has in the past.

On doomsday, these scientists said, the population will approach infinity, a number too big to count, imagine, or tolerate. The Illinois group said space travel had been proposed as an alternative to death by squeezing.

But Prof. V. Krasovsky of Moscow says resettling on other planets is out. In a recent article, digested here by the Commerce Department, Krasovsky says in effect that none of the other planets could support human life.

In any event, he says, if mankind has to make more room for itself, it would be far easier to cover earth's oceans with rafts serving as floating cities.

Krasovsky also dismissed the notion that man some day will exploit mineral resources on other planets. He feels this will never be economically feasible.

The purpose of space exploration, according to the digest of Krasovsky's article, "is to learn more of the universe around us . . ."

This is reminiscent of the views of Dr. Lee A. DuBridge president of the California Institute of Technology. DuBridge said a while back that it would make more sense to build cities at the bottom of the seas than to try to colonize the moon and planets.

He also scoffed at the idea that man may mine such things as gold, copper or uranium in space. He said the great space resource is knowledge of the universe which cannot be obtained on earth.

And no resource, DuBridge said "is more valuable than knowledge."

Kuwait Asks Withdrawal Of British Troops

KUWAIT (UPI)—Kuwait Saturday asked the withdrawal of all British troops from her soil and their replacement by an all-Arab security force, Arab League Secretary-General Abdel Khalek Hassouna said Saturday night.

Hassouna said a pact drawn up with Kuwaiti ruler Sheikh Abdullah As-Salim As-Sabah guarantees Kuwait's independence and maintains its security.

"The Arab states, according to the pact, are bound to consider any aggression against Kuwait as aggression against them all," Hassouna said.

The pact ended weeks of negotiations between Kuwait, whose membership in the Arab League was approved recently, and league representatives over the replacement of British troops by Arab soldiers.

Gunman Nabbed After Officers Use Tear Gas

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—A berserk gunman, suffering from face cancer, held 25 Los Angeles policemen at bay in an apartment building Saturday before he was forced from his room with tear gas.

Jack Bradner, 48, was booked at Hollywood station on charges of assault with intent to commit murder. Police said he wounded his landlady Mrs. Mitzi De Gerald, 43, in the arm when she knocked on his door after hearing gunshots.

Police said Bradner, a retired real estate man, also fired at police officers through the door when they were summoned.

Senate Floor Fight Looms On General

WASHINGTON (AP) — Seven senators agreed Friday that the governor of any state may pin four or even five stars on the shoulders of his adjutant general in the state National Guard.

But they also served notice that these guard generals must be qualified before they can get the same rank in the U.S. reserve forces.

Specifically, they urged the Senate to refuse confirmation for promotion to brigadier general of Gene Hal Williams, 33, Charleston, W.Va., attorney who now holds the rank of an Army reserve major.

It may take a Senate floor fight to decide the issue later but the objections of the seven, led by Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine, stalled Senate action Friday.

The Senate Armed Services Committee, after a closed-door disagreement voted 10-7 to send Williams' promotion on for Senate approval.

The formal minority report released Saturday said Williams, who has less than three years active-duty service, part of that as an enlisted man, "does not possess the military qualifications required for the rank of brigadier general in the Army reserve."

The dissenting senators stressed that they were not "reflecting on the character or integrity of the nominee."

Williams was named by Gov. William W. Barron as adjutant general of the West Virginia National Guard early this year with the stage rank of brigadier general.

Sen. Robert F. Byrd, D-W.Va., a friend of the Democratic governor and member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said he will push for Senate confirmation of the three-grade jump from major to brigadier general.

Defense Department officials said that in the past all state adjutant generals, who usually hold the rank of major general or brigadier general, automatically won the equal federal rank while serving in the state position.

But Deputy Secretary of Defense Roswell L. Gilpatric told the Senate committee that hereafter all such National Guard adjutant generals must meet the same qualifications as other reservists to qualify as generals on the federal list. These qualifications include holding the rank of

Plane Takes Off Despite Threat

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — A Trans World Airlines Convair took off on time Saturday despite a telephone threat to hijack the Chicago bound airliner.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation said a man called up the airline reservations department and asked "do you have a plane going to Cuba?"

The clerk said "no."

FOR DANGER SIGNALS

Diplomats Keep Watch On Iran

Notes from the foreign news cables:

Danger Signals:

Diplomats in London are keeping a watchful eye on Iran, fearing that Russian pressure may be revived before long. Khrushchev has hinte at trouble in Iran repeatedly in recent months and last week accused Iran's rulers of seeking U. S. help for protection against their own people. "But," Khrushchev adde, "nothing will help them." At the same time, there were reports of Russian troop movements in the area bordering Iran. Soviet military intervention seems highly unlikely but propaganda and threats may be expected to increase.

Family feud:

Two of the most intriguing questions involving the feud between the Kremlin and tiny Albania are these—did Russia really pull its submarines permanently out of the strategic Saseno base? Has Russia cut off aid to the mountainous country in retaliation for the Red Chinese freighters now docked in Albanian ports? Iron curtain experts doubt that the vital base has been closed but are inclined to think the Russians have slashed aid to the bone. Either way, party leader Hoxha still maintains his grip on the nation.

Problems:

Poland has a problem unusual for a Communist nation. Too many maids are working in Polish households. The weekly Polityka bemoaned recently the fact that there are about 40,000 maids in the country. This is a "glaring" contrast to economic and social changes because the number of maids shoul be decreasing, the weekly said. The paper said it hoped the number of maids would decrease with the improvement of working conditions in factories and farms.

Skeptics:

Hong Kong observers are skeptical of reports of heavy damage to Red China's rice crop as result of heavy floods in China's southern rice growing provinces. These observers believe that Peiping can expect a fair to good rice crop and will be able to continue exports of rice to southeast Asia and African nations where it has the most political effect. In contrast to the rice crop, however, Red China is believed to have a poor wheat crop for the third year in a row.

FOR TRAVEL

JFK's Spokesmen May Set Records

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (UPI)—Backstairs at the White House:

Unless Press Secretary Pierre Salinger and his associate, Andrew T. Hatcher, break stride they may set new records for travel and speechmaking by presidential spokesmen.

Salinger already has made four trips to Europe since President Kennedy's inauguration almost seven months ago, and he and Hatcher both have been in frequent evidence on speaking circuits.

Hatcher's latest effort in that direction was a unique one—a speech on "The New Frontier in Cosmetology," before the Southern Beauty Congress in Birmingham, Ala.

Asked back at the White House what the speech was about, Hatcher said he didn't have a text available. He said it had something to do with "making sacrifices."

Salinger's speeches have taken him to a number of cities since January. And he has accompanied Kennedy to Ottawa, Canada, and to Paris, London and Vienna.

He flew to those cities in advance to set up arrangements, then went there with Kennedy; later, he flew to France on his own, to escort his nine-year-old daughter there for a summer stay, and he has just returned from a Paris visit to confer with other press representatives of Western leaders.

All of which falls far short of the globe-trotting experiences of Salinger's predecessor, James C. Hagerty; but Hagerty started his extensive travel later in the Eisenhower administration than Salinger is doing in this one.

Once, Salinger and Hatcher either got signals crossed or failed to send up any because both accepted speaking engagements the same evening in two Ohio cities. By the time this was discovered, it was too late to change plans—so the press office was left, for several hours, in the capable hands of the White House's chief of records, Wayne Hawks.

Since then, more care has been exercised in planning dates. And during the height of the busy congressional season, with one foreign crisis following after another, Salinger and Hatcher have accepted fewer such bids.

But the likelihood, with congressional adjournment in sight, is that the pair will increasingly go their separate ways as traveling spokesman for the new frontier.

Bombing Victim Leaves Hospital

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — The victim of Nashville's "booby-trap" bombing was released Saturday from the hospital where she was cared for during the past 13 months.

"I'm luckier than a lot of people," said Mrs. Francis Tate. "I still have my arms and legs and a lot of people lose those."

Mrs. Tate moved into the home of her brother-in-law who along with his wife has been caring for Mrs. Tate's three children.

On a June morning in 1960 Mrs. Tate opened a gaily decorated package which she thought contained a gift for one of the children. The package which had been left on the mailbox, instead contained a deadly charge of dynamite, some buckshot and a triggering mechanism.

Two questions influence the choice of an advertising medium. First, what does it cost to reach a person with a sales message? Second, how many of those you reach will buy? A typical advertiser can reach a person through newspapers at least as economically as through other media. And the newspaper delivers an audience that likes to read advertising, prefers newspapers with advertising, and shops from advertising. Such an audience guarantees more sales action per message delivered, and makes newspapers the safer, surer ad medium. Why not send the daily newspaper to bat for you?

Men Dream Of Colonies On Planets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Men have dreamed of colonizing other planets in the solar system if the earth should become too crowded for comfort and safety.

Many scientists agree that our own planet may become overstocked with people some day. Last November a group of University of Illinois scientists reported the mathematical conclusion that doomsday will arrive on earth on Friday, Nov. 13, 2026 — if the population continues to grow in future as it has in the past.

On doomsday, these scientists said, the population will approach infinity, a number too big to count, imagine, or tolerate. The Illinois group said space travel had been proposed as an alternative to death by squeezing.

But Prof. V. Krasovsky of Moscow says resettling on other planets is out. In a recent article, digested here by the Commerce Department, Krasovsky says in effect that none of the other planets could support human life.

In any event, he says, if mankind has to make more room for itself, it would be far easier to cover earth's oceans with rafts serving as floating cities.

Krasovsky also dismissed the notion that man some day will exploit mineral resources on other planets. He feels this will never be economically feasible.

The purpose of space exploration, according to the digest of Krasovsky's article, "is to learn more of the universe around us . . ."

This is reminiscent of the views of Dr. Lee A. DuBridge president of the California Institute of Technology. DuBridge said a while back that it would make more sense to build cities at the bottom of the seas than to try to colonize the moon and planets.

He also scoffed at the idea that man may mine such things as gold, copper or uranium in space. He said the great space resource is knowledge of the universe which cannot be obtained on earth.

And no resource, DuBridge said "is more valuable than knowledge."

Kuwait Asks Withdrawal Of British Troops

KUWAIT (UPI)—Kuwait Saturday asked the withdrawal of all British troops from her soil and their replacement by an all-Arab security force, Arab League Secretary-General Abdel Khalek Hassouna said Saturday night.

Hassouna said a pact drawn up with Kuwaiti ruler Sheikh Abdullah As-Salim As-Sabah guarantees Kuwait's independence and maintains its security.

"The Arab states, according to the pact, are bound to consider any aggression against Kuwait as aggression against them all," Hassouna said.

The pact ended weeks of negotiations between Kuwait, whose membership in the Arab League was approved recently, and league representatives over the replacement of British troops by Arab soldiers.

Gunman Nabbed After Officers Use Tear Gas

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—A berserk gunman, suffering from face cancer, held 25 Los Angeles policemen at bay in an apartment building Saturday before he was forced from his room with tear gas.

Jack Bradner, 48, was booked at Hollywood station on charges of assault with intent to commit murder. Police said he wounded his landlady Mrs. Mitzi De Gerald, 43, in the arm when she knocked on his door after hearing gunshots.

Police said Bradner, a retired real estate man, also fired at police officers through the door when they were summoned.

Senate Floor Fight Looms On General

WASHINGTON (AP) — Seven senators agreed Friday that the governor of any state may pin four or even five stars on the shoulders of his adjutant general in the state National Guard.

But they also served notice that these guard generals must be qualified before they can get the same rank in the U.S. reserve forces.

Specifically, they urged the Senate to refuse confirmation for promotion to brigadier general of Gene Hal Williams, 33, Charleston, W.Va., attorney who now holds the rank of an Army reserve major.

It may take a Senate floor fight to decide the issue later but the objections of the seven, led by Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine, stalled Senate action Friday.

The Senate Armed Services Committee, after a closed-door disagreement voted 10-7 to send Williams' promotion on for Senate approval.

The formal minority report released Saturday said Williams, who has less than three years active-duty service, part of that as an enlisted man, "does not possess the military qualifications required for the rank of brigadier general in the Army reserve."

The dissenting senators stressed that they were not "reflecting on the character or integrity of the nominee."

Williams was named by Gov. William W. Barron as adjutant general of the West Virginia National Guard early this year with the stage rank of brigadier general.

Sen. Robert F. Byrd, D-W.Va., a friend of the Democratic governor and member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said he will push for Senate confirmation of the three-grade jump from major to brigadier general.

Defense Department officials said that in the past all state adjutant generals, who usually hold the rank of major general or brigadier general, automatically won the equal federal rank while serving in the state position.

But Deputy Secretary of Defense Roswell L. Gilpatric told the Senate committee that hereafter all such National Guard adjutant generals must meet the same qualifications as other reservists to qualify as generals on the federal list. These qualifications include holding the rank of

Diplomats Keep Watch On Iran

Notes from the foreign news cables:

Danger Signals:

Diplomats in London are keeping a watchful eye on Iran, fearing that Russian pressure may be revived before long. Khrushchev has hinte at trouble in Iran repeatedly in recent months and last week accused Iran's rulers of seeking U. S. help for protection against their own people. "But," Khrushchev adde, "nothing will help them." At the same time, there were reports of Russian troop movements in the area bordering Iran. Soviet military intervention seems highly unlikely but propaganda and threats may be expected to increase.

Family feud:

Two of the most intriguing questions involving the feud between the Kremlin and tiny Albania are these—did Russia really pull its submarines permanently out of the strategic Saseno base? Has Russia cut off aid to the mountainous country in retaliation for the Red Chinese freighters now docked in Albanian ports? Iron curtain experts doubt that the vital base has been closed but are inclined to think the Russians have slashed aid to the bone. Either way, party leader Hoxha still maintains his grip on the nation.

Problems:

Poland has a problem unusual for a Communist nation. Too many maids are working in Polish households. The weekly Polityka bemoaned recently the fact that there are about 40,000 maids in the country. This is a "glaring" contrast to economic and social changes because the number of maids shoul be decreasing, the weekly said. The paper said it hoped the number of maids would decrease with the improvement of working conditions in factories and farms.

Skeptics:

Hong Kong observers are skeptical of reports of heavy damage to Red China's rice crop as result of heavy floods in China's southern rice growing provinces. These observers believe that Peiping can expect a fair to good rice crop and will be able to continue exports of rice to southeast Asia and African nations where it has the most political effect. In contrast to the rice crop, however, Red China is believed to have a poor wheat crop for the third year in a row.

FOR TRAVEL

JFK's Spokesmen May Set Records

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (UPI)—Backstairs at the White House:

Unless Press Secretary Pierre Salinger and his associate, Andrew T. Hatcher, break stride they may set new records for travel and speechmaking by presidential spokesmen.

Salinger already has made four trips to Europe since President Kennedy's inauguration almost seven months ago, and he and Hatcher both have been in frequent evidence on speaking circuits.

Hatcher's latest effort in that direction was a unique one—a speech on "The New Frontier in Cosmetology," before the Southern Beauty Congress in Birmingham, Ala.

Asked back at the White House what the speech was about, Hatcher said he didn't have a text available. He said it had something to do with "making sacrifices."

Salinger's speeches have taken him to a number of cities since January. And he has accompanied Kennedy to Ottawa, Canada, and to Paris, London and Vienna.

He flew to those cities in advance to set up arrangements, then went there with Kennedy; later, he flew to France on his own, to escort his nine-year-old daughter there for a summer stay, and he has just returned from a Paris visit to confer with other press representatives of Western leaders.

BLAST THREE

Home Runs Push Giants Past Reds

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Willie Mays, Orlando Cepeda and Ed Bailey each walloped a homer Saturday, knocking in all the San Francisco runs as the Giants beat Cincinnati, 6-4, for the fifth straight triumph.

The three clouts eclipsed the batting production of Cincinnati's Vada Pinson, who knocked in all four of the losers' runs with a single and a three-run homer.

The center fielder also had another single and double in a perfect afternoon at bat.

The victory went to right-hander Jack Sanford, who needed eighta-inning relief from little Stu Miller after Pinson's homer and a single by Frank Robinson. The butterfly hurler promptly got Gus Bell to hit into an inning-ending double play.

A Candlestick Park crowd of 22,845 watched Mays slam his first homer of the month and 30th of the year in the third inning with mates aboard. Cepeda crashed his 31st round-trip blow in the sixth with Mays on first. Both homers came off starter Bob Purkey, who suffered his seventh setback against 13 victories as the third-place Giants took their second straight over second-place Cincinnati.

Bailey's 12th homer of the campaign, a solo smash off reliever Bill Henry, came in the eighth.

Sanford, winning his eighth of the season against six defeats, had little trouble with Cincinnati batters with the exception of Pinson.

In the third, John Edwards singled, reached second on a sacrifice and third on a balk before Vada singled him home.

All told, the Reds collected eight hits, against seven for the Giants.

Podres 5-Hits Cardinals For Victory No. 15

LOS ANGELES AP — Johnny Podres achieved a personal high by scoring his 15th victory with a five - hitter Saturday night as the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated St. Louis 5-1 and increased their National League lead to 2½ games.

The victory was the 18th for the Dodgers in their last 21 games and ended the Cardinals winning streak at eight.

Wally Moon and Frank Howard each drove in two runs and both figured in a three-run Dodger rally in the seventh. Howard has 18 hits in his last 60 at bats and has raised his batting average from .211 to .302 in that span.

Podres (15-3), who had never before won more than 14 games in a season, struck out four, walked only one and didn't allow an earned run.

The Cards got their only run in the fifth. Curt Flood and Jim Schaffer opened with singles and pitcher Larry Jackson laid down a bunt. Catcher Johnny Roseboro fielded the ball and threw it into center field trying for a play at second base as Flood scored on the error.

The Dodgers had picked up their first run in the third when Jim Gilliam reached base on a fielder's choice, took third on a single by Duke Snider and came in on a single by Moon.

Roseboro doubled with two out in the sixth and scored the deciding run when Norm Larker singled.

Jackson, who had won five straight, worked seven innings and took the loss—his ninth against eight victories.

"The Toe" Returns

Groza, a regular offensive tackle for the Browns from 1946 until a bad back forced him to retire a year ago, was an assistant coach during the opening weeks of practice.

New York Lead Cut To 3 Games

MINNEAPOLIS — ST. PAUL (AP) — Detroit unleashed a 17- hit attack Saturday to smash the Minnesota Twins 17-3. The victory boosted the Tigers back to within three games of first in the American League as New York lost to Washington 5-1.

Shortstop Chico Fernandez drove in five runs and Norm Cash pushed over four as the Tigers cut loose for six runs in the fourth, five more in the eighth and four in the ninth.

Right-hander Jim Bunning (14-8) spaced six Minnesota hits, the 43rd time this season Detroit pitchers have turned in complete games, tops in the American League.

Rocky Colavito had three singles and a double for the Tigers, including two hits in the fourth as the Tigers batted 11 men.

Cash clouted his 29th home run with Colavito aboard in the second for an early 2-0 lead but the Twins came back in the same frame when Zoilo Versalles doubled home a pair.

Fernandez singled in two and Jim Bunning doubled in another pair in the big fourth, Bunning's first extra base hit of the season.

Don Lee (3-4) started and took the loss for the Twins before being shelled out in the fourth. He was followed by Danny McDevitt, Chuck Stobbs and Bill Pleis.

After the Twins picked up a run in the fifth on Lenny Green's two-out triple and Billy Martin's single, the Tigers struck for five in the eighth.

Bunning singled, went to second on Jake Wood's liner to left and scored on a pair of walks. Colavito greeted Pleis with a two-run single. A fielder's choice, single and error brought home three more runs.

In the ninth, two walks, a fielder's choice and Al Kaline's double loaded the bases once more. Cash then drove in his 99th and 100th runs of the season with a double. After another walk, Fernandez plated two more tallies with a rap to center.

Minnesota Manager Sam Mele tried shuffling his lineup in an attempt to shake the team's hitting slump. He benched Harmon Killebrew and Jim Lemon, inserting Joe Altobelli at first and Julio Becquer in left.

Duren Pitches LA Angles To A 3-0 Victory

CLEVELAND (AP) — Ryne Duren pitched a three-hitter and rookie Tom Satriano hit a two-run homer—his first major league hit—to give the Los Angeles Angels a 3-0 victory over the Cleveland Indians Saturday.

Duren had a one-hitter until the ninth, when Don Dillard singled and Jim Piersall beat out a bunt. But Duren retired Tito Francona to salvage his shutout and his first complete game in the majors.

Ted Kluszewski hit his 13th homer of the year in the fourth inning to put the Angels ahead 1-0. Satriano's came in the ninth, also scoring Del Rice, who had singled.

After walking leadoff batter Johnny Temple, Duren retired 14 straight batters until Power got the first hit, a single through the middle in the sixth.

Duren (5-10), acquired from the New York Yankees in May, struck out seven and walked only one.

Jim Grant had a two-hitter going into the ninth. The only other hit off him was a single by Joe Koppe in the third. Grant (11-6) struck out four and walked four.

Eagles Take Victory Over Chicago Bears

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — The passing of quarterback Sonny Jurgensen and running of fullback Ted Dean carried the champion Philadelphia Eagles to a 38-10 victory over the Chicago Bears Saturday night in a National Football League exhibition game.

The Eagles, visitors over the College All-Stars two weeks ago, snapped a 3-3 tie in the third period with three touchdowns in 10 minutes. Jurgensen started the spree with a 25-yard scoring pass to halfback Tommy McDonald after Dean returned a Chicago punt 34 yards.

Two minutes later the 210-pound Dean fielded another punt and romped 49 yards for a touchdown.

Before the period was over, halfback Bob Freeman, intercepted a Chicago pass and returned 33 yards to the 3. Jurgensen then fired to Pete Retzlaff in the end zone.

The first half wound up in a 3-3 stalemate with Roger LeClerc, boosting a Chicago field goal from the 3, and Bobbie Walston, who also kicked five extra points, connecting with a Philadelphia three-pointer from the 36.

The Bears sliced the Philadelphia lead to 24-10 early in the fourth quarter on a 68-yard touchdown pass play from quarterback Bill Wade to rookie end Mike Ditka, former Pitt star, but that was as close as they came.

Gentile's Bat Drives Birds To 8-3 Victory

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Baltimore Orioles continued their home field mastery over Boston Saturday night, winning 8-3 for their seventh victory in eight tries against the Red Sox here.

Jim Gentile staked winning pitcher Dick Hall to a 2-0 lead in the first inning with his 34th homer, following a walk to Jackie Brandt. The blast off loser Ike Delock gave Gentile the major league lead with 106 runs batted in, one more than Roger Maris of the New York Yankees.

Gus Triandos hit his 17th homer for the Orioles, a solo smash in the seventh off Mike Fornieles, the third Boston pitcher.

Baltimore scored two unearned runs in the second inning on Marv Breeding's single after an error by shortstop Don Buddin, a walk and a sacrifice bunt.

The Orioles added three more in the fifth. Consecutive singles by Breeding, Whitey Herzog and Brandt scored one run and chased Delock. Another run scored when Triandos rapped into a double-play, and Brooks Robinson's single plated the third.

Hall, who left the game after pulling a hamstring muscle in his leg in the eighth inning, allowed nine hits and struck out eight. Wes Stock pitched the final inning.

Boston's Carl Yastrzemski and Baltimore's Herzog also were removed because of injuries. Yastrzemski cut a finger sliding into second base and Herzog bruised his shin with a foul ball off his own bat.

TED KROLL, Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., co-leader in $300,000 Insurance City Golf tourney, flips his putter in disgust when his bid for a birdie on 17th hole missed by inches. Kroll finished with three-round total of 199 to tie Joe Campbell of Chattanooga, Tenn. (AP Wirephoto)

Campbell Shares Lead With Kroll

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Chunky Joe Campbell, a former National Collegiate champion, sank a 15-foot putt for a birdie on the 18th hole Saturday to share the 54-hole lead with veteran Ted Kroll in the Insurance City Open Golf Tournament.

They hit the three-quarter mark with a 14-under-par total of 199. Campbell shot a 66 and Kroll a 70 over the par-71, 6,614-yard Wethers field Country Club course on a cloudy and humid day.

Phil Rodgers of La Jolla, Calif., another former National Collegiate champion, was two strokes off the sizzling pace with 201. Julius Boros of Mid Pines, N.C., was next with 203.

The 25-year-old Campbell, from Chattanooga, Tenn., picked up four strokes Saturday to catch the 42-year-old Kroll, pro at Fort Lauderdale, Fa.

The onrushing Campbell caught Kroll at the turn and went in front on the 10th. Hhe held the lead until the 14th where Kroll missed an 8-foot putt for an eagle and had to settle for a birdie.

Kroll regained the lead on the 15th when he notched a birdie on the strength of a 25-foot putt, and that's the way they fought it out going into the 18th. There, Campbell clicked for the tying birdie, leaving Kroll with a 3-footer, which he canned for the par.

Meanwhile, famed Arnold Palmer ran into all kinds of trouble and shot a 73, his worst round here, to bring his total to 203.

The competition was seen by a crowd of more than 10,000. The 72-hold tournament ends Sunday.

South Carolina, Tulane Set Tilt

NEW ORLEANS, (Special) — Tulane University will play the University of South Carolina in Columbia, S.C., on Saturday afternoon, November 2, 1963, in a renewal of an old rivalry.

Announcement of the game was made in a joint statment from Tulane athletic director Horace Renegar and South Carolina athletic director Warren Giese.

Tulane has won the two previous meetings between the Greenies and the Gamecocks, with the 1932 Wave team nosing out a 6-0 win and the 1948 team winning by a narrow 14-7 margin.

South Carolina is now coached by Marvin Bass, while Andy Pilney is head coach at Tulane.

Senator Triumph Snaps Win Skein

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gene Green belted a pinch grand - slam home run in the seventh inning Saturday to power the Washington Senators to a 5-1 victory over the American League-leading New York Yankees.

The triumph snapped a nine - game Yankee winning streak and a seven - game Washington losing string.

Until Green slammed his 16th homer into the left field seats, Washington's Dick Donovan and New York's Bill Stafford had rocked along in a 1-1 tie.

The Senators had picked up their first run in the opening inning on three hits, including Jim King's run - producing infield hit, and Roger Maris' 43rd homer over the right field wall was the only Yankee marker.

But in the seventh, Marty Kough hit a one - out double down the first base line, Stafford intentionally walked Bob Johnson and Gene Woodling hit a pinch single to load the bases.

This brought on Luis Arroyo, the Yanks' relief ace.

Green, removed from the lineup only Friday because of defensive inadequacies as a catcher, was called up to hit for Pete Daley and picked on Arroyos second pitch for the game - winning blow.

The victory evened Donovan's record at eight wins and eight losses. It was Stafford's sixth defeat against nine victories.

Donovan, returning to action after a two-week layoff because of an arm ailment, set the Yankees down on five hits. He fanned 3 and gave up one walk, only his second free pass in 47 1-3 innings.

Besides Maris' homer, which left him one behind teammate Mickey Mantle's league-pacing 44 Donovan gave up only a double to Maris, a bloop single to Mantle, a double to Clete Boyer and a single to Stafford.

Mantle also walked, flied out and popped up.

Braves Nudge Cubs 8-6 With 9th Inning HR

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Frank Thomas cracked a three-run homer with two out in the ninth to boost the Milwaukee Braves to an 8-6 comeback victory over the Chicago Cubs Saturday in a 3-hour and 2-minute struggle.

Thomas, a veteran outfielder acquired from the Cubs earlier this year, leaned into the first pitch delivered him by Dick Drott the third Chicago pitcher, and sent a towering drive into the bleachers in left center for his 20th home run.

The blast came after Eddie Mathews had walked and had moved to third on a broken back single to sharp right by Joe Adcock with two out. It wiped out a Chicago lead picked up on four walks by Milwaukee relief specialist Don McMahon in the top of the ninth.

The Cubs drove Milwaukee starter Bob Hendley from the mound with a four-run sixth feat in by a home run with two on by George Altman and a solo shot by pitcher Don Cardwell. That gave the Cubs a five-run lead.

The Braves narrowed the count in their half of the sixth as Hank Aaron unloaded his 30th homer, a line shot into the center field bleachers, after Eddie Mathews had walked. Milwaukee tied the game and drove out Cardwell with two more runs in the seventh. That set the stage for the ninth inning drama.

McMahon picked up his sixth victory in seven decisions while Drott, winless since the 1959 campaign, suffered his third defeat this year.

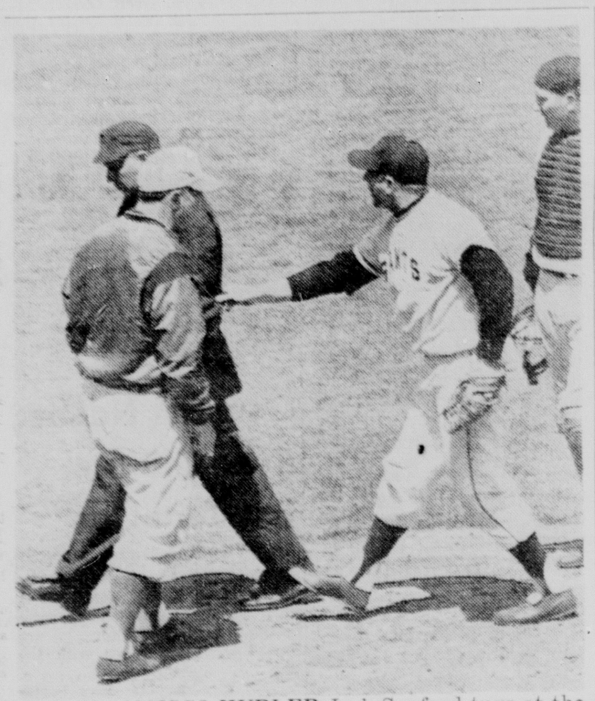
Tigers Blast Twins 17-3; Move Up On Yankees



SAN FRANCISCO HURLER Jack Sanford tugs at the sleeve of plate umpire Ken Burkhart as the latter leaves the pitching mound in the third inning of game between the Giants and Reds. Burkhart called a balk on Sanford, advancing Cincinnati catcher John Edwards from second to third, after Sanford kicked the rubber, even though the ball was in the hand of shortstop Jose Pagan who was trying the hidden ball trick. BLAST THREE

Home Runs Push Giants Past Reds

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Willie Mays, Orlando Cepeda and Ed Bailey each walloped a homer Saturday, knocking in all the San Francisco runs as the Giants beat Cincinnati, 6-4, for the fifth straight triumph.

The three clouts eclipsed the batting production of Cincinnati's Vada Pinson, who knocked in all four of the losers' runs with a single and a three-run homer.

The center fielder also had another single and double in a perfect afternoon at bat.

The victory went to right-hander Jack Sanford, who needed eight-inning relief from little Stu Miller after Pinson's homer and a single by Frank Robinson. The butterfly hurler promptly got Gus Bell to hit into an inning-ending double play.

A Candlestick Park crowd of 22,845 watched Mays slam his first homer of the month and 30th of the year in the third inning with mates aboard. Cepeda crashed his 31st round-trip blow in the sixth with Mays on first. Both homers came off starter Bob Purkey, who suffered his seventh setback against 13 victories as the third-place Giants took their second straight over second-place Cincinnati.

Bailey's 12th homer of the campaign, a solo smash off reliever Bill Henry, came in the eighth.

Sanford, winning his eighth of the season against six defeats, had little trouble with Cincinnati batters with the exception of Pinson.

In the third, John Edwards singled, reached second on a sacrifice and third on a balk before Vada singled him home.

All told, the Reds collected eight hits, against seven for the Giants.

Podres 5-Hits Cardinals For Victory No. 15

LOS ANGELES AP — Johnny Podres achieved a personal high by scoring his 15th victory with a five - hitter Saturday night as the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated St. Louis 5-1 and increased their National League lead to 2½ games.

The victory was the 18th for the Dodgers in their last 21 games and ended the Cardinals winning streak at eight.

Wally Moon and Frank Howard each drove in two runs and both figured in a three-run Dodger rally in the seventh. Howard has 18 hits in his last 60 at bats and has raised his batting average from .211 to .302 in that span.

Podres (15-3), who had never before won more than 14 games in a season, struck out four, walked only one and didn't allow an earned run.

The Cards got their only run in the fifth. Curt Flood and Jim Schaffer opened with singles and pitcher Larry Jackson laid down a bunt. Catcher Johnny Roseboro fielded the ball and threw it into center field trying for a play at second base as Flood scored on the error.

The Dodgers had picked up their first run in the third when Jim Gilliam reached base on a fielder's choice, took third on a single by Duke Snider and came in on a single by Moon.

Roseboro doubled with two out in the sixth and scored the deciding run when Norm Larker singled.

Jackson, who had won five straight, worked seven innings and took the loss—his ninth against eight victories.

"The Toe" Returns

Groza, a regular offensive tackle for the Browns from 1946 until a bad back forced him to retire a year ago, was an assistant coach during the opening weeks of practice.

New York Lead Cut To 3 Games

MINNEAPOLIS — ST. PAUL (AP) — Detroit unleashed a 17- hit attack Saturday to smash the Minnesota Twins 17-3. The victory boosted the Tigers back to within three games of first in the American League as New York lost to Washington 5-1.

Shortstop Chico Fernandez drove in five runs and Norm Cash pushed over four as the Tigers cut loose for six runs in the fourth, five more in the eighth and four in the ninth.

Right-hander Jim Bunning (14-8) spaced six Minnesota hits, the 43rd time this season Detroit pitchers have turned in complete games, tops in the American League.

Rocky Colavito had three singles and a double for the Tigers, including two hits in the fourth as the Tigers batted 11 men.

Cash clouted his 29th home run with Colavito aboard in the second for an early 2-0 lead but the Twins came back in the same frame when Zoilo Versalles doubled home a pair.

Fernandez singled in two and Jim Bunning doubled in another pair in the big fourth, Bunning's first extra base hit of the season.

Don Lee (3-4) started and took the loss for the Twins before being shelled out in the fourth. He was followed by Danny McDevitt, Chuck Stobbs and Bill Pleis.

After the Twins picked up a run in the fifth on Lenny Green's two-out triple and Billy Martin's single, the Tigers struck for five in the eighth.

Bunning singled, went to second on Jake Wood's liner to left and scored on a pair of walks. Colavito greeted Pleis with a two-run single. A fielder's choice, single and error brought home three more runs.

In the ninth, two walks, a fielder's choice and Al Kaline's double loaded the bases once more. Cash then drove in his 99th and 100th runs of the season with a double. After another walk, Fernandez plated two more tallies with a rap to center.

Minnesota Manager Sam Mele tried shuffling his lineup in an attempt to shake the team's hitting slump. He benched Harmon Killebrew and Jim Lemon, inserting Joe Altobelli at first and Julio Becquer in left.

Duren Pitches LA Angles To A 3-0 Victory

CLEVELAND (AP) — Ryne Duren pitched a three-hitter and rookie Tom Satriano hit a two-run homer—his first major league hit—to give the Los Angeles Angels a 3-0 victory over the Cleveland Indians Saturday.

Duren had a one-hitter until the ninth, when Don Dillard singled and Jim Piersall beat out a bunt. But Duren retired Tito Francona to salvage his shutout and his first complete game in the majors.

Ted Kluszewski hit his 13th homer of the year in the fourth inning to put the Angels ahead 1-0. Satriano's came in the ninth, also scoring Del Rice, who had singled.

After walking leadoff batter Johnny Temple, Duren retired 14 straight batters until Power got the first hit, a single through the middle in the sixth.

Duren (5-10), acquired from the New York Yankees in May, struck out seven and walked only one.

Jim Grant had a two-hitter going into the ninth. The only other hit off him was a single by Joe Koppe in the third. Grant (11-6) struck out four and walked four.

Eagles Take Victory Over Chicago Bears

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — The passing of quarterback Sonny Jurgensen and running of fullback Ted Dean carried the champion Philadelphia Eagles to a 38-10 victory over the Chicago Bears Saturday night in a National Football League exhibition game.

The Eagles, visitors over the College All-Stars two weeks ago, snapped a 3-3 tie in the third period with three touchdowns in 10 minutes. Jurgensen started the spree with a 25-yard scoring pass to halfback Tommy McDonald after Dean returned a Chicago punt 34 yards.

Two minutes later the 210-pound Dean fielded another punt and romped 49 yards for a touchdown.

Before the period was over, halfback Bob Freeman intercepted a Chicago pass and returned 33 yards to the 3. Jurgensen then fired to Pete Retzlaff in the end zone.

The first half wound up in a 3-3 stalemate with Roger LeClerc, boosting a Chicago field goal from the 3, and Bobbie Walston, who also kicked five extra points, connecting with a Philadelphia three-pointer from the 36.

The Bears sliced the Philadelphia lead to 24-10 early in the fourth quarter on a 68-yard touchdown pass play from quarterback Bill Wade to rookie end Mike Ditka, former Pitt star, but that was as close as they came.

Gentile's Bat Drives Birds To 8-3 Victory

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Baltimore Orioles continued their home field mastery over Boston Saturday night, winning 8-3 for their seventh victory in eight tries against the Red Sox here.

Jim Gentile staked winning pitcher Dick Hall to a 2-0 lead in the first inning with his 34th homer, following a walk to Jackie Brandt. The blast off loser Ike Delock gave Gentile the major league lead with 106 runs batted in, one more than Roger Maris of the New York Yankees.

Gus Triandos hit his 17th homer for the Orioles, a solo smash in the seventh off Mike Fornieles, the third Boston pitcher.

Baltimore scored two unearned runs in the second inning on Marv Breeding's single after an error by shortstop Don Buddin, a walk and a sacrifice bunt.

The Orioles added three more in the fifth. Consecutive singles by Breeding, Whitey Herzog and Brandt scored one run and chased Delock. Another run scored when Triandos rapped into a double-play, and Brooks Robinson's single plated the third.

Hall, who left the game after pulling a hamstring muscle in his leg in the eighth inning, allowed nine hits and struck out eight. Wes Stock pitched the final inning.

Boston's Carl Yastrzemski and Baltimore's Herzog also were removed because of injuries. Yastrzemski cut a finger sliding into second base and Herzog bruised his shin with a foul ball off his own bat.

TED KROLL, Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., co-leader in $300,000 Insurance City Golf tourney, flips his putter in disgust when his bid for a birdie on 17th hole missed by inches. Kroll finished with three-round total of 199 to tie Joe Campbell of Chattanooga, Tenn. (AP Wirephoto)

Campbell Shares Lead With Kroll

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Chunky Joe Campbell, a former National Collegiate champion, sank a 15-foot putt for a birdie on the 18th hole Saturday to share the 54-hole lead with veteran Ted Kroll in the Insurance City Open Golf Tournament.

They hit the three-quarter mark with a 14-under-par total of 199. Campbell shot a 66 and Kroll a 70 over the par-71, 6,614-yard Wethers field Country Club course on a cloudy and humid day.

Phil Rodgers of La Jolla, Calif., another former National Collegiate champion, was two strokes off the sizzling pace with 201. Julius Boros of Mid Pines, N.C., was next with 203.

The 25-year-old Campbell, from Chattanooga, Tenn., picked up four strokes Saturday to catch the 42-year-old Kroll, pro at Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

The onrushing Campbell caught Kroll at the turn and went in front on the 10th. Hhe held the lead until the 14th where Kroll missed an 8-foot putt for an eagle and had to settle for a birdie.

Kroll regained the lead on the 15th when he notched a birdie on the strength of a 25-foot putt, and that's the way they fought it out going into the 18th. There, Campbell clicked for the tying birdie, leaving Kroll with a 3-footer, which he canned for the par.

Meanwhile, famed Arnold Palmer ran into all kinds of trouble and shot a 73, his worst round here, to bring his total to 203.

The competition was seen by a crowd of more than 10,000. The 72-hold tournament ends Sunday.

Louise Suggs Finishes Fast For KC Lead

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Louise Suggs finished with two birdies and an eagle Saturday for a 2-over-par 76 and a 223 total for the third-round lead in the $7,500 Kansas City Women's Open Golf Tournament.

Miss Suggs had played poorly for 15 holes and apparently was about to drop out of contention when she made her rally.

The veteran from Atlanta, one of the top women golfers for 13 years, will enter Sunday's final round with a two-stroke lead over Betsy Rawls of Spartanburg, S.C., who flared to a 78 for 225.

Miss Suggs and Miss Rawls started the third round as co-leaders with 147.

Putting poorly and inaccurate with her irons, Miss Suggs went out in 41, four strokes over par on the Brookridge course. She was six over after bogies on the 11th and 15th.

South Carolina, Tulane Set Tilt

NEW ORLEANS, (Special) — Tulane University will play the University of South Carolina in Columbia, S.C., on Saturday afternoon, November 2, 1963, in a renewal of an old rivalry.

Announcement of the game was made in a joint statment from Tulane athletic director Horace Renegar and South Carolina athletic director Warren Giese.

Tulane has won the two previous meetings between the Greenies and the Gamecocks, with the 1932 Wave team nosing out a 6-0 win and the 1948 team winning by a narrow 14-7 margin.

South Carolina is now coached by Marvin Bass, while Andy Piney is head coach at Tulane.

Senator Triumph Snaps Win Skein

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gene Green belted a pinch grand - slam home run in the seventh inning Saturday to power the Washington Senators to a 5-1 victory over the American League-leading New York Yankees.

The triumph snapped a nine - game Yankee winning streak and a seven - game Washington losing string.

Until Green slammed his 16th homer into the left field seats, Washington's Dick Donovan and New York's Bill Stafford had rocked along in a 1-1 tie.

The Senators had picked up their first run in the opening inning on three hits, including Jim King's run - producing infield hit, and Roger Maris' 43rd homer over the right field wall was the only Yankee marker.

But in the seventh, Marty Keough hit a one - out double down the first base line, Stafford intentionally walked Bob Johnson and Gene Woodling hit a pinch single to load the bases.

This brought on Luis Arroyo, the Yanks' relief ace.

Green, removed from the line-up only Friday because of defensive inadequacies as a catcher, was called up to hit for Pete Daley and picked on Arroyos second pitch for the game - winning blow.

The victory evened Donovan's record at eight wins and eight losses. It was Stafford's sixth defeat against nine victories.

Donovan, returning to action after a two-week layoff because of an arm ailment, set the Yankees down on five hits. He fanned 3 and gave up one walk, only his second free pass in 47 1-3 innings.

Besides Maris' homer, which left him one behind teammate Mickey Mantle's league-pacing 44 Donovan gave up only a double to Maris, a bloop single to Mantle, a double to Clete Boyer and a single to Stafford.

Mantle also walked, flied out and popped up.

Braves Nudge Cubs 8-6 With 9th Inning HR

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Frank Thomas cracked a three-run homer with two out in the ninth to boost the Milwaukee Braves to an 8-6 comeback victory over the Chicago Cubs Saturday in a 3-hour and 2-minute struggle.

Thomas, a veteran outfielder acquired from the Cubs earlier this year, leaned into the first pitch delivered him by Dick Drott the third Chicago pitcher, and sent a towering drive into the bleachers in left center for his 20th home run.

The blast came after Eddie Mathews had walked and had moved to third on a broken back single to sharp right by Joe Adcock with two out. It wiped out a Chicago lead picked up on four walks by Milwaukee relief specialist Don McMahon in the top of the ninth.

The Cubs drove Milwaukee starter Bob Hendley from the mound with a four-run sixth feat in by a home run with two on by George Altman and a solo shot by pitcher Don Cardwell. That gave the Cubs a five-

Rebuilding Twin Cities Football

Hope and speculation are the main ingredients being whipped into the high school football menu for the Twin Cities this season. There's hope that wholesale replacements will meet the expected needs of the respective schools, and speculation as to how far the new talent can carry them.

State double-A defending champion Neville has only two athletes back from last year's starting lineup; West Monroe is in the same fix, looking for nine replacements in the regular lineup; and Ouachita Parish High will come up with seven new faces among its starters.

Southside High, drawing its talent from Louisiana Training Institute, the state school for boys, will be coming up with a new crop as usual. Coach Fred Lindsay isn't worried a bit. He's satisfied to give his boys a good athletic program. He'll do his best with whatever talent is available and furnish somebody some good opposition at the Class B level.

Another Ouachita parish school becomes a title contender this year as Sterlington, which played a token schedule at the new school last year, takes part in the Class B conference campaign for the first time with a nine-game schedule that includes five league rivals.

Twin Cities schools have scheduled 41 games, 20 of them to be played on home fields. All four Twin Cities schools have five home games on their slate that includes 11 games each for Ouachita and Southside, 10 for West Monroe, and nine for Neville. In addition, there's the West Monroe Jamboree September 1.

West Monroe Rebels

Loss of nine starters and 20 seniors is a blow the West Monroe Rebels will be working to overcome when they greet Coach Cecil Pirkey for their first workout Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock.

Six of the nine backs who gained 95 per cent of the Rebels' total yardage and scored 30 of their 35 touchdowns last season have graduated. The losses include the entire starting backfield — Buck Fox, James Covington, Jimmy Van Zile, and Don Harrell.

The line was just about wiped out in the departure of ends Tojo Green and Fred Hooter, tackles Tommy Averett and Richard Drew and guard Marty Fisher.

Charlie Van Zile, who backed up Fox with a fine 6-9 yards per carry average last fall, is back for regular duty to carry the load in the backfield. Letterman Fred Newton is ticketed for quarterback, but the rest of the backfield will be counting chiefly on last year's reserves and junior varsity graduates.

The only old regulars — center Butch Lobrano and guard Jewel McBroom — will anchor the line. Guards Barry White and Neil Young, and tackle Cline Averett have varsity experience that just about assures them jobs.

The loss of four tackles and six ends will mean these positions will be manned by young and experienced boys.

However, good performances are promised from such as Richard Cook and Mike Shepherd, tackles; Reggie Plesant and Chuck Crawford, ends; and backs Woody Woodcock, Bobby Brice, and J. U. Liner. The complete recovery of end Bubba Jones from an injury makes him a man due consideration in West Monroe's plans.

The Rebels are planning daily workouts at 8 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. But Coach Pirkey said yesterday these times may be changed after a day or two to "fit any plans that may come up."

Neville Tigers

Only end Herschel Walker and fullback Ralph Roberts are returning to their starting roles in the Neville Tiger lineup. The battling for the vacant spots begins Tuesday when Coach Bill Ruple calls for two - a - day workouts. The Tigers will be issued equipment at 7 a.m. Tuesday. Daily drills will begin at 9 a.m. and 7 p.m.

And fullback Roberts will be missing the early training. He'll be in Memphis Thursday with the Monroe American Legion Junior Baseball team that won the state championship the past week and is headed for the six - team national regional tournament.

If Coach Red Sims keeps the Legion team advancing, Roberts will miss a lot of football work before the season opener. But he keeps in good condition and will be almost ready when available to Ruple.

Neville graduated some awfully good boys. It's going too be hard to replace the likes of quarterback Bev Franks, halfbacks Neal Gunn, Bill Becton, Courtland Gray, and Freddie Haddad; ends Sperry Brown and Robert Lewis; guards Robert Turner, and Billy LaFrance, tackles Jack Burton and Jack Yongblood, and center Tommy Scott.

Capable of taking starting roles, the athletes Coach Ruple looks to mainly for replacements at the moment are:

Quarterbacks Jerry Jones and Don Saget, halfbacks Don Brant, Jimmy Howard, Robert Payne, and Jimmy Gilley; fullbacks Sam Walker and Billy Yerger; ends Ronald Killen, Bunzy Bryant, and Kurt Guebert; guards Steve Jefferson, Nick White, Andy Mapp, Ken Duncan, and Mike Haddad; tackles Bob Duncan, John Segars, and Edmund Burton; and centers Tommy Sparks and James Willis.

And somewhere in the squad of young talent there may be an overlooked gem ready to give the Tigers unexpected help.

Ouachita Lions

A call for physical examinations is first on the docket for Ouachita Parish High gridders tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock at Lion Stadium. Equipment will be issued Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock and work will begin at 4 p.m.

Coach Bob Ellen plans to keep his gridders on campus all day during the two - a - day workout period that will run about two weeks. Workouts are due at 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. each week day after the camp settles down, and the Lions will be served noon lunches in the school cafeteria.

The four regulars returning to OPHS are end Ernest Lloyd, guards Roy Walton and Johnny Butler, and fullback Bubba Via.

Replacements are needed for departed center Don Ellen, end Norman Staley, tackles Bobby Trost and William Matkins, and backs James Cromwell, Herbert Perry, Ted Smith, and James McManus, the latter off the defensive unit.

Some of the outstanding replacement prospects are quarterback Dennis Warner, halfbacks Butch Oglesbee and Timmy Gordy, ends Wincel Bass and Billy Gerson, tackles Jimmy Furry and Porky Richardson, and center Donnie Letterman.

BEATEN ON EYE

Teddy Wright TKO's Don Fullmer In 7th

NEW YORK (AP) Don Fullmer, West Jordan, Utah, middle-weight, retired at the end of the seventh round to give Teddy Wright of Detroit a TKO victory in their nationally televised fight at Madison Square Garden Saturday night.

Fullmer had been bothered by a cut on his left eyelid since the second round. As the bout progressed Wright used the damaged orb as a target. Dr. Sam Swetnick, commission physician, examined the eye in the fourth and seventh rounds, but did not call a halt.

Fullmer weighed 157¾, Wright, a sub for the injured Benny Kid Paret, weighed 153.

Fullmer, who suffered his first knockout in 31 fights, appeared completely spent as he went to his corner at the end of the seventh. From the beginning he had been subjected to a series of combinations to the head and a bad body beating.

Fullmer, promised an October 14th bout with Ray Robinson if he won, lost his effectiveness as early as the fifth round. In this round Wright hit Fullmer at will, concentrating on the injured eye. For the remainder of the bout Wright stalked Fullmer, some times switching his attack to the body.

Marv Jenson, Fullmer's manmanager called a halt to the bout "because Don's eye was too badly cut." He announced in Fullmer's dressing room that the wound would require 12 stitches.

For the seven rounds Referee Harold Valan had Wright in front, six rounds to one. Judges Leo Birnbaum and Joe Armstrong each had Wright ahead, five rounds to two. The Associated Press score it six for Wright and called one even. It went into the books as a seventh round TKO.

An apparent slip by Wright in the second round was ruled a knockdown by Referee Valan, but the Detroiter came back strong enough to win the round. For Wright it was his 37th victory and 17th knockout. He has lost six and drawn three times.

Fullmer suffered his fifth loss. He has won 25 and drawn once.

Merry Ruler Wins By Neck In Ventnor

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Merry Ruler scored a neck victory in the $32,050 Ventnor Turf Handicap Saturday at Atlantic City race track with the stretch run of the 1 1-16-mile grass course test resembling a cavalry charge as 16 3-year-old horses drove for the finish line.

Wilshire Farm's Niksar finished second in the blanket finish, a half length before Elkcam Stable's Opus, who was one length in front of Boncrist Farm's Nashua Blue.

This was the fourth major victory of the season for Merry Ruler and it gave jockey John Sellers, the nation's leading rider, a like number of victories for the day.

The English-bred winner, who previously carried Harry O. H. Frelinghuysen's silks to triumphs in the Swift, Bay Shore and Delaware Valley stakes, negotiated the distance in 1:43. His backers received $10.80, $6.00 and $4.80. Niksar paid $9.20 and $7.20 and Opus brought back $7.40 to show.

In a driving finish Merry Ruler was just up for the winner's paycheck of $20,832.50 to bring his seasonal earnings to $98,619.50.

Jockey Sellers had scored earlier with Red O'Hare, Bronze Jet and Talent Show.

Phillies Lose 15th In Row To Bucs, 4-0

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Philadelphia Phillies lost their 15th straight game Saturday—a new club record—as the Pittsburgh Pirates shut them out 4-0 behind the five-hit pitching of Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell.

The Phils' previous record losing streak of 14 was set by the 1883 club and matched by the 1936 team. Their current string of 15 is the longest in the majors this year.

In failing to score, the Phils stretched their string of scoreless innings to 25 1-3.

Mizell gave up only five singles, struck out one and walked only one as he won his sixth of the year against eight losses. Jim Owens (1-7) was the loser.

Smoky Burgess, chunky Pirate catcher, got the 1,000th hit of his major league career in the seventh when he singled. He also drove in a run with a single in the fourth.

Bill Mazeroski's triple and Mizell's sacrifice fly scored a Pirate run in the third. The Buccos got two more in the fourth on doubles by Dick Stuart and Roberto Clemente and Burgess' single. Don Hoak scored the last Pirate run in the eighth when he tripled and came home on a wild pitch by Philadelphia reliever Don Ferrarese.

Girl Wins Link Tourney With 4 Straight Birdies

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Four straight birdies gave Jo Anne Gunderson, Kirkland, Wash., a 3 and 2 victory Saturday over 18-year-old Heidi Prentice, Winnetka, Ill., in the championship match of the Women's Trans-Mississippi Golf Association Tournament at Eugene Country Club.

Miss Gunderson, the 1960 National Amateur and intercollegiate champion, trailed 1-up with just seven holes left in the 36-hole match.

Then, with the aid of some magnificent approach shots, she sank birdie putts of 15, 7, 4 and 12 feet and wrapped it up.

The 22-year-old Miss Gunderson, who plans to do graduate work in guidance and counseling at Arizona State University this fall, said she couldn't remember ever carding four birdies in a row.

"But I was kind of hoping for five," she grinned.

Miss Gunderson almost got the fifth one on the last hole. Her 25-foot putt broke to the left and missed the pin by 6 inches.

16-Year-Old Submerges Old Swimming Record

High School Junior Roars From Behind

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Susan Doerr, 16-year-old Philadelphia schoolgirl, cracked a 5-hour-old world record Saturday in winning the 100-meter butterfly title of the women's National AAU Outdoor Swimming and Diving Championships. She was clocked in 1:08.2.

The high school junior from the Vesper Boat Club came from behind in the last 25 meters to beat 14-year-old Kathy Ellis of the Indianapolis A.C. and Mary Stewart, 15, the Canadian champion who had first smashed the listed world record of 1:09.1 in the qualifying heats.

Miss Ellis was second in 1:08.5, also under the record, and Miss Stewart third in 1:09.5.

The Canadian girl was clocked in 1:08.8 in leading the eight qualifiers for the final. This clipped three-tenths of a second off the listed world mark of 1:09.1 set by Nancy Ramey of Marcer Island, Wash., at Chicago, Sept. 2, 1959.

Becky Collins, of Indianapolis, also was clocked in 1:09.1, in taking fourth place.

Miss Doerr, a member of the 1960 Olympic team, was crowned shortly after Barbara McAlister, 20-year-old Los Angeles beauty won the platform diving title. She clinched the title with brilliant exhibitions on her final three dives.

Carolyn House, a slight 15-year-old from the Los Angeles A.C., became the first double winner of the meet, when she captured the 400-meter freestyle to go with her 1500-meter title.

She whipped Robyn Johnson, surprise winner of the 100-meter freestyle from Arlington, Va., and Olympic champion Chris Von Saltza, defending titlist from Santa Clara, Calif., S.C. Chris was third. Miss House's time was 4:52.3.

Donna de Varona, 14-year-old Olympian from Lafayette, Calif., also became a double champion when she captured the 200-meter individual medley in the American record time of 2:35.0.

This also is the fastest time ever made for the event although the International Swimming Federation does not recognize the 200-medley for record purposes. Donna won the 400-meter individual medley Friday night, breaking her own world record with a time of 5:34.5.

MARY STEWART

Miss De Varona's time bettered the listed American mark of 2:42.2 set by Becky Collins of Indianapolis in 1959 and her fresh mark of 2:40.2 set in the qualifying trials.

Lyn Hopkins, of the Vesper Boat Club, was second in 2:40.2, also smashing the listed mark.

Dale Barnhard, an unknown from Washington, D.C., celebrated her 14th birthday by taking the 100-meter breaststroke crown in a rousing upset.

She swam almost unnoticed in the eighth and outside lane and lead all the way to win in 1:22.6.

The youngster from the Congressional C.C. just barely qualified for the final by beating Barbara Chesneau of Philadelphia in a swimoff for the last berth. Both had been clocked in 1:25.4.

Jean Ann Dellekamp, the 14-year-pld winner o the 200-meter breaststroke title Friday night, was second in 1:22.7. Linda Kurtz, of Santa Clara, Calif., was third in 1:23.0.

Old Aces Starring For Packers Again

The Green Bay Packers, a stand-pat club with four aces, began the exhibition phase of the National Football League season by whipping the opposition with the same stacked deck that carried them to the Western Conference championship last year.

The Packers, one of three NFL clubs that did not acquire any veterans in off-season trades, relied on quarterback Bart Starr and running mates Paul Hornung, Jim Taylor and Tom Moore to overwhelm the Dallas Cowboys 30-7 Friday night.

In other NFL pre-season tests, the Detroit Lions blasted the Cleveland Browns 35-7 and the Los Angeles Rams defeated the Washington Redskins 26-7. Houston trounced Oakland 35-17 in the only American Football League tuneup scheduled.

Starr, designated the Packers' No. 1 signal-caller when Lamar McHan was traded for a future draft choice, responded with a five-yard touchdown pass to Hornung and set up two more with his accurate aerials.

Taylor scored on a two-yard plunge, kicked a 16-yard field goal and booted three extra points. Moore added two touchdowns on runs of five and six yards against a Dallas club that tallied on an 80-yard pass play from Eddie LeBaron to Frank Clarke.

Earl Morrall replaced Jim Ninowski at the quarterback post for the Lions in the second period and immediately beat the Browns with three TD tosses. Terry Barr pulled in 59 and 22-yard heaves while Jim Gibbons grabbed a 16-yard flip.

Danny Villanueva kicked field goals of 15, 30, 37 and 42 yards to give the Rams an insurmountable 12-0 edge before the offensively weak Redskins hit the scoreboard with a 25-yard pass from Ralph Guglielmi to Fred Dugan. Los Angeles then iced it with two fourth quarter TDs.

The AFL champion Oilers led the Raiders only 14-10 at the half, but pulled away in the final two periods.

TOWER SAVES ORPHANS IN TYPHOON DISASTER!

True Friend Island, a mission home for homeless South Korean boys, was directly in the path of Typhoon Sarah. To escape it, 200 children and many workers huddled for hours in a recently erected escape tower—and lived. The livestock and every other building in the area were completely washed away.

This life-saving tower, part of a settlement built expressly for the care of homeless youngsters, is the direct result of Americans supporting the Overseas Aid Program of their faith. While this particular endeavor is Protestant, all three great faiths—Protestant, Catholic, Jewish—maintain far-reaching programs. They provide clothing, food, medicine, jobs, education, tools and equipment to the millions in need.

These overseas programs must continue. They often provide the only hope to indigent millions. And they need your support.

Remember, it is the generosity of those like yourself that offers new hope where none now exists.

LOOKS 'EM OVER

Rebuilding Twin Cities Football

Hope and speculation are the main ingredients being whipped into the high school football menu for the Twin Cities this season. There's hope that wholesale replacements will meet the expected needs of the respective schools, and speculation as to how far the new talent can carry them.

State double-A defending champion Neville has only two athletes back from last year's starting lineup; West Monroe is in the same fix, looking for nine replacements in the regular lineup; and Ouachita Parish High will come up with seven new faces among its starters.

Southside High, drawing its talent from Louisiana Training Institute, the state school for boys, will be coming up with a new crop as usual. Coach Fred Lindsay isn't worried a bit. He's satisfied to give his boys a good athletic program. He'll do his best with whatever talent is available and furnish somebody some good opposition at the Class B level.

Another Ouachita parish school becomes a title contender this year as Sterlington, which played a token schedule at the new school last year, takes part in the Class B conference campaign for the first time with a nine-game schedule that includes five league rivals.

Twin Cities schools have scheduled 41 games, 20 of them to be played on home fields. All four Twin Cities schools have five home games on their slate that includes 11 games each for Ouachita and Southside, 10 for West Monroe, and nine for Neville. In addition, there's the West Monroe Jamboree September 1.

West Monroe Rebels

Loss of nine starters and 20 seniors is a blow the West Monroe Rebels will be working to overcome when they greet Coach Cecil Pirkey for their first workout Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock.

Six of the nine backs who gained 95 per cent of the Rebels' total yardage and scored 30 of their 35 touchdowns last season have graduated. The losses include the entire starting backfield — Buck Fox, James Covington, Jimmy Van Zile, and Don Harrell.

The line was just about wiped out in the departure of ends Tojo Green and Fred Hooter, tackles Tommy Averett and Richard Drew and guard Marty Fisher.

Charlie Van Zile, who backed up Fox with a fine 6-9 yards per carry average last fall, is back for regular duty to carry the load in the backfield. Letterman Fred Newton is ticketed for quarterback, but the rest of the backfield will be counting chiefly on last year's reserves and junior varsity graduates.

The only old regulars — center Butch Lobrano and guard Jewel McBroom — will anchor the line. Guards Barry White and Neil Young, and tackle Cline Averett have varsity experience that just about assures them jobs.

The loss of four tackles and six ends will mean these positions will be manned by young and experienced boys.

However, good performances are promised from such as Richard Cook and Mike Shepherd, tackles; Reggie Plesant and Chuck Crawford, ends; and backs Woody Woodcock, Bobby Brice, and J. U. Liner. The complete recovery of end Bubba Jones from an injury makes him a man due consideration in West Monroe's plans.

The Rebels are planning daily workouts at 8 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. But Coach Pirkey said yesterday these times may be changed after a day or two to "fit any plans that may come up."

Neville Tigers

Only end Herschel Walker and fullback Ralph Roberts are returning to their starting roles in the Neville Tiger lineup. The battling for the vacant spots begins Tuesday when Coach Bill Ruple calls for two - a - day workouts. The Tigers will be issued equipment at 7 a.m. Tuesday. Daily drills will begin at 9 a.m. and 7 p.m.

And fullback Roberts will be missing the early training. He'll be in Memphis Thursday with the Monroe American Legion Junior Baseball team that won the state championship the past week and is headed for the six - team national regional tournament.

If Coach Red Sims keeps the Legion team advancing, Roberts will miss a lot of football work before the season opener. But he keeps in good condition and will be almost ready when available to Ruple.

Neville graduated some awfully good boys. It's going too be hard to replace the likes of quarterback Bev Franks, halfbacks Neal Gunn, Bill Becton, Courtland Gray, and Freddie Haddad; ends Sperry Brown and Robert Lewis; guards Robert Turner, and Billy LaFrance, tackles Jack Burton and Jack Yongblood, and center Tommy Scott.

Capable of taking starting roles, the athletes Coach Ruple looks to mainly for replacements at the moment are:

Quarterbacks Jerry Jones and Don Saget, halfbacks Don Brant, Jimmy Howard, Robert Payne, and Jimmy Gilley; fullbacks Sam Walker and Billy Yerger; ends Ronald Killen, Bunzy Bryant, and Kurt Guebert; guards Steve Jefferson, Nick White, Andy Mapp, Ken Duncan, and Mike Haddad; tackles Bob Duncan, John Segars, and Edmund Burton; and centers Tommy Sparks and James Willis.

And somewhere in the squad of young talent there may be an overlooked gem ready to give the Tigers unexpected help.

Ouachita Lions

BEATEN ON EYE

Teddy Wright TKO's Don Fullmer In 7th

NEW YORK (AP) Don Fullmer, West Jordan, Utah, middle-weight, retired at the end of the seventh round to give Teddy Wright of Detroit a TKO victory in their nationally televised fight at Madison Square Garden Saturday night.

Fullmer had been bothered by a cut on his left eyelid since the second round. As the bout progressed Wright used the damaged orb as a target. Dr. Sam Swetnick, commission physician, examined the eye in the fourth and seventh rounds, but did not call a halt.

Fullmer weighed 157¼. Wright, a sub for the injured Benny Kid Paret, weighed 153.

Fullmer, who suffered his first knockout in 31 fights, appeared completely spent as he went to his corner at the end of the seventh. From the beginning he had been subjected to a series of combinations to the head and a bad body beating.

Fullmer, promised an October 14th bout with Ray Robinson if he won, lost his effectiveness as early as the fifth round. In this round Wright hit Fullmer at will, concentrating on the injured eye. For the remainder of the bout Wright stalked Fullmer, some times switching his attack to the body.

Marv Jenson, Fullmer's manmanager called a halt to the bout "because Don's eye was too badly cut." He announced in Fullmer's dressing room that the wound would require 12 stitches.

For the seven rounds Referee Harold Valan had Wright in front, six rounds to one. Judges Leo Birnbaum and Joe Armstrong each had Wright ahead, five rounds to two. The Associated Press score it six for Wright and called one even. It went into the books as a seventh round TKO.

An apparent slip by Wright in the second round was ruled a knockdown by Referee Valan, but the Detroiter came back strong enough to win the round. For Wright it was his 37th victory and 17th knockout. He has lost six and drawn three times.

Fullmer suffered his fifth loss. He has won 25 and drawn once.

Merry Ruler Wins By Neck In Ventnor

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Merry Ruler scored a neck victory in the $32,050 Ventnor Turf Handicap Saturday at Atlantic City race track with the stretch run of the 1 1-16-mile grass course test resembling a cavalry charge as 16 3-year-old horses drove for the finish line.

Wilshire Farm's Niksar finished second in the blanket finish, a half length before Elkcam Stable's Opus, who was one length in front of Boncrist Farm's Nashua Blue.

This was the fourth major victory of the season for Merry Ruler and it gave jockey John Sellers, the nation's leading rider, a like number of victories for the day.

The English-bred winner, who previously carried Harry O. H. Frelinghuysen's silks to triumphs in the Swift, Bay Shore and Delaware Valley stakes, negotiated the distance in 1:43. His backers received $10.80, $6.00 and $4.80. Niksar paid $9.20 and $7.20 and Opus brought back $7.40 to show.

In a driving finish Merry Ruler was just up for the winner's paycheck of $20,832.50 to bring his seasonal earnings to $98,619.50.

Jockey Sellers had scored earlier with Red O'Hare, Bronze Jet and Talent Show.

Phillies Lose 15th In Row To Bucs, 4-0

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Philadelphia Phillies lost their 15th straight game Saturday—a new club record—as the Pittsburgh Pirates shut them out 4-0 behind the five-hit pitching of Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell.

The Phils' previous record losing streak of 14 was set by the 1883 club and matched by the 1936 team. Their current string of 15 is the longest in the majors this year.

In failing to score, the Phils stretched their string of scoreless innings to 25 1-3.

Mizell gave up only five singles, struck out one and walked only one as he won his sixth of the year against eight losses. Jim Owens (1-7) was the loser.

Smoky Burgess, chunky Pirate catcher, got the 1,000th hit of his major league career in the seventh when he singled. He also drove in a run with a single in the fourth.

Bill Mazeroski's triple and Mizell's sacrifice fly scored a Pirate run in the third. The Buccos got two more in the fourth on doubles by Dick Stuart and Roberto Clemente and Burgess' single. Don Hoak scored the last Pirate run in the eighth when he tripled and came home on a wild pitch by Philadelphia reliever Don Ferrarese.

Girl Wins Link Tourney With 4 Straight Birdies

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Four straight birdies gave Jo Anne Gunderson, Kirkland, Wash., a 3 and 2 victory Saturday over 18-year-old Heidi Prentice, Winnetka, Ill., in the championship match of the Women's Trans-Mississippi Golf Association Tournament at Eugene Country Club.

Miss Gunderson, the 1960 National Amateur and intercollegiate champion, trailed 1-up with just seven holes left in the 36-hole match.

Then, with the aid of some magnificent approach shots, she sank birdie putts of 15, 7, 4 and 12 feet and wrapped it up.

The 22-year-old Miss Gunderson, who plans to do graduate work in guidance and counseling at Arizona State University this fall, said she couldn't remember ever carding four birdies in a row.

"But I was kind of hoping for five," she grinned.

Miss Gunderson almost got the fifth one on the last hole. Her 25-foot putt broke to the left and missed the pin by 6 inches.

16-Year-Old Submerges Old Swimming Record

High School Junior Roars From Behind

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Susan Doerr, 16-year-old Philadelphia schoolgirl, cracked a 5-hour-old world record Saturday in winning the 100-meter butterfly title of the women's National AAU Outdoor Swimming and Diving Championships. She was clocked in 1:08.2.

The high school junior from the Vesper Boat Club came from behind in the last 25 meters to beat 14-year-old Kathy Ellis of the Indianapolis A.C. and Mary Stewart, 15, the Canadian champion who had first smashed the listed world record of 1:09.1 in the qualifying heats.

Miss Ellis was second in 1:08.5, also under the record, and Miss Stewart third in 1:09.5.

The Canadian girl was clocked in 1:08.8 in leading the eight qualifiers for the final. This clipped three-tenths of a second off the listed world mark of 1:09.1 set by Nancy Ramey of Marcer Island, Wash., at Chicago, Sept. 2, 1959.

Becky Collins, of Indianapolis, also was clocked in 1:09.1, in taking fourth place.

Miss Doerr, a member of the 1960 Olympic team, was crowned shortly after Barbara McAlister, 20-year-old Los Angeles beauty won the platform diving title. She clinched the title with brilliant exhibitions on her final three dives.

Carolyn House, a slight 15-year-old from the Los Angeles A.C., became the first double winner of the meet, when she captured the 400-meter freestyle to go with her 1500-meter title.

She whipped Robyn Johnson, surprise winner of the 100-meter freestyle from Arlington, Va., and Olympic champion Chris Von Saltza, defending titlist from Santa Clara, Calif., S.C. Chris was third. Miss House's time was 4:52.3.

Donna de Varona, 14-year-old Olympian from Lafayette, Calif., also became a double champion when she captured the 200-meter individual medley in the American record time of 2:35.0.

This also is the fastest time ever made for the event although the International Swimming Federation does not recognize the 200-medley for record purposes. Donna won the 400-meter individual medley Friday night, breaking her own world record with a time of 5:34.5.

Miss De Varona's time bettered the listed American mark of 2:42.2 set by Becky Collins of Indianapolis in 1959 and her fresh mark of 2:40.2 set in the qualifying trials.

Lyn Hopkins, of the Vesper Boat Club, was second in 2:40.2, also smashing the listed mark.

Dale Barnhard, an unknown from Washington, D.C., celebrated her 14th birthday by taking the 100-meter breaststroke crown in a rousing upset.

She swam almost unnoticed in the eighth and outside lane and lead all the way to win in 1:22.6.

The youngster from the Congressional C.C. just barely qualified for the final by beating Barbara Chesneau of Philadelphia in a swimoff for the last berth. Both had been clocked in 1:25.4.

Jean Ann Dellekamp, the 14-year-pld winner o the 200-meter breaststroke title Friday night, was second in 1:22.7. Linda Kurtz, of Santa Clara, Calif., was third in 1:23.0.

Old Aces Starring For Packers Again

The Green Bay Packers, a stand-pat club with four aces, began the exhibition phase of the National Football League season by whipping the opposition with the same stacked deck that carried them to the Western Conference championship last year.

The Packers, one of three NFL clubs that did not acquire any veterans in off-season trades, relied on quarterback Bart Starr and running mates Paul Hornung, Jim Taylor and Tom Moore to overwhelm the Dallas Cowboys 30-7 Friday night.

In other NFL pre-season tests, the Detroit Lions blasted the Cleveland Browns 35-7 and the Los Angeles Rams defeated the Washington Redskins 26-7. Houston trounced Oakland 35-17 in the only American Football League tuneup scheduled.

Starr, designated the Packers' No. 1 signal-caller when Lamar McHan was traded for a future draft choice, responded with a five-yard touchdown pass to Hornung and set up two more with his accurate aerials.

Taylor scored on a two-yard plunge, kicked a 16-yard field goal and booted three extra points. Moore added two touchdowns on runs of five and six yards against a Dallas club that tallied on an 80-yard pass play from Eddie LeBaron to Frank Clarke.

Earl Morrall replaced Jim Ninoswki at the quarterback post for the Lions in the second period and immediately beat the Browns with three TD tosses. Terry Barr pulled in 59 and 22-yard heaves while Jim Gibbons grabbed a 16-yard flip.

Danny Villanueva kicked field goals of 15, 30, 37 and 42 yards to give the Rams an insurmountable 12-0 edge before the offensively weak Redskins hit the scoreboard with a 25-yard pass from Ralph Guglielmi to Fred Dugan. Los Angeles then iced it with two fourth quarter TDs.

The AFL champion Oilers led the Raiders only 14-10 at the half, but pulled away in the final two periods.

TOWER SAVES ORPHANS IN TYPHOON DISASTER!

True Friend Island, a mission home for homeless South Korean boys, was directly in the path of Typhoon Sarah. To escape it, 200 children and many workers huddled for hours in a recently erected escape tower—and lived. The livestock and every other building in the area were completely washed away.

This life-saving tower, part of a settlement built expressly for the care of homeless youngsters, is the direct result of Americans supporting the Overseas Aid Program of their faith. While this particular endeavor is Protestant, all three great faiths—Protestant, Catholic, Jewish—maintain far-reaching programs. They provide clothing, food, medicine, jobs, education, tools and equipment to the millions in need.

These overseas programs must continue. They often provide the only hope to indigent millions. And they need your support.

Remember, it is the generosity of those like yourself that offers new hope where none now exists.

FORSEE BEST YEAR

Rugged, Air-Minded Pokes May Be GSC Club To Beat

By KEITH PRINCE
World Sports Writer

Touchdowns through the air" and "rugged defense" are expected to be key phrases this year for the McNeese State Cowboys as they began to prepare for what could possibly be the most productive football campaign in the school's history.

Coach Les DeVall's Cowboys are rated strong contenders for this year's Gulf States Conference crown, and the reasons are obvious. First, they have one of the most feared passers in the conference in senior quarterback, Don Breaux, of Lake Charles, plus a fine group of receivers led by end Jay Hebert, a 200-pound junior from Port Arthur, Tex., and sophomore halfback Lloyd Guillot of Marrero. The second very obvious reason is that out of 22 returning lettermen, 12 are linemen who last year had experience with one of the toughest forward walls in the entire conference. Last season McNeese yielded only six touchdowns on the ground in 10 games.

Leaders of this years' defensive unit are expected to be linebackers Johnny Steed, 195-pound senior from Meridian, Miss., and Walter (Sonny) Burden, a 215-pound senior from Ennis, Tex. On the offensive team Steed will be switched from tackle to guard, and Burden will see action at center

GREAT POTENTIAL

With all possibilities considered, Coach DeVall may field the best club he has had since taking over the reins at McNeese in 1957. In his four years as head mentor of the Cowboys' he has led his troops to twice as many victories as defeats—26 to 13—and a share of the GSC title in 1957.

The quarterback problems are few with the return of Breaux, a two-year all-conference selection. Breaux has already re-written the record books at McNeese and this year even greater things are expected of him—if possible. Last year he set three school passing records with his 119 attempts, 65 completions and 869 yards gained, and he boasts a three-year pass completion percentage of .517. Backing up Breaux at the quarterback slot will be Nolan Viator a valuable, 175-pound senior from Sulphur. Viator also steps in well at halfback when needed and is an excellent pass receiver.

Ted Brevelle, (5-10, 165, Sr.) a three-year letterman from Oakdale gets the nod at left halfback, but will be pushed hard by Lloyd Guillot, (5-7, 160, Soph.) one-year letterman from Marrero, and Simon Boudreaux, (5-10, 171, Fr.) from Lake Charles.

The right halfback slot has something to be desired as far as size is concerned, but very little as far as ability and versatility. The top three candidates are: Charles Stevenson, (5-11, 165, Sr.) two-year letterman from Rayville, who also does the punting, and holds down a defensive halfback spot, Mike Regan, (5-6, 160, Jr.) a two-year letterman from Sulphur, and Dale Barbeau, (6-2, 186, Jr.) who was injured most of last season but showed a lot of potential while in action. Barbeau is a one-year letterman from East St. Louis, Ill.

FULLBACKS BIG

Jimmy Langley, (5-9, 195, Soph.) from Lake Charles, and Bobby Blanton, (5-11, 205, Sr.) from Charlotte, N. C. will do most of the fullback work. Blanton was injured early in the season last year and Langley took over the post and held it for the remainder of the year. This year with Blanton recovered the Cowboys should be doubly strong at the position. Also expected to make a move for the job is Jerry Stepp, (5-8, 187, Fr.) from Mansfield.

Both end positions are set with great things expected from each. At left end both the first and second units are occupied by Texans. Hebert, the product from Port Arthur, should be one of the top receivers in the conference, along with being an outstanding blocker and strong defensive end. Last season Hebert caught 16 passes for 264 yards and three touchdowns. Also slated to see a lot of action is Bill Novak, (6-2, 184, Sr.) from Runge, Tex. Although shelved much of last season with a broken arm, he still earned recognition as a fine receiver. Another fine prospect is Larry Poor, (6-4, 235, Sr.) one-year letterman from Gonzales. With Sestak's size and strength he combines the qualities of a good tackle with those of a top end. Last season he pulled in five passes for 67 yards and one TD. Earl Hicks, (6-0, 200, Soph.) from Houma, and Curtis Holston, (6-2, 210, Sr.) one-year letterman from Poplarville, Miss., should provide plenty of depth on the left side. Hicks had a fine spring and proved he's ready to play a lot of football this season for the Cowboys. Holston is already a proven receiver and has the size and speed to do a good job.

TOUGH CORE

The interior linemen should be able to hold their own with almost anybody in the weight department (202 average for the starters), and prove superior to nearly all as far as ruggedness, ability, and experience is concerned. Left tackle has the biggest Cowboy of them all, in Julius (Gus) Fincke, a (6-3, 260, Sr.) one-year letterman from San Antonio, Tex. Fincke had a great season last year, and earned all-conference honors to show for his efforts. Providing added strength are Huey Simoneaux, (6-1, 225, Fr.) from Opelousas, who was redshirted last season, and Wilbert Esthay, (5-10, 195, Soph.) from Lake Charles. Both of these boys, after gaining the experience needed should be standouts.

At right tackle the weight falls off a little, but not the experience or talent. Reuben (Bubba) Davis from Liberty, Tex., at (6-2, 220) should be the starter after being switched from guard during spring drills. Davis is a senior one-year letterman. Norris Traban a 210-pound junior from Lake Charles is expected to share the bulk of right tackle duties with Davis.

The guard spot shapes up as one of the strongest on the team. At left guard, Johnny Steed (6-1, 195, Sr.) will hold down the number one slot. Johnny is a two-year letterman from Meridian, Miss., and should have his best year in an already great career. He is making the switch to guard from an end position where last year he led the entire squad in individual tackles with 49. Helping Steed out will be another two-year letterman, Malcolm Kraus, (6-1, 196, Jr.) from Houma, who is one of the most aggressive players on the team. Errol Marchese, a Sophomore who has shown much improvement, will also be ready when needed.

Louis Eschete, another "Hoss" from Houma will be the first string right guard. Eschete, is a junior one-year letterman who last year had 31 individual tackles to rank fourth in that department. He is a 6-0, 210-pounder and is making the switch from tackle. Kenneth Guilbeaux, (6-2, 220, Jr.) from Lake Charles, and Parker Hudson, (5-10, 190, Soph.) from New Orleans will provide more than adequate depth at the position.

AT CENTER

Last but far from least comes the view of the Cowboys center position. On hand for duty there are two of the most dependable men on the squad. First is Walter (Sonny) Burden a senior one-yearletterman from Ennis, Tex. who combines speed and viciousness to play an outstading linebacking post. Last season Burden made 28 tackles and intercepted two passes from his linebacker post. Also at center is Kenneth Dahlquist a senior two-year letterman from DeQuincy. He is considered one of the most reliable players on the squad and is the type who makes the important tackle when it has to be made. A side from these two, Gerald Conner looms as a contender for the center slot after a very impressive spring. He has the potential to become a top flight defensive specialist.

The men mentioned, plus a fine group of incoming freshman should provide a lot of entertainment, interest, and enjoyment for Cowboy fans this fall, and at the same time give opponents a big dose of the opposite.

La. College Faces Tough Grid Slate

PINEVILLE, (Special) — Louisiana College's Wildcat footballers have their work cut out for them this season.

The 1961 schedule, released by Athletic Director and Head Coach Harold Knight, bears this out. The new list, which includes four home games and six road tilts, is one of the most attractive in L.C. gridiron history.

Five states, including Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Texas, and Oklahoma, are represented on the '61 grid itinerary. It includes two teams not met by the 1960 footballers. They are Sam Houston State College of Huntsville, Tex., and Jacksonville State of Jacksonville, Ala.

Adding flavor to the challenging home schedule will be the appearance of two of the classiest teams in the powerful Gulf States Conference, arch rivals Northwestern State of Natchitoches and McNeese State of Lake Charles. Northwestern eked out the Pinevillians last year, 14-6, while McNeese pasted the 'Cats, 20-7, in a veritable downpour. Both games were out of town.

The 1961 'Cat season will open Saturday, Sept. 16, when L.C. meets Sam Houston State College at Huntsville, Tex. The tilt will mark the first time the two aggregations have met in a number of years. The following week, Sept. 23, the Wildcats will return home to play Troy (Ala.) State in Alumni Stadium. Last year the Orange and Bluers trounced the Red Wave, 27-0, in Alabama.

Sept. 30, the Knightmen will renew one of the oldest football rivalries in the state against Northwestern State. Following that, on Oct. 7, the 'Cats will hit the road again for a journey to Sherman, Tex., where they will vie with Austin College. The game will be the second in a series with the Kangaroos, who fell, 16-6, before last year's powerful Wildcat onslaught.

After that, it's back to Pineville for the L.C. gridmen where they will tangle with Texas Lutheran College on Oct. 14. The game will be the sixth with the Bulldogs since 1955.

Louisiana College's next adversary will be the University of Southwestern Louisiana. Scheduled for Lafayette on Oct. 21, it will mark another game in the ancient rivalry between the two schools. Last year's 'Cats earned a 13-7 victory over USL.

The fray with McNeese, scheduled for Oct. 28, promises to be one of the most interesting in the series with the Lake Charles school.

On Nov. 4 the Pinevillian will initiate a three-game road trip to close out the season. They will meet East Central Oklahoma State College in Ada, Okla., that night and play Jacksonville State College in Jacksonville, Ala., the following Saturday, Nov. 11.

The Cats won, 27-0, against East Central in 1960.

The final tilt of the season will be the second in the recently renewed series with Delta State College in Cleveland, Miss. The 1960 meeting of the two elevens found the powerful Louisianians on top again, this time 40-6.

All home games will begin at 8 p.m.

Waivers Sought For McDermott

CHICAGO (AP) — The Kansas City Athletics asked waivers Friday on veteran pitcher Maury McDermott for the purpose of granting his unconditional release.

McDermott, 33, came to the A's three weeks ago from the St. Louis Cardinals and in 5 2-3 relief innings granted 14 hits, walked 10 and yielded nine earned runs.

McDermott previously pitched for the Boston Red Sox, Washington Senators, New York Yankees and Detroit Tigers before the Cardinals acquired him from Little Rock last year.

General Manager Frank Lane said the A's may acquire a pitcher from their Shreveport affiliate in the Southern Association and try to buy an outfielder.

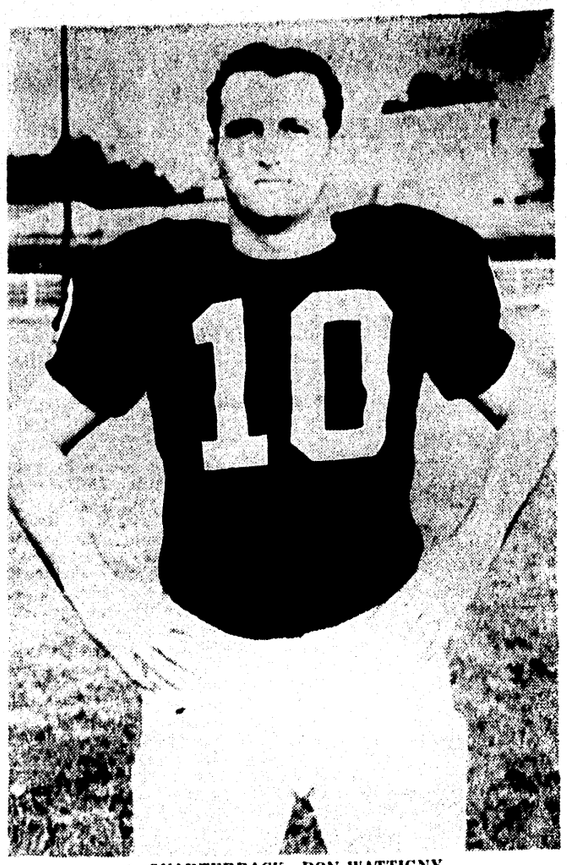
TACKLE ROSS NOLAN



QUARTERBACK DON WATTIGNY

Grid-Savvy, Not Depth Is Keynote For Tribe

Success Depends On Youthful Aces

By RICK BRYAN
World Sports Editor

A disheartening paradox confronts Northeast State football opponents this fall. Head Coach Jack Rowan is fielding a predominently sophomore and junior squad, but oddly it will be his most experienced in three years.

And perhaps its just as well.

The Indian schedule promises to be the most rugged in the history of the school.

Lamar Tech, McNeese, Southeastern, Arlington State and Louisiana Tech comprise a quintet of superior quality. Nor does the other half of the 10 - game slate afford too many breathers. The entire Gulf States Confernce, with the possible exception of Southwestern, should be stronger than in '60 when the Indians' lone loop win was a 7-6 edge of Northwestern Homecoming Day.

The burning question is - can Rowan is his fourth year at Northeast improve on his 3-7 mark of last year?

If grid - savvy can provide what is lacking in depth, if the youngsters produce quickly and if certain key gaps are filled - then perhaps he can.

RESERVES THIN

Only seventeen lettermen are on hand to take a fling at it and soften the loss of 14 monogram wearers.

More important, however, will be patching the bare spots at center and quarterback and providing more backing at guard, end and fullback.

Line departees include ends Charlie Barnes and Larry Giabelloca, starting tackles Luther French and Delmas Thorn, regular guard Perry Beaver, and two fine centers Billy McGraw and Gerry Marchbank.

The seriousness of the casulty picture is delineated by the fact Barnes and Beaver are trying the pro game - Barnes with the Weshington Redskins and Beaver with the Green Bay Packers.

Heading the trouble in the line is the center question. The switch last year of big James LaCoste to tackle and the loss of Marchbank and Beaver, left Rowan empty - handed at the pivot slot. So in spring training big Billy Foster, veteran guard from Tallulah, and lettermen tackle Ben Tatum of Halls, Tenn. were switched to center.

Help will also come from freshman Thomas Beaube, a 210 pounder from Monroe.

Rowan has three returnes at guard: senior Terry Brunet, from New Orleans, Larry Rambin, a junior from Shreveport, and Don King, a sophomore out of Bossier City. Lack of depth may hurt in this position.

With LaCoste, a 220-pound Sophomore hailing from Baton Rouge and Monroe's 235 pound Ross Nolan leading a six-deep corps of experienced squadmen, tackle could be Rowan's strongest position.

Three lettermen return at end, where the numerical depth problem is the same as at guard. The experience situation is even more pronounced, however. All three are sophomores; Gene Harbert, Bossier City; Tommy Latham out of Winnfield and Monroe's Jim Love.

QUARTERBACK TROUBLE

Losses in the backfield are almost as bad. Gone is Pete Vincent, a triple - threat quarterback transfer from Sunflower Junior College in Mississippi and probably lost is signal caller Jack Webb of Baton Rouge, who reportedly joined the armed forces.

Other gaps in the backfield were left by seniors Terry Head and Edwin Thomas at fullback and Levy Redden and Terry Reeves at half. Other halfback defections are Ferdy Cruce and ace frosh kicker last year, John Kelly.

The quarterback losses appear most serious. Only senior ball - handler Don Wattigny of New Orleans has any experience at this post.

At halfback, seniors Al Ott of Gretna, and Don Blackwelder, of Apopka, Florida lead a bevy of speedsters.

Others doing halfback duty will be sophomores Morris Douglas and Donnie Brunson, both of Jonesboro, plus Wisner's Ken Thornhill.

Monroe products Devone Payne, a sophomore and Willie Ragan, a junior, are expected the best of a thin crop at fullback.

Assaying the campaign ahead Rowan hoped the experience of his regulars might offset their youthfulness and the tough schedule.

If it does and the freshmen crop develops to pad the thin spots, then the Indains may change from a dark horse to one of the fastest horses in the Gulf States corral.

Bill Veeck Returns To Mayo Clinic

EASTON, Md. (AP)—Bill Veeck former major domo of three American League baseball clubs, will return to Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., Sunday.

His wife, who will accompany him, said her husband is "returning for more tests and we hope to have some answer" for what is ailing the colorful sports figure.

Veeck had been at the clinic twice before and his ill health caused him to sell out a majority interest in the Chicago White Sox. He previously had run the Cleveland Indians and the St. Louis Browns.

Mrs. Veeck said her husband has been busy the past three weeks refurbishing property he bought near here on Maryland's Eastern Shore the end of June.

Reached by telephone, Mrs. Veeck said he was out at the time directing painters and repairs of a leaking roof.

"He's fine, except he does get a little tired," she said.

Mrs. Veeck said they had no idea how long he would be at the Mayo Clinic, but added "we're very hopeful."

Veeck now is 47 years old.

FORSEE BEST YEAR

Rugged, Air-Minded Pokes May Be GSC Club To Beat

By KEITH PRINCE
World Sports Writer

Touchdowns through the air" and "rugged defense" are expected to be key phrases this year for the McNeese State Cowboys as they began to prepare for what could possibly be the most productive football campaign in the school's history.

Coach Les DeVall's Cowboys are rated strong contenders for this year's Gulf States Conference crown, and the reasons are obvious. First, they have one of the most feared passers in the conference in senior quarterback, Don Breaux, of Lake Charles, plus a fine group of receivers led by end Jay Hebert, a 200-pound junior from Port Arthur, Tex., and sophomore halfback Lloyd Guillot of Marrero. The second very obvious reason is that out of 22 returning lettermen, 12 are linemen who last year had experience with one of the toughest forward walls in the entire conference. Last season McNeese yielded only six touchdowns on the ground in 10 games.

Leaders of this years' defensive unit are expected to be linebackers Johnny Steed, 195-pound senior from Meridian, Miss., and Walter (Sonny) Burden, a 215-pound senior from Ennis, Tex., On the offensive team Steed will be switched from tackle to guard, and Burden will see action at center.

GREAT POTENTIAL

With all possibilities considered, Coach DeVall may field the best club he has had since taking over the reins at McNeese in 1957. In his four years as head mentor of the Cowboys' he has led his troops to twice as many victories as defeats—26 to 13—and a share of the GSC title in 1957.

The quarterback problems are few with the return of Breaux, a two-year all-conference selection. Breaux has already re-written the record books at McNeese and this year even greater things are expected of him—if possible. Last year he set three school passing records with his 119 attempts, 65 completions and 869 yards gained, and he boasts a three-year pass completion percentage of .517. Backing up Breaux at the quarterback slot will be Nolan Viator a valuable, 175-pound senior from Sulphur. Viator also steps in well at halfback when needed and is an excellent pass receiver.

Ted Brevelle, (5-10, 165, Sr.) a three-year letterman from Oakdale gets the nod at left halfback, but will be pushed hard by Lloyd Guillot, (5-7, 160, Soph.) one-year letterman from Marrero, and Simon Boudreaux, (5-10, 171, Fr.) from Lake Charles.

The right halfback slot has something to be desired as far as size is concerned, but very little as far as ability and versatility. The top three candidates are: Charles Stevenson, (5-11, 165, Sr.) two-year letterman from Rayville, who also does the punting, and holds down a defensive halfback spot, Mike Regan, (5-6, 160, Jr.) a two-year letterman from Sulphur, and Dale Barbeau, (6-2, 186, Jr.) who was injured most of last season but showed a lot of potential while in action. Barbeau is a one-year letterman from East St. Louis, Ill.

FULLBACKS BIG

Jimmy Langley, (5-9, 195, Soph.) from Lake Charles, and Bobby Blanton, (5-11, 205, Sr.) from Charlotte, N. C. will do most of the fullback work. Blanton was injured early in the season last year and Langley took over the post and held it for the remainder of the year. This year with Blanton recovered the Cowboys should be doubly strong at the position. Also expected to make a move for the job is Jerry Stepp, (5-8, 187, Fr.) from Mansfield.

Both end positions are set with great things expected from each. At left end both the first and second units are occupied by Texans. Hebert, the product from Port Arthur, should be one of the top receivers in the conference, along with being an outstanding blocker and strong defensive end. Last season Hebert caught 16 passes for 264 yards and three touchdowns. Also slated to see a lot of action is Bill Novak, (6-2, 184, Sr.) from Runge, Tex. Although shelved much of last season with a broken arm, he still earned recognition as a fine receiver. Another fine prospect is Larry Poor, (6-4, 235, Sr.) one-year letterman from Gonzales. With Sestak's size and strength he combines the qualities of a good tackle with those of a top end. Last season he pulled in five passes for 67 yards and one TD. Earl Hicks, (6-0, 200, Soph.) from Houma, and Curtis Holston, (6-2, 210, Sr.) one-year letterman from Poplarville, Miss., should provide plenty of depth on the left side. Hicks had a fine spring and proved he's ready to play a lot of football this season for the Cowboys. Holston is already a proven receiver and has the size and speed to do a good job.

TOUGH CORE

The interior linemen should be able to hold their own with almost anybody in the weight department (202 average for the starters), and prove superior to nearly all as far as ruggedness, ability, and experience is concerned. Left tackle has the biggest Cowboy of them all, in Julius (Gus) Fincke, a (6-3, 260, Sr.) one-year letterman from San Antonio, Tex. Fincke had a great season last year, and earned all-conference honors to show for his efforts. Providing added strength are Huey Simoneaux, (6-1, 225, Fr.) from Opelousas, who was redshirted last season, and Wilbert Esthay, (5-10, 195, Soph.) from Lake Charles. Both of these boys, after gaining the experience needed should be standouts.

At right tackle the weight falls off a little, but not the experience or talent. Reuben (Bubba) Davis from Liberty, Tex., at (6-2, 220) should be the starter after being switched from guard during spring drills. Davis is a senior one-year letterman. Norris Trahan a 210-pound junior from Lake Charles is expected to share the bulk of right tackle duties with Davis.

The guard spot shapes up as one of the strongest on the team. At left guard, Johnny Steed (6-1, 195, Sr.) will hold down the number one slot. Johnny is a two-year letterman from Meridian, Miss., and should have his best year in an already great career. QUARTERBACK DON WATTIGNY

Grid-Savvy, Not Depth Is Keynote For Tribe

Success Depends On Youthful Aces

By RICK BRYAN
World Sports Editor

A disheartening paradox confronts Northeast State football opponents this fall. Head Coach Jack Rowan is fielding a prodominently sophomore and junior squad, but oddly it will be his most experienced in three years.

And perhaps its just as well.

The Indian schedule promises to be the most rugged in the history of the school.

Lamar Tech, McNeese, Southeastern, Arlington State and Louisiana Tech comprise a quintet of superior quality. Nor does the other half of the 10 - game slate afford too many breathers. The entire Gulf States Confernce, with the possible exception of Southwestern, should be stronger than in '60 when the Indians' lone loop win was a 7-6 edge of Northwestern Homecoming Day.

The burning question is - can Rowan is his fourth year at Northeast improve on his 3-7 mark of last year?

If grid - savvy can provide what is lacking in depth, if the youngsters produce quickly and if certain key gaps are filled - then perhaps he can.

RESERVES THIN

Only seventeen lettermen are on hand to take a fling at it and soften the loss of 14 monogram wearers.

More important, however, will be patching the bare spots at center and quarterback and providing more backing at guard, end and fullback.

Line departees include ends Charlie Barnes and Larry Giabelluca, starting tackles Luther French and Delmas Thorn, regular guard Perry Beaver, and two fine centers Billy McGraw and Gerry Marchbank.

The seriousness of the casulty picture is delineated by the fact Barnes and Beaver are trying the pro game - Barnes with the Weshington Redskins and Beaver with the Green Bay Packers.

Heading the trouble in the line is the center question. The switch last year of big James LaCoste to tackle and the loss of Marchbank and Beaver, left Rowan empty - handed at the pivot slot. So in spring training big Billy Foster, veteran guard from Tallulah, and lettermen tackle Ben Tatum of Halls, Tenn. were switched to center.

Help will also come from freshman Thomas Beaube, a 210 pounder from Monroe.

Rowan has three returnes at guard: senior Terry Brunet, from New Orleans, Larry Rambin, a junior from Shreveport, and Don King, a sophomore out of Bossier City. Lack of depth may hurt in this position.

With LaCoste, a 220-pound Sophomore hailing from Baton Rouge and Monroe's 235 pound Ross Nolan leading a six-deep corps of experienced squadmen, tackle could be Rowan's strongest position.

Three lettermen return at end, where the numerical depth problem is the same as at guard. The experience situation is even more pronounced, however. All three are sophomores: Gene Harbert, Bossier City; Tommy Latham out of Winnfield and Monroe's Jim Love.

QUARTERBACK TROUBLE

Losses in the backfield are almost as bad. Gone is Pete Vincent, a triple - threat quarterback transfer from Sunflower Junior College in Mississippi and probably lost is signal caller Jack Webb of Baton Rouge, who reportedly joined the armed forces.

Other gaps in the backfield were left by seniors Terry Head and Edwin Thomas at fullback and Levy Redden and Terry Reeves at half. Other halfback defections are Ferdy Cruce and ace frosh kicker last year, John Kelly.

The quarterback losses appear most serious. Only senior ball - handler Don Wattigny of New Orleans has any experience at this post.

At halfback, seniors Al Ott of Gretna, and Don Blackwelder, of Apopka, Florida lead a bevy of speedsters.

Others doing halfback duty will be sophomores Morris Douglas and Donnie Brunson, both of Jonesboro, plus Wisner's Ken Thornhill.

Monroe products Devone Payne, a sophomore and Willie Ragan, a junior, are expected the best of the thin crop at fullback.

Assaying the campaign ahead Rowan hoped the experience of his regulars might offset their youthfulness and the tough schedule.

If it does and the freshmen crop develops to pad the thin spots, then the Indains may change from a dark horse to one of the fastest horses in the Gulf States corral.

Bill Veeck Returns To Mayo Clinic

EASTON, Md. (AP)—Bill Veeck former major domo of three American League baseball clubs, will return to Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., Sunday.

His wife, who will accompany him, said her husband is "returning for more tests and we hope to have some answer" for what is ailing the colorful sports figure.

Veeck had been at the clinic twice before and his ill health caused him to sell out a majority interest in the Chicago White Sox. He previously had run the Cleveland Indians and the St. Louis Browns.

Mrs. Veeck said her husband has been busy the past three weeks refurbishing property he bought near here on Maryland's Eastern Shore the end of June.

Reached by telephone, Mrs. Veeck said he was out at the time directing painters and repairs of a leaking roof.

"He's fine, except he does get a little tired," she said.

Mrs. Veeck said they had no idea how long he would be at the Mayo Clinic, but added "we're very hopeful."

Veeck now is 47 years old.

One-hit games—Lary, Detroit; Sturdivant, Washington.

CHARLIE TOLAR (44), fullback for the Houston Oilers, starts on a 10-yard gain against the Oakland Raiders in the first period of their exhibition game in Honolulu Friday night. Tolar, who hails from Natchitoches, was a star fullback for Northwestern State in 1958, the last season the Demons had a share of the Gulf States Crown. Other identifiable players are Houston guard Bob Talamini (61) and Riley Morris (55) Oakland halfback. The Oilers won 35-17. (AP Wirephoto)

WANTS SEVEN MORE IN AUGUST

Mickey Says 50 By Sept. Needed To Best The Babe

WASHINGTON (AP)—If either of the New York Yankee twins—Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris—is to break Babe Ruth's record of 60 home runs in a season, he must go into September with around 50.

At least that's what Mantle believes.

"I hope to hit at least seven more home runs before this month is over," Mantle said, "otherwise it's going to be almost impossible to catch the Babe. I remember back in 1956, I had 47 going into September. I hit only five in the last month."

Mantle wound up the 1956 season with 52 home runs to become the sixth man to start the final month ahead of Ruth's record record pace and fall short. With 44 homers under his belt this year—counting Friday night's wallop here—Mickey will go into the final month ahead of Babe's 1927 pace.

"We have 49 games left," Mantle observed. "In my book, though, we have only 41 left because I'm considering only a 154-game schedule, the same number of games they played in Ruth's time. That means I'll need better than a homer every three games. That's a tall order."

Much has been written about how Hank Greenberg, Jimmy Foxx, Hack Wilson, Johnny Mize and Mantle roared into September ahead of Ruth's '27 pace but found the final month pressure too much for them.

The fact is that Ruth himself must have flet some of that pressure, too. That was in 1928, the year after he set the mark of 60. In '28 the Babe was far ahead of his record pace of the previous year when he had 43 going into September but finished with a rash of 17 four baggers.

On Aug. 4, 1928, in the Yankees' 105 game, Ruth hit his 43rd home run. That's six games ahead of Mantle's current pace. On Aug. 30, Ruth hit his 47th and needed 14 in his team's final 29 games to shatter his own mark. He hit only seven. In one 11-game stretch, from Sept. 11 through Sept. 16, Babe went homerless. He finished with 54 that year.

The best September mark of any serious challenger to Ruth's record was Greenberg's 12 in 1938. Foxx in 1932 and Wilson in 1930 has 10, Mize in 1947 had seven and Mantle in 1956 had five.

KEEPS TITLE HOPES

Beau Prince Takes Crown At Travers

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP)—Beau Prince kept alive his hopes for the 3-year-old title Saturday as he carried Calumet Farm's red devilled silks to an easy victory in the 92nd running of the $83,400 Travers—America's oldest horse race—at Saratoga.

Under Steve Brooks, the son of Bull Lea took the lead heading into the backstretch after taking advantage of the slow early pace, quickly opened up a wide margin and coasted home for his second straight stakes triumph. Last Saturday the Calumet ace won the American Derby at Arlington Park.

Beau Prince, kept out of the early spring stakes by illness, stepped the 1¼ miles in 2:03 with 126 pounds in the saddle to give Calumet its first victory in the ancient stake since Whirlaway carried off the honors in 1941.

The Calumet colt finished 5½ lengths in front of Mrs. Robert Dotter's stretch running Guadalcanal, who just beat out Robert Lehman's Ambiopoise. Then came Hitting Away, who ran closest to Beau Prince for nearly a mile. Tutankhamen, the favorite Ring Around, Injun and Orleans Doge, who was well backed off his recent victory in the Choice at Monmouth Park.

For his fifth victory in 13 starts this year, Beau Prince picked up $54,210 and boosted his 1961 bankroll to $188,347. His backers in the mutuels were paid off at $10.20, $4.90 and $3.10. Guadalcanal, piloted by Manuel Yeaza, returned $4.50 and $3.30, and Ambiopoise $3.70 to show.

Beau Prince broke from the starting barrier with the leaders but Brooks quickly took him back as the Red Oak Stable's Injun and Hitting Away from the Wheatley Stable battled for the early lead.

Hitting Away, with Eddie Arcaro seeking his fifth Travers victory, soon took over the front end but not for long. Brooks rushed Beau Prince up going around the first turn and opened up four lengths of daylight. He still led by three at the half-mile post and lengthened the margin again to four as they turned into the home stretch with ¼ mile remaining.

WANTS 20 WINS THIS YEAR

Spahn Sets Goals Higher After Entering 300 Group

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Warren Spahn, the Milwaukee Braves' pitching marvel, laughed at father time and set his goals higher today as a member of baseball's exclusive 300-victory club.

The 40-year-old southpaw wonder became the 13th hurler in major league history to achieve coveted victory No. 300 as he edged the Chicago Cubs 2-1 Friday night on a masterful six-hitter.

"I'm going to stay active as long as possible," Spahn said before heading for a party attended by teammates and friends. "My next goal is to win 20 games this year—and I'm going to have to go some with only 12 so far. Then I'll be back next year."

Although he realized that reaching 300 was only a matter of time, Spahn admitted that he was gripped by tension unprecedented in his brilliant career although he was appearing in his 598th National League game.

"This was the toughest game I've ever pitched," he said. "I've never had anything so tough. This thing was built up to a great degree. I couldn't help but feel it. I'm glad I don't have to go through this again. I'm greatly relieved. Now I can relax."

Reminded that when he won his 200th game five years ago he had said his next goal wsa 300, Spahn said:

"Well, maybe I'll try for 400, but it seems awfully far away right now. Maybe I had better shoot for (Eddie) Plank's record of 325, which is the most ever by a left-hander."

Spahn joined Plank and Lefty Grove, the only living member of the "300" set, as the only southpaws to reach the lofty mark. Grove, reported seriously ill, was the last pitcher to win 300, struggling to hit it with the Boston Red Sox in 1941 and never winning another game.

Spahn said that the tension mounted as he received scores of calls and telegrams throughout the day.

"About six o'clock I wished it was game time," he said. "Then along in the late innings I knew they were saving Ernie Banks for me. The tension mounts and after a while it begins to get you. I was never happier than when that final out came."

Spahn finally faced Banks, pinch hitting in the ninth. Ernie hit a bounder to Eddie Mathews for what appeared to be the last out, but the Braves' All-Star third baseman overthrew first for an error. Spahn, unruffled, then got pinch hitter Jim McAnany to fly to short right to end the game.

The Braves' ace hurled hitless ball until George Altman lined a clean single to center with two out in the fourth. Spahn, himself, drove in a run in the fifth with a sacrifice fly, before the Cubs tied the count at 1-1 on three hits in the sixth.

Gino Cimoli, veteran outfielder acquired from Pittsburgh June 15, provided the decisive run with his third homer of the season. His shot into the bleachers in left with one out in the eighth was only his 30th homer in six years in the National League.

"I don't hit many of those, but I can't think of a better place to hit a home run," Cimoli said as he posed, at Spahn's insistence, for the cameramen.

"That was destiny, that home run," Gino said with a laugh. "Just destiny."

Spahn leaped in joy and raced around shaking hands and slapping his teammates the final out. He admittedly was "choked up" as he doffed his cap and blew kisses to fans in racing to the dugout, then to a sweltering clubhouse where champagne bottle corks popped in unison with photographers' shutter clickings.

The "300" club is headed by Cy Young, whose amazing record of 511 victories from 1890 to 1911 appears untouchable. Other

Major League Averages

The Yankee catcher collected three hits in five tries and boosted his average four points to .365 while Cash had one hit in four trips and his mark dipped one point to .362.

Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris of New York each homered to continue their home run duel. Mantle has 44 home runs and Maris 42. Mantle also closed in on co-leaders Jim Gentile of Baltimore and Maris in the runs batted in competition. Mantle drove in three runs, giving him 103. Gentile and Maris have 104 apiece.

In the National League, Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh opened a 26-point lead over teammate Don Hoak. Clemente had two hits in three times at bat, lifting his average to .365. Hoak is at .339.

Orlando Cepeda of San Francisco drove in two runs and took over the RBI lead from Cincinnati's Frank Robinson. Cepeda has 99 and Robinson 98. Robinson is No. 1 in home runs with 33, three more than Cepeda.

WANTS 20 WINS THIS YEAR

Spahn Sets Goals Higher After Entering 300 Group

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Warren Spahn, the Milwaukee Braves' pitching marvel, laughed at father time and set his goals higher today as a member of baseball's exclusive 300-victory club.

The 40-year-old southpaw wonder became the 13th hurler in major league history to achieve coveted victory No. 300 as he edged the Chicago Cubs 2-1 Friday night on a masterful six-hitter.

"I'm going to stay active as long as possible," Spahn said before heading for a party attended by teammates and friends. "My next goal is to win 20 games this year—and I'm going to have to go some with only 12 so far. Then I'll be back next year."

Although he realized that reaching 300 was only a matter of time, Spahn admitted that he was gripped by tension unprecedented in his brilliant career although he was appearing in his 598th National League game.

"This was the toughest game I've ever pitched," he said. "I've never had anything so tough. This thing was built up to a great degree. I couldn't help but feel it. I'm glad I don't have to go through this again. I'm greatly relieved. Now I can relax."

Reminded that when he won his 200th game five years ago he had said his next goal wsa 300, Spahn said:

"Well, maybe I'll try for 400, but it seems awfully far away right now. Maybe I had better shoot for (Eddie) Plank's record of 325, which is the most ever by a left-hander."

Spahn joined Plank and Lefty Grove, the only living member of the "300" set, as the only southpaws to reach the lofty mark. Grove, reported seriously ill, was the last pitcher to win 300, struggling to hit it with the Boston Red Sox in 1941 and never winning another game.

Spahn said that the tension mounted as he received scores of calls and telegrams throughout the day.

"About six o'clock I wished it was game time," he said. "Then along in the late innings I knew they were saving Ernie Banks for me. The tension mounts and after a while it begins to get you. I was never happier than when that final out came."

Spahn finally faced Banks, pinch hitting in the ninth. Ernie hit a bounder to Eddie Mathews for what appeared to be the last out, but the Braves' All-Star third baseman overthrew first for an error. Spahn, unruffled, then got pinch hitter Jim McAnany to fly to short right to end the game.

The Braves' ace hurled hitless ball until George Altman lined a clean single to center with two out in the fourth. Spahn, himself, drove in a run in the fifth with a sacrifice fly, before the Cubs tied the count at 1-1 on three hits in the sixth.

Gino Cimoli, veteran outfielder acquired from Pittsburgh June 15, provided the decisive run with his third homer of the season. His shot into the bleachers in left with one out in the eighth was only his 30th homer in six years in the National League.

"I don't hit many of those, but I can't think of a better place to hit a home run," Cimoli said as he posed, at Spahn's insistence, for the cameramen.

"That was destiny, that home run," Gino said with a laugh. "Just destiny."

Spahn leaped in joy and raced around shaking hands and slapping his teammates the final out. He admittedly was "choked up" as he doffed his cap and blew kisses to fans in racing to the dugout, then to a sweltering clubhouse where champagne bottle corks popped in unison with photographers' shutter clickings.

The "300" club is headed by Cy Young, whose amazing record of 511 victories from 1890 to 1911 appears untouchable. Other members are Walter Johnson (416), Christy Mathewson and Grover Cleveland Alexander (373), Kid Nichols (360), Jim Galvin (355), Tim Keefe (345), John Clarkson (328), Plank, Mickey Welch (316), Charles (Hoss) Radbourne (308) and Grove and Spahn.

Spahn came up to the Braves in 1942, but appeared in only four games without a decision. After three years in the Army, in which he was wounded, decorated and given a battlefield commission in the infantry in Europe, he posted an 8-5 record with the club, then in Boston, in 1946.

The next year he had a 21-10 record, the first of his 11 20-victory seasons, a major league record for southpaws. He has failed to win 20 games or more in only three years since.

To Be Honored

BOSTON (AP) — Milwaukee southpaw Warren Spahn, who won his 300th major lague game Friday night, will be honored Aug. 21 when the Boston Red Sox meet the Braves in a night exhibition game at Fenway Park.

Spahn will receive a special plaque for his baseball achievements from Richard Cardinal Crushing, Roman Catholic archbishop of Boston.

Proceeds from the game will go to the Children's Cancer Research Foundation, Inc.

WANTS SEVEN MORE IN AUGUST

Mickey Says 50 By Sept. Needed To Best The Babe

WASHINGTON (AP)—If either of the New York Yankee twins—Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris—is to break Babe Ruth's record of 60 home runs in a season, he must go into September with around 50.

At least that's what Mantle believes.

"I hope to hit at least seven more home runs before this month is over," Mantle said, "otherwise it's going to be almost impossible to catch the Babe. I remember back in 1956, I had 47 going into September. I hit only five in the last month."

Mantle wound up the 1956 season with 52 home runs to become the sixth man to start the final month ahead of Ruth's record record pace and fall short. With 44 homers under his belt this year—counting Friday night's wallop here—Mickey will go into the final month ahead of Babe's 1927 pace.

"We have 49 games left," Mantle observed. "In my book, though, we have only 41 left because I'm considering only a 154-game schedule, the same number of games they played in Ruth's time. That means I'll need better than a homer every three games. That's a tall order."

Much has been written about how Hank Greenberg, Jimmy Foxx, Hack Wilson, Johnny Mize and Mantle roared into September ahead of Ruth's '27 pace but found the final month pressure too much for them.

The fact is that Ruth himself must have flet some of that pressure, too. That was in 1923, the year after he set the mark of 60. In '28 the Babe was far ahead of his record pace of the previous year when he had 43 going into September but finished with a rash of 17 four baggers.

On Aug. 4, 1928, in the Yankees' 105 game, Ruth hit his 43rd home run. That's six games ahead of Mantle's current p

Firm To Build Satellite For Communications

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hughes Aircraft Corp. of Sulver City, Calif., has been chosen to build the first "stationary" communications satellite for the National Aeronautics and space Administration.

The 50-pound satellite will be launched into an orbit 22,300 miles above the earth. Rotating at the same speed and in the same direction as the earth, it will appear to hover over a given area.

The cost of at least three flight units was estimated at about $4 million. The first launching is scheduled for late next year.

NASA gave the spacecraft the name of Project Syncom, describing a communications satellite in synchronous rotation with the earth.

The project takes its place along with two other NASA programs for active communications satellites, its own Project Relay orbiter being developed by Radio Corp. of America, and the privately financed American Tele[phone] & Telegraph Co. satellite.

Tulane University's Medical Center Aiding In Cancer Research

By M. GENE MEARNS
United Press International

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 12 (UPI) Five hundred and eighty-two mice, ten to a cage, tier on tier in a small, ninth - floor laboratory of Tulane University's medical center can generate quite an odor.

But young Dr. Charlie Tomberlin, a resident specialist in radiology, conducting cancer research on the rodents, is uniquely adapted to his task. He has no sense of smell.

"People who've visited me up here say the odor's pretty bad," he said, unlocking the door to the room full of mice, "but I don't know about the smell—I've never even smelled a flower."

Tomberlin, 26, has a crisp crew cut, a ruddy complexion and comes from Opp, Ala.

"The city of Opp, where agriculture and industry join hands,' I tell that to everybody," he said, while laying out sterilizing equipment, surgical instruments and a bottle of ether, "because most people never heard of my home town."

"The experiment I'm working on," he said, "was begun in the middle 1950's by Dr. Charles M. Nice Jr., who is now head of the departments of radiology at Tulane and Charity Hospital here."

Tomberlin explained the purpose of the experiment was to determine if X-Ray treatment could make a tumor grow faster, slower or have any effect on it at all.

"Or, on the other hand, will the tumor become resistant to the X-Ray treatment?" he asked.

"We have a stock tumor," he said, removing a grilled top from a metal mouse cage about the size of a pop-up toaster, "and we inject it into mice and then treat them with varying amounts of radiation."

The mice which scrambled about the floor of the cage were bright - eyed, had glossy brown coats and tiny feet and noses of delicate pink. They had large swellings on their bodies.

"These are tumors," Tomberlin said, pointing to some of the lumps. "They are a type called Lymphosarcoma — similar to Hodgkins disease in a man."

"These mice here," he said, opening another cage, "have been treated with X-Ray. You'll notice their tumors have receded in size—disappeared in some cases."

In other cages, the young doctor pointed out mice unaffected by X-Ray, had died or had been cured. "A few cures don't mean much," he said, "until we correlate our records and statistics."

Tomberlin and an assistant, Tulane senior medical student Jim Yang of Seoul, Korea, busied themselves with transplanting tumors to a new group of mice.

Together they bent over a work table, gleaming instruments moving precisely, eyes intent on their task. "This tumor has been transplanted more than 4,000 times," slight 27-year-old Yang remarked.

Later 10 mice were carried to an X-Ray machine at the far end of a dimly-lit hallway. For 20 minutes they were immobilized in a sort of pillory under a silent, invisible stream of X-Ray particles.

Miss Helen Louise Theus Weds John Michael Gregory Saturday

Our Lady of Fatima Catholic church was scene of the wedding Saturday, August 12, of Miss Helen Louise Theus and John Michael Gregory. The Rev. Father George Martinez heard the vows at seven in the evening.

in the presence of the immediate families a and a few close friends. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Crawfor dTheus of Monroe, while the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. John Wellington Gregory of Dothan, Alabama.

Twin brass urns of stock, tube roses, white aurateum lilies and Fugi mums decorated the church for the service. As guests were being seated by William Cobb Allen and James Graves Theus, brother of the bride, a pre-nuptial concert was presented by Mrs. Hugh Gibson McDonald at the organ.

As she entered on the arm of her father, Mr. Theus, the bride wore a wedding gown of deep luster satin and re - embroidered French alencon lace. Seed pearls encrusted the bodice and rounded neckline and cascaded down the satin skirt. Inserts of hand run alencon lace added fullness toward the hemline and extended into the chapel length train. She wore a veil of imported silk illusion. A shoulder length halo of heirloom rosepoint lace, a wedding gift to her mother from the Franciscan sisters, framed her face. She wore an heirloom pin, which had belonged to her great grandmother, a gift at birth from her aunt, Mrs. Ronald Lee Davis, Sr. The bride carried a small magnolia.

The bride's attendants were Miss Lynn Theus, maid of honor, and Mrs. Hayden Harrison Cutler, matron of honor. They wore identical waltz-length dresses of maize silk organza over taffeta with scooped necklines, fitted bodices, and bouffant skirt with matching velvet belts. Their headdresses were small matching coifs, and their bouquets, cascades of tuberoses and miniature ivy. Lee Jackson Powell of Montgomery, Alabama, served the groom as best man, and John Welles Rodenbough of Dothan, Alabama was groomsman.

Mrs. Theus chose to wear for her daughter's wedding a green silk chiffon dress with softly draped skirt and a green silk chiffon hat. She wore long white kid gloves and a corsage of yellow japhet orchids. Mrs. Gregory, mother of the groom, was attired in French blue chiffon with matching hat and a white japhet orchid corsage. The bride's grandmother, Mrs. James Quarles Graves, wore powder blue chiffon with a small blue coif and a corsage of white japhet orchids.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, 606 Loop road, immediately following the wedding. Magnolias and tube roses were used with ivy, yew, and magnolia foliage to decorate the reception suite.

A cloth of pale yellow overlaid with white organdy covered the bride's table. Yellow roses decorated the wedding ring cake.

When the newly married couple left on a wedding trip to North Carolina, Mrs. Gregory was wearing a suit of beige tissue wool with small stitched coif and accessories of similar tones. Upon their return, they will be at home in New Orleans, where Mr. Gregory is a student at Tulane Medical school.

Out of town guests who attended the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Franklin Cook, Albany, Georgia; Mr. and Mrs. Ben Selman, Atlanta, Georgia; Miss Nancy Schmid, Birmingham, Alabama; Judge and Mrs. C. A. Barnett, Ruston; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Katorineck and Scott and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dixon, Hattiesburg, Mississippi; Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Smith and Miss Mary Smith, Shreveport; Mr. and Mrs. W. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Rosa Lee Hale, of Monroe, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. James R. Hegwood, Sr., also of Monroe.

Baskets of white gladioli decorated the church for the ceremony. A prenuptial concert was given by Mrs. Delta Williamson at the organ. She also accompanied Bobby Wilson, who sang "Ave Maria" and "Panis Angelicus."

Miss Helen Louise Theus Weds John Michael Gregory Saturday

Our Lady of Fatima Catholic church was scene of the wedding Saturday, August 12, of Miss Helen Louise Theus and John Michael Gregory. The Rev. Father George Martinez heard the vows at seven in the evening in the presence of the immediate families a and a few close friends. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Crawfor dTheus of Monroe, while the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. John Wellington Gregory of Dothan, Alabama.

Twin brass urns of stock, tube roses, white aurateum lilies and Fugi mums decorated the church for the service. As guests were being seated by William Cobb Allen and James Graves Theus, brother of the bride, a pre-nuptial concert was presented by Mrs. Hugh Gibson McDonald at the organ.

As she entered on the arm of her father, Mr. Theus, the bride wore a wedding gown of deep luster satin and re - embroidered French alencon lace. Seed pearls encrusted the bodice and rounded neckline and cascaded down the satin skirt. Inserts of hand run alencon lace added fullness toward the hemline and extended into the chapel length train. She wore a veil of imported silk illusion. A shoulder length halo of heirloom rosepoint lace, a wedding gift to her mother from the Franciscan sisters, framed her face. She wore an heirloom pin, which had belonged to her great grandmother, a gift at birth from her aunt, Mrs. Ronald Lee Davis, Sr. The bride carried a small magnolia.

The bride's attendants were Miss Lynn Theus, maid of honor, and Mrs. Hayden Harrison Cutler, matron of honor. They wore identical waltz-length dresses of maize silk organza over taffeta with scooped necklines, fitted bodices, and bouffant skirt with matching velvet belts. Their headdresses were small matching coifs, and their bouquets, cascades of tuberoses and miniature ivy. Lee Jackson Powell of Montgomery, Alabama, served the groom as best man, and John Welles Rodenbough of Dothan, Alabama was groomsman.

Mrs. Theus chose to wear for her daughter's wedding a green silk chiffon dress with softly draped skirt and a green silk chiffon hat. She wore long white kid gloves and a corsage of yellow japhet orchids. Mrs. Gregory, mother of the groom, was attired in French blue chiffon with matching hat and a white japhet orchid corsage. The bride's grandmother, Mrs. James Quarles Graves, wore powder blue chiffon with a small blue coif and a corsage of white japhet orchids.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, 606 Loop road, immediately following the wedding. Magnolias and tube roses were used with ivy, yew, and magnolia foliage to decorate the reception suite.

A cloth of pale yellow overlaid with white organdy covered the bride's table. Yellow roses decorated the wedding ring cake.

When the newly married couple left on a wedding trip to North Carolina, Mrs. Gregory was wearing a suit of beige tissue wool with small stitched coif and accessories of similar tones. Upon their return, they will be at home in New Orleans, where Mr. Gregory is a student at Tulane Medical school.

Out of town guests who attended the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Franklin Cook, Albany, Georgia; Mr. and Mrs. Ben Selman, Atlanta, Georgia; Miss Nancy Schmid, Birmingham, Alabama; Judge and Mrs. C. We are losing some of our favorite Monroyans this summer, what with several families moving away from town. As is the custom hereabouts, those leaving have been entertained at farewell parties given by friends and neighbors. The FRED BARLOW family, who have been living on Bon Aire Drive, left on Wednesday past for Akron, Ohio, where they will make their home hereafter.

Among the parties given for Jessie was a conversational hour in the home of EUNICE FORMAN. Greenery and calladium leaves decorated the house for the party, and the table was centered with a cornucopia of summer fruit. LYNN KUGLER served sauterne punch and GLADYS KULCKE poured coffee. About fifteen ladies attended.

Lynn's compliment to Jessie was luncheon at the Paragon. Saturday night the J. D. KELLYS were hosts at a family barbecue. On Monday morning, CHARLENE BROWN invited about twenty - five neighbors and close friends for coffee.

When she entertained at luncheon for Jessie, SITTY M'NEIL's table was a picture in blues and browns: blue-grey pottery used on brown placemats with blue napkins and blue glassware. Blue hydrangeas were arranged in a wooden shoe for the centerpiece. Six guests enjoyed a meal of ham, spinach casserole, avocado and grapefruit salad, and angle food cake with lemon ice.

The children of the Barlow family were entertained by their friends at swimming parties, barbecues, and pallet parties. Among the young hosts and hostesses were RONNIE SMITH, MARK WILLIAMS, and RALPH HICKMAN.

Other residents whose departure is imminent are the JACK TERZIAS, who will be moving to Baton Rouge before school opens. Ann was honored Monday at a bridge party given by PAT RILEY, MARY ALICE LOFLIN, and PAT MADDEN in the Riley home on Pargoud boulevard. Dessert was served from the dining room table, which was centered with a tiered stand filled with yellow princess feather, Mexican sweet peas, variegated euonymus, marigolds, and green hydrangeas. Guests were offered a choice of cherry - topped cheesecake or chocolate nut cake or both.

Four tables played bridge, with prizes going to CISSY RYAN, high; CINDY WAKEFIELD, low; and ANNE A. TERZIA, travelling prize for slam. The honoree received a going-away present from her hostesses.

Young Miss MARTHA TERZIA was guest of honor when JENNIFER JACKSON was hostess for luncheon at home Thursday. Baby zinnias from Jenny's garden centered the table, and friendship rings were favors at each place. Martha received an autograph book to be signed by her friends. Jenny served doll salads and cake and ice cream to six little girls of the grammar school set.

Visitors from out of town have been the inspiration for several parties this week. When the MERLE LIGHTENFELS of Franklin were here with her mother, MRS. THOMAS W. GLENN, they were entertained by the BOB BRIGHTS in their home on Spencer street, and by LINDA and BOBBY NUGENT at a garden party in West Monroe.

Honoring Merle and Lily, ANN MICKEL and KATHERINE and ED FOSTER were hosts at a buffet supper in the Mickel home on Auburn avenue. A pink linen cloth covered the table, which was centered with pink roses encircled with pink candles. Ham, baked beans, and spiced peaches with baked Alaska for dessert comprised the meal served to fifteen guests.

One of the most charming tea parties in weeks was that given by EMY LOU BIEDENHARN Monday for J. LEE and TOUCH LAMB of Cookeville, Tennessee. The Lambs are visiting HORTENSE TOUCHSTONE this month. Gingerbread men and tuberoses decorated the children's table, where little guests were served Coke floats in silver goblets and dainty finger sandwiches of cheese or peanut butter and jelly. Meanwhile, grown-ups enjoyed turkey and cucumber sandwiches at another table, this centered with white ginger lilies, pale blue hydrangeas, and tuberoses. There were nine guests, including the honorees and their cousins.

This coming Wednesday, ladies' day at Highland Park country club, there will be a style show during the noon hour. Back-to-School fashions will be shown by a group of daughters of club members, all high school seniors and college freshmen.

Here this week from Biloxi, Mississippi, was ADELAIDE PARKER WYATT, guest of her aunt MRS. WILTON HANCOCK. This, Adelaide's first visit "home" in a number of years, was reason enough for gatherings of old friends. On Tuesday BENNIE ABELL and KAK SHELTON honored the visitor at luncheon in the Abell home on Deborah drive. Clever decorations included a white fish net used as a tablecloth, with centerpiece of coral branches and sea shells. Cards ornamented with tiny shells and seagrass marked places for eight guests. Shrimp salad plate carried out the nautical theme.

On Wednesday, NODIE THATCHER was hostess for luncheon at Bayou DeSiard country club. Pink roses centered the round table in the dining room where six guests gathered for a good visit.

That evening, the JAMES MOORES and the A. B. MYATTS, JR., entertained for Adelaide in the Moore home. Flowers were placed throughout the house, with ginger lilies used in the living room. In the family room, yellow iris highlighted the predominantly green arrangement on the hearth. Specimen yellow zinnias in a copper bowl brightened a side table . . . Snacks for all - evening nibbling were set out in the dining room, where roses in varying shades of pink were arranged in a silver Revere bowl. Fifteen couples attended this party.

For our poem today, here is "Restraint," written by Joyce Baum, tenth grade student at Mangham High school. It has been chosen for two anthologies of high school poetry:

When you smile at the world
But the world frowns back at you
To control what you reply
May be more than you can do.

But those wiser than yourself
Might impart to you this tip:
"In your moment of frustration
Button up your eager lip."

A pink linen cloth covered the table, which was centered with pink roses encircled with pink candles. Ham, baked beans, and spiced peaches with baked Alaska for dessert comprised the meal served to fifteen guests.

One of the most charming tea parties in weeks was that given by EMY LOU BIEDENHARN Monday for J. LEE and TOUCH LAMB of Cookeville, Tennessee. The Lambs are visiting HORTENSE TOUCHSTONE this month. Gingerbread men and tuberoses decorated the children's table, where little guests were served Coke floats in silver goblets and dainty finger sandwiches of cheese or peanut butter and jelly. Meanwhile, grown-ups enjoyed turkey and cucumber sandwiches at another table, this centered with white ginger lilies, pale blue hydrangeas, and tuberoses. There were nine guests, including the honorees and their cousins.

This coming Wednesday, ladies' day at Highland Park country club, there will be a style show during the noon hour. Back-to-School fashions will be shown by a group of daughters of club members, all high school seniors and college freshmen.

Here this week from Biloxi, Mississippi, was ADELAIDE PARKER WYATT, guest of her aunt MRS. WILTON HANCOCK. This, Adelaide's first visit "home" in a number of years, was reason enough for gatherings of old friends. On Tuesday BENNIE ABELL and KAK SHELTON honored the visitor at luncheon in the Abell home on Deborah drive. Clever decorations included a white fish net used as a tablecloth, with centerpiece of coral branches and sea shells. Cards ornamented with tiny shells and seagrass marked places for eight guests. Shrimp salad plate carried out the nautical theme.

On Wednesday, NODIE THATCHER was hostess for luncheon at Bayou DeSiard country club. Pink roses centered the round table in the dining room where six guests gathered for a good visit.

That evening, the JAMES MOORES and the A. B. MYATTS, JR., entertained for Adelaide in the Moore home. Flowers were placed throughout the house, with ginger lilies used in the living room. In the family room, yellow iris highlighted the predominantly green arrangement on the hearth. Specimen yellow zinnias in a copper bowl brightened a side table . . . Snacks for all - evening nibbling were set out in the dining room, where roses in varying shades of pink were arranged in a silver Revere bowl. Fifteen couples attended this party.

For our poem today, here is "Restraint," written by Joyce Baum, tenth grade student at Mangham High school. It has been chosen for two anthologies of high school poetry:

When you smile at the world
But the world frowns back at you
To control what you reply
May be more than you can do.

But those wiser than yourself
Might impart to you this tip:
"In your moment of frustration
Button up your eager lip."

Vows Pledged In Church By West Monroe Couple

The First Baptist church in West Monroe was scene of the weddnig of Miss Judith Dell Carter and Dale Allen Drost, Saturday, August 12. Dr. Clifton Roy Tennison officiated at the double ring ceremony at seven - thirty in the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Delma Carter of West Monroe are parents of the bride, while the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roger A. Drost of Sulphur.

Southern smilax, entwined over the choir railing, formed a background for large fan - shaped arrangements of white gladioli and candlelit arches which decorated the church. Candles were lighted by Misses Ann and Jan McLemore, who wore dresses of azalea pink taffeta and wrist corsages of pink and white pompon mums.

A pre - nuptial concert was provided by Ronny Brothers at the organ. Mrs. Jack White, pianist, accompanied Raymond Mears, who sang "Because." O Perfect Love" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Mr. Carter escorted his daughter to the altar and gave her in marriage. The bride's chapel length gown of organza and imported French lace was styled with scooped neckline outlined with flowers of the lace. Panels of appliqued organza flowed from a bow at the back of the skirt. A garland of tiny white flowers trimmed with iridescent sequins held the finger tip veil of illusion. Her bouquet was a cascade arrangement of pink roses with feathered white carnations and tuberoses.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Heard was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Betty Carter, Miss Amy Hood, Miss Linda Atkins, and Mrs. William Norris III. They wore identical dresses of azalea pink taffeta with bell shaped skirts forming a bustle in back. Their headdresses were pink tiered bows, and they carried nosegays of pink and white pompon chrysanthemums surrounded with nylon net.

Robert Eugene Drost of Sulphur attended his brother as best man. Groomsmen - ushers were Robert K. Drost, Charles Drost, Richard Drost, and Wendell Drost of Sulphur, cousins of the groom; and Glen Mitchell of Baton Rouge.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Carter was wearing a dress of dusty pink chiffon with draped panels and matching accessories. Mrs. Drost chose beige silk with matching accessories. Both wore corsages of pink and white carnations.

A reception was given in the church parlor after the ceremony. Tables were covered with floor length satin cloths overlaid with net. A tiered arrangement of pink roses and pompon mums accented with touches of azalea pink statice centered the punch table. On the bride's table was the tiered pink and white bride's cake, decorated with tuberoses.

Those who assisted at the reception were Mrs. John M. Parker, Mrs. Amos Hood, Mrs. Malcolm Lefevre, Miss Faye Parker, Mrs. A. J. Lester, Mrs. Ed Hislop, Jr., Miss Millie Hislop, Mrs. W. D. Albritton, Mrs. L. M. Webb, Mrs. R. C. Pittard, Mrs. H. R. Wilhite, and Mrs. Ollie Carter.

Following the reception, the bride and groom left on a wedding trip to Yuma, Arizona. Mrs. Drost was wearing a golden brown knit suit with matching accessories. Upon their return, they will be at home in Baton Rouge, where both are students at Louisiana State University.

Beach Beauty Needs Special Eye Care

What is your most valuable possession? House? Money? Car? Think again. How about your eyesight? Eyes are certainly one of our most precious - and most fragile - possessions. They deserve to be kept healthy as well as beautiful. Since there's still plenty of hot weather fun time left, here are some tips on summer eye care and make - up that can help you do both.

Smart beauties at the beach apply waterproof eye make - up before taking a dip. After all, what good is that hard - earned svelte figure and cute swim suit you just had to have if you emerge from the water with eyes looking like smudge pots?

Here is a trick used by screen stars to make eyes seem larger and lovelier. With a bit of practice you can do it too. Be sure your lids are completely dry and free of any trace of greasy cream. Use a thin sable brush to apply Waterproof Liquid Eye Liner directly above the lashes. Taper the liner by brushing a very thin line on lids at inner corner of each eye. Widen the brush strokes at center of lid directly over the pupils and then taper it thin again but slanted up at the outside corners. Play it summer time cool by using shades of the sea and sky such as Baby Blue, Emerald Green or Turquoise.

Apply Eye Shadow Stick directly above the liner. Try water nymph shades of true Blue, Emerald Green or Jade. And here's a hint for girls with deep set eyes. Keep the shadow close to your lash line and away from the hollow portion of the eye socket. If the bone above the eye is too prominent, shade that area subtly with darker shadow.

Waterproof Mascara is the next step for the eyes of a lovely eyeful. Any of the eleven luscious colors may be applied as heavily as you please with no fear of smearing, in the water or out. Since sun time is fun time go all out with two - tone lashes. If you draw attention to your eyes, wet, limp hair won't be so noticeable. Coat all of the lashes in a dark color. Then cover the tips with a lighter shade. Color combinations suggested are Royal Blue with Luminescent Green, Emerald Green with Luminescent Blue and Plum violet with Luminescent Violet.

A FALL WEDDING is planned by Miss Emily McManus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. McManus of Eros, and Clinton Young, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Young of Baytown, Texas. The ceremony is to be an event of October 7, in the First Pentecostal church of Baton Rouge.

Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Carter of Vidalia announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Loretta Roubaud Carter, to Paul Darnell Ellis II. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Watkins of Natchez.

MR. AND MRS. JESSE EUGENE LANIER, JR.

Miss Gates, Mr. Lanier Pledge Vows In Rayville

Tall baskets of white gladioli, chrysanthemums, and glowing tapers decorated the Rayville Methodist church for the August 5 wedding of Miss Jean Gates daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Gates of Rayville, and Jesse Eugene Lanier, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Lanier of Bessemer, Alabama.

The Rev. Richard Walton heard the vows at six in the evening. Mrs. Lanny Greaves at the organ presented the nuptial music and accompanied Sidney McKay of Greenville, Miss., cousin of the bride, who sang "Because," "Always", and "The Wedding Prayer."

The bride entered on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage. Her gown of imported chantilly lace over taffeta was fashioned with a molded bodice and scalloped neckline enhanced with seed pearls and sequins. The full skirt of nylon tulle was overdraped with chantilly lace caught up in soft folds by lace roses. Her veil of illusion drifted from a miniature tiara of seed pearls accented with brilliants. Her bouquet of a white orchid surrounded with tuberoses, fleur d'amour, and stepnahnotis was mounted on a white satin fan.

Miss Sherry Sims attended the bride as maid of honor. Mrs. J. C. Love, Jr., of Ruston, cousin of the bride, and Miss Gina Lanier, sister of the groom, were bridesmaids. They were identically attired in blue silk organza over blue satin with bouffant skirts and bodices of embroidered organza. Their circular blue veils were held by bands of blue silk organza roses. They carried colonial bouquets of tuberoses and blue tulle.

Little Terry Chapman, wearing a short dress of blue silk organza over satin, was flower girl. Her miniature bouquet of white chrysanthemums and tuberoses was carried in a blue fluted basket.

Mr. Lanier served his son as best man. Ushers were Howard Lanier of Bessemer, Alabama, cousin of the bride, Ronald Carlson and Dan Allen of Shreveport were candlelighters.

Mrs. Gates chose for her daughter's wedding a gown of bone peau de soie with beaded trim. Mrs. Lanier, mother of the groom, was attired in mauve chiffon. Each wore a corsage of vanda orchids.

RECEPTION

The bride's parents were hosts at a reception in the fellowship hall of the church immediately following the ceremony. Arrangements of white gladioli, tuberoses, chrysanthemums, and fern trees decorated the rooms.

Floor length overskirts of ruffled white organdy overlaid the embroidered linen cloth on the bride table. The tiered wedding cake, topped with miniature bride and groom, centered the table. At each end was a silver candelabra holding a crystal bowl of gladioli, tuberoses, and chrysanthemums. Mrs. T. G. McKay, aunt of the bride, cut the cake.

Punch was served at two side tables, similarly decorated. Mrs. William Snodgrass of Little Rock, Arkansas, and Mrs. Howard Lanier of Birmingham, Alabama presided at the punch bowls.

An anniversary candle, wreathed in tulle and tuberoses, graced the table where Mrs. Bill Berry, cousin of the bride, invited guests to register in the bride's book.

Tea girls were Misses Blanche Etta Gillen, and Sue Allen of Shreveport, and Delores and Judy Chapman of Archibald, all cousins of the bride. Rice bags were distributed by Paula Kay Carlson, Donna Brunson, Sharon Blazer, Sandra and Sharon Blanche Berry. Others who assisted were Mrs. W. C. McKay, Mrs. H. C. Gillen, Mrs. C. W. Allen, Mrs. Dan Chapman, Mrs. Gilbert Carlson, and Mrs. Bob Chapman, aunts of the bride.

For traveling, the bride chose a two piece model of electric blue with which she wore matching accessories and an orchid corsage. The couple will live in Birmingham, Alabama.

Scriven Taylor of Natchitoches served the groom as best man. Groomsmen for the occasion were James P. Gimber, Jr., of Jonesboro, Jerry Cloutier of Natchitoches, Deloyce Blewer, Dave Dalton and Max Evans, all of Campti.

RECEPTION

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. James P. Gimber, parents of the bride, entertained with a reception at the Advance Golf and Country Club in Hodge.

The focal point of the brides table which was covered in white net, was a five - tiered pink and white confection, each tier held aloft by miniateur swans and columns. The cake was decorated with sugar bells containing pink roses, and the traitional bride and groom in a bower of lillies of the valley and greenery topped with cake. Large individual sweetheart cakes in identical decor surrounded the confection. The bride's bouquet was also displayed on the table.

Centering the refreshment table also arrayed in white net, were lovely dolls depicting the bride and her attendants. Serving punch and the bridal cake were Mesdames E. J. Lewis, J. D. Shows, Ray Chandler, and R. W. Gimber.

Mrs. Gray Mann invited the guests to sign the bride's register which was placed beside the Memory candle on a small table overlaid with white net.

Romance Gone? Check With Your Bank

Young couples who find the romance draining out of their marriage should check with their bankers before they visit the marriage counselor.

This is the advice of family counsellors across the country who have learned from experience that most problem marriages have problem finances.

The trouble seems to be that no one—least of all young marrieds—likes to admit to dollar and cents limitations on his desires. What happens is that couples bury their financial worries, and find other "surface" problems to explain their discontent.

A young wife who used to dream of herself presiding over a gleaming modern kitchen may secretly blame her husband for the two-burner hot plate with which she must now make "do". And the young husband who can't aford the new car he longs for may blame some vague "extravagance" of his wife's, or simply start complaining that his shirts aren't starched properly, or that his wife's cooking doesn't compare with his mother's.

The irony of the situation is that with so many modern baking services available, and bakers everywhere eager to counsel young couples in their financial problems, there is scarcely any excuse for the kind of financial frustration that continues to plague married life.

In many banks today, couples who never seem to have the will power to save can arrange to have money automatically transferred from their checking to to their savings accounts. Most banks will also arrange special purpose savings accounts for anything in the family's future from a new car to a new arrival. And for times of real stress, banks stand ready to loan money that can be paid back out of future earnings. As for the household bookkeeping that frenzies many young families most bankers agree nothing helps so much to simplify it as a checking account. Bills paid by check are not only recorded. They're automatically receipted.

MRS. GENE EDWARD BRADY, prior to her marriage on Friday, August 11, was Miss Gloria Jean Keyes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Patton Keyes of Waterproof. Mr. and Mrs. Vossie Roy Brady, also of Waterproof, are parents of the groom.

MRS. MILHAM SALEM HOWIE

Miss Harriett Clinton Weds Dr. Milham Howie

The home of Mr. and Mrs. John Paul Jones of Baton Rouge was the scene of the marriage of Miss Harriett Randolph Clinton of Clay to Dr. Milham Salem Howie of Baton Rouge. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Preaus Clinton of Clay while the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Milham Howie of Jackson, Mississippi.

The afternoon ceremony took place August 12 with the Rev. Lester Lacasagne officiating. The vows were heard before an improvised altar decorated with fan-shaped arrangements of white gladioli and stock. Branched candelabra held white tapers with emerald foliage.

Pre - nuptial music was played by Mrs. James M. Lain. Prior to the ceremony, Miss Norma Strother sang "I Love Thee" by Grieg.

Attending the bridegroom were his brother, George Howie, of Poughkeepsie, New York, best man, and Dr. Eugene C. Ashby of Baton Rouge.

Miss Marsha Kay Clinton, sister of the bride served as maid of honor. The only other attendant was Miss Nita Perigo of Logansport. The bridesmaids wore soft yellow taffeta gowns frosted with white lace. Their waltz-length skirts featured a slight flare in the front falling into soft pleats giving fullness to the back. The stem-like bodices rose into scooped necklines and cap sleeves. Their short veils were caught by a yellow taffeta bow. Each carried a bouquet of white Majestic daisies.

The bride was escorted by her cousin, Frank Bishop of Plain Dealing. Her waltz-length gown of white embroidered satin was designed with square neckline, long tapering sleeves and belled skirt. Her waist was accented with a rolled satin rose and streamers. A short veil of French illusion fell from a cap of dainty satin leaves embellished with seed pearls. The bridal bouquet was a cascade of white roses and satin streamers.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Clinton wore a gown of taupe lace over taffeta with matching accessories, complemented with a whimsy hat. Mrs. Howie, mother of the groom, was dressed in green lace with matching accessories.

RECEPTION

The reception was held immediately following the ceremony. The bride's table was laid with a white cut-work cloth. A tiered candelabra and the bridal bouquet centered the table. Punch was served from a crystal bowl. At the opposite end of the table was the tiered wedding cake topped with a confection of roses and miniature wedding bells.

Mrs. L. E. Head served the cake and presiding at the punch bowl was Mrs. E. C. Meek, both aunts of the bride. Also assisting in the courtesies of the dining room were Mrs. George Larry Stephens and Mrs. John E. O'Shea. Tea girls were Miss Betsy Lee Bishop, Miss Judy Bishop and Miss Jo Ann Mahaffey of Monroe.

Guests were invited to sign the bride's book by Mrs. Pat Garrett. Misses Mary Margaret Bishop and Christie Lain passed bags of rice tied in tulle among the guests.

When the couple left on their wedding trip to the Smoky Mountains, the bride was wearing a red silk suit complemented by a matching hat, white kid gloves and black accessories. A corsage of cymbidium orchids was pinned to her shoulder.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Howie will make their home in Baton Rouge. The bride is a graduate of Ruston High school, and of Louisiana Tech, where she was a member of Kappa Delta sorority. The groom holds the doctor of philosophy degree from Purdue University.

Out of town guests who attended the wedding were Pat Garrett and Larry Stephens of Ruston; Mr. and Mrs. Bob Sisson of Dubuque, Iowa; John E. O'Shea of Meridian, Miss.; Mr. and Mrs. Larry Bowman of Natchez; the Rev. Richard Meek of Alexandria; Mrs. Leon Thomas and Mrs. Clayton Thomas of Jackson, Miss.; Dr. and Mrs. James Walsh of Lafayette, Indiana.

HINT FOR HEADBOARDS

Color, like convenience, can't be stopped. A fairly recent example in the bedroom is the headboard, which formerly yielded to the bedspread in the use of color. Not any more. The modern trend to make the headboard a colorful poent of interest has been helped along by the development in this country of new shades of traditional materials which can't fade and can be cleaned with a wipe.

A good test to check if your kitchen floor is really free of grime and grit, or merely looks that way, is to walk across it in your bare feet. Some flooring materials tend to obscure abrasive grit because of their softness and dark colors. Still Jobs In Garden

By MILDRED SWIFT

Though the weather is warm, there are still garden jobs to do. We've had to fight weeds more this summer, because of excessive rainfall. That reminds us to renew mulches around plants. Do this strenuous task in the early morning. There's danger in getting too warm.

MORE JOBS

Whatever kind of mower you use, have the blades sharp to avoid bruising or tearing the grass. About the middle of August the grass slows up. Then raise your mower blades.

The Easter lily bulbs may be dug and replanted now. Work bone meal in the soil.

If the dahlias have finished blooming, cut back to about half their growth. The plants will branch and give you some nice fall blooms. Fertilize very lightly with 8-8-8.

Bearded iris could be transplanted now if you'll keep them watered. Work bone meal in the soil, cut off tops and plant shallow. Those iris that are going to remain in their same place should have all dead foliage removed. Burn this. Fertilize with bone meal, now.

Seed you can plant now for this summer's bloom are: Four-O-Clock, zinnia, cockscomb, marigold. Plant pansy seed in flats or boxes this month. The seed are so small they're washed away if planned without protection. You can class yourself as an above-the-average gardener if you raise your own pansy plants. Most people wait until winter and buy their plants.

Watch for leaf spot on chrysanthemums. Captan is the treatment. Malathion is what you use for red spider or aphids, both of which are common on mums. Sounds foolish, now, but don't let mums get dry. Water well during dry spells.

Pinch back poinsettias now so they'll bunch and give you more blooms. Give the cuttings to your friends. Do this only once, now.

Roses need a light pruning now. Thin out some of the canes, cut back to about 30 inches. Two or three tablespoons of nitrate fertilizer sprinkled around each plant will help fall blooms.

Keep cutting dead blooms stems from crepe myrtles to induce more blooms.

ODD

This winter gray and brown, brown and red, orange and red, hitherto unheard of hues in the same company are now compatible companions. Wools once preferred for coats and suits are slinky tubular evening dresses. Satins reserved for after five have become a part of tailored little business suits.

White, once reserved for brides and summertime tans, is a snowy favorite for winter with each designer. Fashions for fall and winter are as contrary as they are deceptive.

SPRAY ON

With summer still with us, will your family be among the millions spending their leisure outdoors? And, being a safety minded person, will you worry about having the proper first aid supplies on hand for an emergency? We've just heard about a first aid kit in a can that eliminates the need for carrying a multitude of antiseptics, bandages and dressings along on your outing.

There's an approved product which provides quick antiseptic action for almost any type of minor injury. It sprays on its own plastic bandage as well. The antiseptic is effective for the treatment of cuts, burns, poison ivy and poison oak, sunburn and insect bites.

It is compact aerosol container and multiple uses make it ideal for places where storage space is limited: picnic kits, beach bags, boats, and automobile glove compartments. Also ideal for taking along on those hunting, fishing and camping trips.

FALL ROUND-UP

August is the month to start the "big fall round-up," but we're not talking about horses, we're talking about children. Children, just like young colts, have been running free and kicking up their heels all summer, and the project of rounding them up and getting them ready for school is almost like taming a heard of wild colts.

But, it must be done. So first, catch your children — and then go through their entire wardrobes and find out just where they stand in back-to-school clothing. Some things won't fit at all, you can depend on it. Other clothes will be too short or too long most likely, every outfit will need some sewing, even if it's only replacing a button.

There will undoubtedly be a number of "hand-me-downs" — clothes that have been outgrown but are still in good condition. Most children aren't too pleased at the prospect of wearing an older brother's or sister's clothes but they'll be much happier about it if you try to change the outfit a bit with a few touches that make it individually theirs.

For instance, sew new pockets on skirts or jackets or stitch the child's monogram on blouses and shirts. If there are a number of hems on your daughter's dresses that need taking up have her try on just one dress, get the proper length, then measure and adjust the other hems to the same length. Get the right length and she won't even have to try the others on, so start early on your back-to-school sewing and your fall round - up will be squared away before you know it.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Announcements for your Open House program for next week are: Mon[illegible] Mrs. Eloise Edwards will show us a number of trimmings for garments: Tuesday, Mrs. McDaniel will show us "Covering Shoes"; Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, Miss Caroline Adams, regional home economist with a flour and cornmeal company, will bring you some of her fine recipes. Home agents will be in Baton Rouge for Home and Garden Week.

See you next Sunday.

Spontaneous Comedy Hits Diamond Peak

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI)—Spontaneous comedy hits a peak on the little league diamond.

Ask any manager of a little league team.

He'll probably tell you he needs to starch his face to keep laughter from breaking up the game.

Umpires able to see humor in the serious business are in the same predicament. Who ever heard of an umpire smiling?

At the end of the season, managers and umpires remember the days that the following typical situations occurred:

—The star of the bulldozers didn't show. His mommy wouldn't let him skip ballet class.

—The Jet team's power hitter left in the middle of the fourth inning. It was supper time.

—An irate father told the umpire he was blind. He threatened to yank his son off the team. He regained his senses and felt like a penny waiting for change.

—The Mighty Mites' flashy catcher made a sensational catch. In the excitement that followed, he told the manager he felt like throwing up. He did.

—Two brothers showed up at game time sans uniform. The family's dryer was on the blink.

—A woman in the stands told the woman next to her that No. 12 is too puny to be playing in a ball game. She appologized when the woman next to her identified No. 12 as "my son."

—A kid brother ran onto the diamond and announced that the dog just had pups. Two players took off with the bearer of glad tidings—after telling the manager: "We'll be right back."

—Gnats swarmed onto the diamond one humid night. The manager and the umpire did the humane thing. The game was called because of gnats.

—One player was hit by an ice cream bar. He claimed it was thrown by the sister of a player he just tagged out at first.

—The manager decided to give one boy his first chance at bat. The player isn't on the bench where he's supposed to be. He's in a tree. The game's held up until he climbs down and rejoins the team.

P.S.—For further examples of the spontaneous comedy on the little league field, see any manager. Only don't let him poke fun at YOUR little baseball player.

Girl Scout News

The Senior unit during the second session of the Pine Wood day camp had such an interesting experience that we think our readers will be interested in details. For the thirty girls enrolled, a three day primitive camping trip was the culmination of years of day and troop camping, a chance to use all the out of door skills they had acquired.

The J. R. James' tree farm near Farmerville was an ideal site for the encampment. Veteran camper Mrs. N. L. Huckabee was the leader, Mrs. E. M. Varnado the assistant. Milann Gannaway, Becky Middleton, and Deas Parrish served as patrol leaders, Becky Parkerson, Elaine Butler, and Diane Halley as assistants. The girls worked and played, cooked, ate, lived in the three patrols, making the job of patrol leader extremely important. All did well, according to the adults.

At Pine Wood on Monday morning the girls put tents, poles, kitchen equipment, cans of water, bedrolls, mosquito nets, everything they would need for three days, on a bus and left for the site. Drizzling rain made setting up camp somewhat different from the usual experience. Mr. Floyd Stone did a Boy Scout good turn by taking some of the equipment and helping with the tents. By late afternoon not only were tents up, bedrolls down, mosquito nets up, but each patrol had dug a latrine and a grease pit, had lashed a table and was ready for a good supper and a good night's sleep.

One important project was cleaning out the spring, which serves as a source of water for bathing purposes. The girls removed the leaves, sticks, slime which were choking it, lined the bottom with rocks and by the second day had nice clean water. All this was amazing to city girls.

Hikes to see their surroundings and a hike to Farmerville one morning were highlights. The moonlight nights, sleeping in a tent with a good friend, singing together at campfire, learning a few new skills, cooking over charcoal, enjoying companionship of new and old friends, made the experience a memorable one.

Girls who participated are: Tonette Allbright, Bonnie Baldo, Ann Brinson, Carolyn Brooks, Brenda Carso, Jamie Corley, Connie Davis, Mary Einhorn, Susan Ellington, Alice Haynes, Loretta Jones, Carole Overton, Beth Roberts, Jayne Wallace, Martha Clampit, Mary Clampit, Elaine Butler, Carol Culpepper, Jane Edwards, Milann Gannaway, Diane Halley, Robie Hicks, Jateen Kelly, Susie McBride, Becky Middleton, Becky Parkerson, Deas Parrish, Gayle Smith, Kaki Stone, Barbara Suomi, Mickie Varnado.

Senior Scouts of Troop 1 set a record that has never been equalled in our council. Every one of the sixteen girls registered in the troop attended the second session of day camp and thirteen members served as program aides during the first session. It is certainly gratifying to adults who work in Scouting to see girls progress from Brownies to Seniors and take on some responsibility for sharing skills with younger girls.

BRIGHT, colorful annual dianthus, or garden pinks, grow only one to one and one-half feet tall and provide a lot of yard beauty with little care.

Guest Writer

Mrs. Frank Kaylor from Ruston gave a beautiful show last week entirely on driftwood arrangements. She brought six lovely designs featuring the driftwood that she found on the beaches at Myrtle Beach, S. C., and on the Lake Murry Beaches near Columbus, S. C.

Mrs. Kaylor began her show by explaining the methods of mounting the wood and cleaning it. She explained that the color and texture varied by the length of time the wood is left in the cool chlorox water bath.

If a gray color is desired to remain in the wood do not use chlorox, but, simply bathe in warm soap suds. To clean more thoroughly use a sand paper, then buff with a soft cloth to give a soft sheen. If wax is desired use only the liquid-type wax.

ORIENTAL

Mrs. Kaylor first showed a lovely oriental type arrangement showing the heaven, man, and earth line brught out in the lines of the driftwood. The container was a very unusual pressed cedar vase with two uneven handles. The higher handle followed the line of heaven. The lower handle followed the earth line of the wood. For the auxiliary line she used glycerinized Bells of Ireland accenting the heaven, man and earth lines. For the focal area she placed light into darker pink dried Coxcomb celosia. Very lovely for the hall table.

The second arrangement featured a lovely curved piece of driftwood - mounted on a pinholder placed directly on an attractive irregular - shaped base. To cover the holder she used wood's fungus. To the back left side she placed glycerinized dock to follow the line of the wood, thus giving depth to the design. Two dried okra pods were placed to the right gracefully curving to follow the line of the wood. For the focal point she used dried fatsia leaves. Mrs. Kaylor said she used this arrangement on the buffet.

ANOTHER TYPE

For the next arrangement Mrs. Kaylor showed driftwood that had been firmly attached to a round wooden base with a large screw. To the back she placed dried dark brown dock to follow the long line of the wood — creating depth. The shorter line of wood was accented by the placement of dark red sumac. A large interesting brown rock was placed to the side and front of the longer line of wood giving it weight and tying it to the base.

A coffee table arrangement was made by placing a small interesting piece of gray driftwood upright in a heavy blown purple glass ash tray. Purple and green coleus formed the primary line material combined with dark purple wandering Jew. For a filler she used the lavender liriope blossom.

GRAY DRIFTWOOD

Another lovely arrangement featured gray driftwood branching in two directions. This was fastened to a large wooden base with a screw. A cup - type holder was used for the fresh material used. Two clusters of castor bean pods, gray - green in color, were placed to follow the two wood lines. To the back she placed gray - green loquot leaves to create depth. To the front was placed a trimmed castor bean leaf to hide the cup holder.

The last arrangement featured driftwood placed in a lovely wooden container, made by a friend of Mrs. Kaylor's. The driftwood was fastened into the container by a pinpoint holder which had been placed in a hole in the wood the exact size of the pin point cup-holder.

Glycerinized aspedistra leaves formed the main line following the wood. Small cattails and dried golden rod were placed for filler.

Three wood roses were placed in the focal area for the main center of interest. Mrs. Kaylor said she used this arrangement on the desk in the den.

Dream Home Specifications Survey Topic

NEW YORK (UPI) — Unhampered by practicalities such as money, it's not hard to draw up specifications for a dream home, but faced with reality, just what features does the average family consider important in a home?

First Research Corporation, Miami-based economic and marketing research firm, conducted a survey recently for Florida home developers which, it believes, is fairly representative of the nationwide market demand among middle income families, with some allowance for regional preferences.

The research combined direct questioning and a unique "game" technique in which, after the respondent had selected a basic house, number of rooms, lot size, etc., he was given $2,000 in stage money to purchase additional features from a list of priced items.

After the first $2,000 was allocated, the respondent was given similar amounts in two successive rounds without prior knowledge that he would receive the additional funds. The choices in each round were evaluated by a special weighing and scoring method to obtain an "index of desire."

The average family expected to pay about $20,000, with one out of four expecting to pay over $22,000. Most planned to use FHA or VA financing. The average would expect to make a down payment of about $4,000.

The features of the basic house which would most attract a family, it was found, revolve primarily around space — the size of rooms and closets. This was important to more than 60 per cent of all families, indicating that the most attractive house is one with more than just ample sized rooms and storage areas. Other items of importance were the geographical location of the house and the layout. Overall appearance and style of the house was mentioned by only 12.5 per cent.

The typical family, it was indicated, would like to buy a home on a lot slightly larger than one-fourth acre. The majority desired three bedrooms, although 23 per cent preferred four. Only 13.5 per cent felt they would be satisfied with less than two full bathrooms.

They expressed a preference, 2 to 1, for a dining room separate from living room. A family or Florida room and a utility room were other strong preferences and one of every four families would like a den. More than half the families desired a kitchen eating area with room for a free-standing dinette set.

Extras for which the families expressed willingness to spend the mythical sums allotted them ranged from built-in range, rated first on the "index of desire," down to screened enclosure outside the Florida room. Following is the order of preference (although, of course, items such as heating and air conditioning would be subject to wide regional differences): built-in range, completely tiled first bath, combination refrigerator-freezer, tile roof, full vanity lavatory, two-compartment sink, built-in electric range and oven, pantry closet, kitchen hood and fan, washer, solid sod front and back, sliding glass doors in first bath, lamp post at sidewalk, additional cabinets, street lights paid for five years, dishwasher, wall-to-wall carpets, wood floors, garbage disposal, central heat and air conditioning, circular drive, central heating, cabana and country club membership, garage in preference to carport, room unit air conditioner, dryer, washer-dryer combination and screen enclosure beside Florida room.

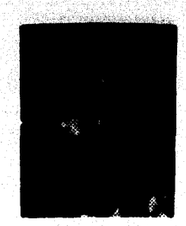
Landscape Plans Vital



By AUDREY DAWSON

If you are a new home owner and plan to landscape your grounds this fall, but do not feel that you have the money to engage the services of a landscape architect, don't be afraid to attempt it yourself.

There are many good books written especially for amateurs. Another source of information, drive around and see how others have landscaped.

But if you do it yourself, make a plan. There should be certain areas planned for particular uses and located on your plan. Your needs may be different from your neighbors.

Things you thought you needed in your landscape you may decide as you put your plan on paper you don't need at all.

COLOR

One may think of color, with flowers for cutting, is most important. Remember gardens with flowers for cutting requires a lot of time and labor to keep up, but you may be an enthusiastic gardener. If you do not have time and enjoy working the flowers you can get color through garden furniture, trees, and shrubs.

One of your needs may be play space for the children. A need for all homemakers is a utility area, garbage cans, clothes line and compost heap.

Perhaps an outdoor living area is one of your needs. All these things need to be considered before putting plants in the ground.

This is an excellent time to put that plan on paper and think about it before planting this fall. Flower seed you may plant this month include sweet alyssum, marigold, late cosmos, balsam, and blue bonnets.

If you have not transplanted your iris, do it this month.

Fertilize violets and give your roses a feeding this month for nice blooms in the early fall.

HOME, GARDEN WEEK

Thirty homemakers from Ouachita Parish will leave tomorrow for the LSU campus to attend the first Home and Garden Week. The group will return Thursday afternoon. Yours truly will be with the group. Homemakers will be housed in one of the dormitories on the campus. Those who will attend are: Mrs. O. J. Hamm, Mrs. Herbert Strozier, Mrs. W. A. Carr, Mrs. Percy Neeley, Mrs. Gloria Dray, Mrs. Johnnie Thomas, Mrs. F. D. Howard, Mrs. Marvin Shipp, Mrs. F. H. Holdeman, Mrs. D. A. Mears, Mrs. Elton Arnold, Mrs. H. T. Everett, Mrs. Perry Bedgood, Mrs. Robert Joyner, Mrs. H. O. Eley, Mrs. L. M. Payne, Mrs. A. A. Free, Mrs. Webb Portman, Mrs. Wheelis Dear, Mrs. D. T. Methin, Mrs. E. G. Cagle, Mrs. Frank Buce, Mrs. E. Bush, Mrs. Johnnie Bonnette, Mrs. C. K. Brooks, Mrs. J. H. Pender, and Mrs. J. R. Lee.

FARM BUREAU

The women of the Farm Bureau enjoyed a lovely coffee hour and short meeting at the home of Mrs. Rankin Earle this week. During the business session, Mrs. Earle was elected as chairman and Mrs. Drew Anderson as secretary. The group made plans for strengthening the organization. The fourth Monday of each month at 9:30 a.m. was selected as the regular meeting date. The net meeting will be Monday, September 25th in the home of Mrs. T. W. Humphries.

IN FUTURE

A new shrinkproofing process on woolen fabrics developed by U.S. D.A.'s wool and mohair research laboratory in Albany, California, applies a permanent "skin" to the wool fiber which allows the fabric to be machine washed at any temperature without any appreciable shrinkage. It has been tried successfully on about 100 different types of woolen fabrics and is expected to be in commercial production next year — perhaps first in sweaters.

FALL COLORS

Fashion sources mention these colors for fall clothes: magenta, plum, eggplant, rose, red, orange, rust, ginger, wild rice, wheat oatmeal, green (yellowed ones), blue (hyacinth to purple aster) grey and teamed with taupe - black cherry for accessories.

FASHION INTEREST

Knits and the knitted look enjoy a booming fashion interest. There's a great double knit fabric with a firm hand that is excellent for traveling and it's reversible. Even corduroy takes to the knitted look with a luxurious cable stitch appearance. New woven textures offer the fashion look of knitted fabric and the dimensional stability of woven cloth.

A THOUGHT

A step to perfect misery is to never forget a service you have rendered.

SEW SIMPLE

By Eunice Farmer

'How Do You Cut Non-Reversible Plaid?'

"Dear Eunice,

"I would appreciate it very much if you would pass along information through your column about cutting a non - reversible, uneven, plaid. Thanking you in advance."

Mrs. J.R.

Dear Mrs. J.R.:

This is the one type of plaid that is best to cut on a single layer of fabric, rather than folded. As with any plaid, you must decide what part of the design will look best for the center front, and then use this throughout the garment.

Don't cut anything out until you have planned where each piece of your pattern will be laid out.

Take each piece of your pattern separately, lay it on your fabric in the correct position, then outline this piece with chalk. This will be your way of knowing just how much you have to work with.

Now, take this same piece of pattern and TURN IT OVER. You must place this piece in the exact place on your fabric so the two will match. Cutting a plaid of this type takes extra time and concentration, but when it is well done, there is nothing to equal it.

Don't overlook the possibility of using part of your plaid on the bias, such as a yoke, or the entire bodice. This makes the most attractive self - trim possible.

Modify Patterns
To Fit Your Needs

"Dear Mrs. Farmer,

"Your column is the most inspirational and needed column to home sewers. You have given me courage to do things I never would have dreamed of doing before.

"I know that it is primarily devoted to sewing techniques, and thats what we need most, but please come to our rescue once in a while on styles. I think there are many women who share my feelings on this.

"I so often choose a pattern and material that just aren't right for me. This brings up my question.

"It seems like all the new patterns are without collar and sleeves. This is not only wrong for my personal needs but I don't think the style does anything for me. Do you suggest style above all?"

Mrs. B.B.E.

Dear Mrs. B.B.E.:

"You are right! This column actually is devoted to answering the little techniques that take your clothes out of the "home - made' category. However, no matter how beautifully a garment is made, if it lacks that certain "oomph," or if it is not right for you, you have wasted your time and money.

You will always have extremes in Fashion, but you must learn to modify these extremes to fit your own personal needs. As to collarless and sleeveless clothes, your age is the most important factor here.

Unless you are under 40, you probably need something to soften the lines of your face nd neck. You can use a small collar, ascot filler, and many other details that will give the illusion of the new look.

There are few women who look well in a sleeveless dress. I would suggest a slight cap sleeve for almost everyone.

'Pease, Eunice, What's A Catch-Stitch?'

"Dear Eunice,

"From time to time, I have seen the words "catch - stich" either on patterns or sewing leaflets. Please tell me what this means and where would it be most likely to be used?"

Mrs. C.S.

Dear Mrs. C.S.:

Catch - stitching is often used for hems, linings, etc. You must work from left to right, catching in a thread of the upper layer of fabric and then catching in a thread of the lower layer of fabric. See illustration.

Please send all questions and suggestions to Sew Simple, in care of this paper. If you are having trouble getting sleeves to fit in your garment, send for "All About Sleeves.' Enclose 10 cents and a stamped, self - addressed envelope with your request to Eunice Farmer, in care of this newspaper.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Dig Spider Lilies Now

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Dig and divide your red spider-lilies right away if you want them to bloom in September. These remarkable Japanese flowers are one of the real features of southern gardens in early fall.

They will bloom profusely for years without division if their soil is rich. In eight to 10 years, however, there will be so many little bulbs that few of them can flower, and that is when they must be taken up.

In lifting the various kinds of spider - lilies (lycoris) take them up exactly as you would a perennial. Be careful not to disturb the roots any more than necessary. Do not remove any of the roots, but replant the bulbs immediately with all their roots on them.

DIFFICULT

It is difficult to pull apart a 10 - years - old clump of these bulbs and keep the roots on them, but the results are well worth the effort. The largest bulbs have flower buds in them right now, and these will flower if their roots are left intact and not dried out.

Since spider - lilies will go on blooming in the same spot without division for more years than almost any other bulb, it is well worth your trouble to prepare the soil in which they will bloom every year for as many seasons.

A rich garden soil into which has been worked a heavy feeding of bone meal is what they like. The bulbs can be set just out of sight underneath the surface. They will probably stick their necks out as they divide, and our winters do not harm them in the least.

The tall orchid pink "Hall's amaryllis," which is blooming now or has finished is really a lycoris or spider - lily, too. If you must divide these now, be ever so careful with the roots. These bulbs should have been divided just after the foliage died down in late spring. Moving them at this time can set them back and cause them to miss flowering next year.

NEW SPIDER - LILIES

As we have reported in the column, from time to time, there are several new kinds of spider-lilies available from southern and California bulb dealers. One of the newest and most amazing is Lycoris cinnabarina. The color of cinnabar is brownish red, and I really did not think any flowers except some of the orchids would be that color, but they are.

It bloomed the other day and is sitting on my desk as I write, defying me to describe it. Light bright orange brown is what it has to be called: one of the most exotic and delicate flowers I ever saw.

Some of the day - lilies are almost this color, but they are not as ethereal as a spider - lily. With blue, this new creature will be seen in flower arrangements that will surely carry off the prizes.

Still Jobs In Garden

By MILDRED SWIFT

Though the weather is warm, there are still garden jobs to do. We've had to fight weeds more this summer, because of excessive rainfall. That reminds us to renew mulches around plants. Do this strenuous task in the early morning. There's danger in getting too warm.

MORE JOBS

Whatever kind of mower you use, have the blades sharp to avoid bruising or tearing the grass. About the middle of August the grass slows up. Then raise your mower blades.

The Easter lily bulbs may be dug and replanted now. Work bone meal in the soil.

If the dahlias have finished blooming, cut back to about half their growth. The plants will branch and give you some nice fall blooms. Fertilize very lightly with 8-8-8.

Bearded iris could be transplanted now if you'll keep them watered. Work bone meal in the soil, cut off tops and plant shallow. Those iris that are going to remain in their same place should have all dead foliage removed. Burn this. Fertilize with bone meal, now.

Seed you can plant now for this summer's bloom are: Four-O-Clock, zinnia, cockscomb, marigold. Plant pansy seed in flats or boxes this month. The seed are so small they're washed away if planned without protection. You can class yourself as an above-the-average gardener if you raise your own pansy plants. Most people wait until winter and buy their plants.

Watch for leaf spot on chrysanthemums. Captan is the treatment. Malathion is what you use for red spider or aphids, both of which are common on mums. Sounds foolish, now, but don't let mums get dry. Water well during dry spells.

Pinch back poinsettias now so they'll bunch and give you more blooms. Give the cuttings to your friends. Do this only once, now.

Roses need a light pruning now. Thin out some of the canes, cut back to about 30 inches. Two or three tablespoons of nitrate fertilizer sprinkled around each plant will help fall blooms.

Keep cutting dead blooms stems from crepe myrtles to induce more blooms.

ODD

This winter gray and brown, brown and red, orange and red, hitherto unheard of hues in the same company are now compatible companions. Wools once preferred for coats and suits are slinky tubular evening dresses. Satins reserved for after five have become a part of tailored little business suits.

White, once reserved for brides and summertime tans, is a snowy favorite for winter with each designer. Fashions for fall and winter are as contrary as they are deceptive.

SPRAY ON

With summer still with us, will your family be among the millions spending their leisure outdoors? And, being a safety minded person, will you worry about having the proper first aid supplies on hand for an emergency? We've just heard about a first aid kit in a can that eliminates the need for carrying a multitude of antiseptics, bandages and dressings along on your outing.

There's an approved product which provides quick antiseptic action for almost any type of minor injury. It sprays on its own plastic bandage as well. The antiseptic is effective for the treatment of cuts, burns, poison ivy and poison oak, sunburn and insect bites.

It is compact aerosol container and multiple uses make it ideal for places where storage space is limited: picnic kits, beach bags, boats, and automobile glove compartments. Also ideal for taking along on those hunting, fishing and camping trips.

FALL ROUND-UP

August is the month to start the "big fall round-up," but we're not talking about horses, we're talking about children. Children, just like young colts, have been running free and kicking up their heels all summer, and the project of rounding them up and getting them ready for school is almost like taming a heard of wild colts.

But, it must be done. So first, catch your children — and then go through their entire wardrobes and find out just where they stand in back-to-school clothing. Some things won't fit at all, you can depend on it. Other clothes will be too short or too long most likely, every outfit will need some sewing, even if it's only replacing a button.

There will undoubtedly be a number of "hand-me-downs" — clothes that have been outgrown but are still in good condition. Most children aren't too pleased at the prospect of wearing an older brother's or sister's clothes but they'll be much happier about it if you try to change the outfit a bit with a few touches that make it individually theirs.

For instance, sew new pockets on skirts or jackets or stitch the child's monogram on blouses and shirts. If there are a number of hems on your daughter's dresses that need taking up have her try on just one dress, get the proper length, then measure and adjust the other hems to the same length. Get the right length and she won't even have to try the others on, so start early on your back-to-school sewing and your fall round - up will be squared away before you know it.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Announcements for your Open House program for next week are: Mrs. Eloise Edwards will show us a number of trimmings for garments; Tuesday, Mrs. McDaniel will show us "Covering Shoes"; Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, Miss Caroline Adams, regional home economist with a flour and cornmeal company, will bring you some of her fine recipes. Home agents will be in Baton Rouge for Home and Garden Week.

See you next Sunday.

Spontaneous Comedy Hits Diamond Peak

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI)—Spontaneous comedy hits a peak on the little league diamond.

Ask any manager of a little league team.

He'll probably tell you he needs to starch his face to keep laughter from breaking up the game.

Umpires able to see humor in the serious business are in the same predicament. Who ever heard of an umpire smiling?

At the end of the season, managers and umpires remember the days that the following typical situations occurred:

—The star of the bulldozers didn't show. His mommy wouldn't let him skip ballet class.

—The Jet team's power hitter left in the middle of the fourth inning. It was supper time.

—An irate father told the umpire he was blind. He threatened to yank his son off the team. He regained his senses and felt like a penny waiting for change.

—The Mighty Mites' flashy catcher made a sensational catch. In the excitement that followed, he told the manager he felt like throwing up. He did.

—Two brothers showed up at game time sans uniform. The family's dryer was on the blink.

—A woman in the stands told the woman next to her that No. 12 is too puny to be playing in a ball game. She appologized when the woman next to her identified No. 12 as "my son."

—A kid brother ran onto the diamond and announced that the dog just had pups. Two players took off with the bearer of glad tidings—after telling the manager: "We'll be right back."

—Gnats swarmed onto the diamond one humid night. The manager and the umpire did the humane thing. The game was called because of gnats.

—One player was hit by an ice cream bar. He claimed it was thrown by the sister of a player he just tagged out at first.

—The manager decided to give one boy his first chance at bat. The player isn't on the bench where he's supposed to be. He's in a tree. The game's held up until he climbs down and rejoins the team.

P.S.—For further examples of the spontaneous comedy on the little league field, see any manager. Only don't let him poke fun at YOUR little baseball player.

Girl Scout News

The Senior unit during the second session of the Pine Wood day camp had such an interesting experience that we think our readers will be interested in details. For the thirty girls enrolled, a three day primitive camping trip was the culmination of years of day and troop camping, a chance to use all the out of door skills they had acquired.

The J. R. James' tree farm near Farmerville was an ideal site for the encampment. Veteran camper Mrs. N. L. Huckabee was the leader, Mrs. E. M. Varnado the assistant, Milann Gannaway, Becky Middleton, and Deas Parrish served as patrol leaders, Becky Parkerson, Elaine Butler, and Diane Halley as assistants. The girls worked and played, cooked, ate, lived in the three patrols, making the job of patrol leader extremely important. All did well, according to the adults.

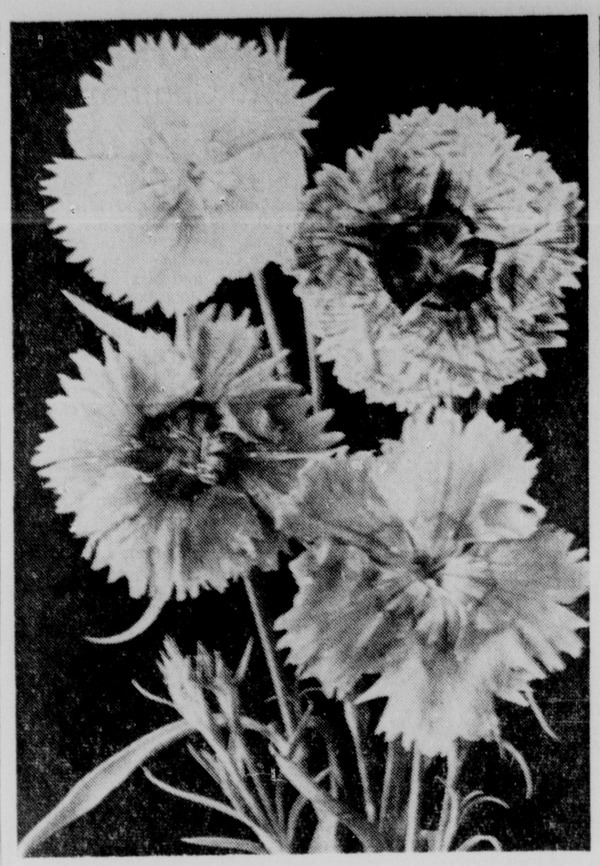
At Pine Wood on Monday morning the girls put tents, poles, kitchen equipment, cans of water, bedrolls, mosquito nets, everything they would need for three days, on a bus and left for the site. Drizzling rain made setting up camp somewhat different from the usual experience. Mr. Floyd Stone did a Boy Scout good turn by taking some of the equipment and helping with the tents. By late afternoon not only were tents up, bedrolls down, mosquito nets up, but each patrol had dug a latrine and a grease pit, had lashed a table and was ready for a good supper and a good night's sleep.

One important project was cleaning out the spring, which serves as a source of water for bathing purposes. The girls removed the leaves, sticks, slime which were choking it, lined the bottom with rocks and by the second day had nice clean water. All this was amazing to city girls.

Hikes to see their surroundings and a hike to Farmerville one morning were highlights. The moonlight nights, sleeping in a tent with a good friend, singing together at campfire, learning a few new skills, cooking over charcoal, enjoying companionship of new and old friends, made the experience a memorable one.

Girls who participated are: Tonette Allbright, Bonnie Baldo, Ann Brinson, Carolyn Brooks, Brenda Carso, Jamie Corley, Connie Davis, Mary Einhorn, Susan Ellington, Alice Haynes, Loretta Jones, Carole Overton, Beth Roberts, Jayne Wallace, Martha Clampit, Mary Clampit, Elaine Butler, Carol Culpepper, Jane Edwards, Milann Gannaway, Diane Halley, Robie Hicks, Jateen Kelly, Susie McBride, Becky Middleton, Becky Parkerson, Deas Parrish, Gayle Smith, Kaki Stone, Barbara Suomi, Mickie Varnado.

Senior Scouts of Troop 1 set a record that has never been equalled in our council. Every one of the sixteen girls registered in the troop attended the second session of day camp and thirteen members served as program aides during the first session. It is certainly gratifying to adults who work in Scouting to see girls progress from Brownies to Seniors and take on some responsibility for sharing skills with younger girls.



BRIGHT, colorful annual dianthus, or garden pinks, grow only one to one and one-half feet tall and provide a lot of yard beauty with little care.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Driftwood Feature Of Arrangements

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR
Guest Writer

Mrs. Frank Kaylor from Ruston gave a beautiful show last week entirely on driftwood arrangements. She brought six lovely designs featuring the driftwood that she found on the beaches at Myrtle Beach, S. C., and on the Lake Murry Beaches near Columbus, S. C.

Mrs. Kaylor began her show by explaining the methods of mounting the wood and cleaning it. She explained that the color and texture varied by the length of time the wood is left in the cool chlorox water bath.

If a gray color is desired to remain in the wood do not use chlorox, but, simply bathe in warm soap suds. To clean more thoroughly use a sand paper, then buff with a soft cloth to give a soft sheen. If wax is desired use only the liquid-type wax.

ORIENTAL

Mrs. Kaylor first showed a lovely oriental type arrangement showing the heaven, man and earth line brught out in the lines of the driftwood. The container was a very unusual pressed cedar vase with two uneven handles. The higher handle followed the line of heaven. The lower handle followed the earth line of the wood. For the auxiliary line she used glycerinized Bells of Ireland accenting the heaven, man and earth lines. For the focal area she placed light into darker pink dried Coxcomb celosia. Very lovely for the hall table.

The second arrangement featured a lovely curved piece of driftwood - mounted on a pinholder placed directly on an attractive irregular - shaped base. To cover the holder she used wood's fungus. To the back left side she placed glycerinized dock to follow the line of the wood, thus giving depth to the design. Two dried okra pods were placed to the right gracefully curving to follow the line of the wood. For the focal point she used dried fatsia leaves. Mrs. Kaylor said she used this arrangement on the buffet.

ANOTHER TYPE

For the next arrangement Mrs. Kaylor showed driftwood that had been firmly attached to a round wooden base with a large screw. To the back she placed dried dark brown dock to follow the long line of the wood — creating depth. The shorter line of wood was accented by the placement of dark red sumac. A large interesting brown rock was placed to the side and front of the longer line of wood giving it weight and tying it to the base.

A coffee table arrangement was made by placing a small interesting piece of gray driftwood upright in a heavy blown purple glass ash tray. Purple and green coleus formed the primary line material combined with dark purple wandering Jew. For a filler she used the lavender liriope blossom.

GRAY DRIFTWOOD

Another lovely arrangement featured gray driftwood branching in two directions. This was fastened to a large wooden base with a screw. A cup - type holder was used for the fresh material used. Two clusters of castor bean pods, gray - green in color, were placed to follow the two wood lines. To the back she placed gray - green loquot leaves to create depth. To the front was placed a trimmed castor bean leaf to hide the cup holder.

The last arrangement featured driftwood placed in a lovely wooden container, made by a friend of Mrs. Kaylor's. The driftwood was fastened into the container by a pinpoint holder which had been placed in a hole in the wood the exact size of the pin point cup-holder.

Glycerinized aspedistra leaves formed the main line following the wood. Small cattails and dried golden rod were placed for filler.

Three wood roses were placed in the focal area for the main center of interest. Mrs. Kaylor said she used this arrangement on the desk in the den.

Dream Home Specifications Survey Topic

NEW YORK (UPI) — Unhampered by practicalities such as money, it's not hard to draw up specifications for a dream home, but faced with reality, just what features does the average family consider important in a home?

First Research Corporation, Miami-based economic and marketing research firm, conducted a survey recently for Florida home developers which, it believes, is fairly representative of the nationwide market demand among middle income families, with some allowance for regional preferences.

The research combined direct questioning and a unique "game" technique in which, after the respondent had selected a basic house, number of rooms, lot size, etc., he was given $2,000 in stage money to purchase additional features from a list of priced items.

After the first $2,000 was allocated, the respondent was given similar amounts in two successive rounds without prior knowledge that he would receive the additional funds. The choices in each round were evaluated by a special weighing and scoring method to obtain an "index of desire."

The average family expected to pay about $20,000, with one out of four expecting to pay over $22,000. Most planned to use FHA or VA financing. The average would expect to make a down payment of about $4,000.

The features of the basic house which would most attract a family, it was found, revolve primarily around space — the size of rooms and closets. This was important to more than 60 per cent of all families, indicating that the most attractive house is one with more than just ample sized rooms and storage areas. Other items of importance were the geographical location of the house and the layout. Overall appearance and style of the house was mentioned by only 12.5 per cent.

The typical family, it was indicated, would like to buy a home on a lot slightly larger than one-fourth acre. The majority desired three bedrooms, although 23 per cent preferred four. Only 13.5 per cent felt they would be satisfied with less than two full bathrooms.

They expressed a preference, 2 to 1, for a dining room separate from living room. A family or Florida room and a utility room were other strong preferences and one of every four families would like a den. More than half the families desired a kitchen eating area with room for a free-standing dinette set.

Extras for which the families expressed willingness to spend the mythical sums allotted them ranged from built-in range, rated first on the "index of desire," down to screened enclosure outside the Florida room. Following is the order of preference (although, of course, items such as heating and air conditioning would be subject to wide regional differences): built-in range, completely tiled first bath, combination refrigerator-freezer, tile roof, full vanity lavatory, two-compartment sink, built-in electric range and oven, pantry closet, kitchen hood and fan, washer, solid sod front and back, sliding glass doors in first bath, lamp post at sidewalk, additional cabinets, street lights paid for five years, dishwasher, wall-to-wall carpets, wood floors, garbage disposal, central heat and air conditioning, circular drive, central heating, cabana and country club membership, garage in preference to carport, room unit air conditioner, dryer, washer-dryer combination and screen enclosure beside Florida room.

Landscape Plans Vital

By AUDREY DAWSON

If you are a new home owner and plan to landscape your grounds this fall, but do not feel that you have the money to engage the services of a landscape architect, don't be afraid to attempt it yourself.

There are many good books written especially for amateurs. Another source of information, drive around and see how others have landscaped.

But if you do it yourself, make a plan. There should be certain areas planned for particular uses and located on your plan. Your needs may be different from your neighbors.

Things you thought you needed in your landscape you may decide as you put your plan on paper you don't need at all.

COLOR

One may think of color, with flowers for cutting, is most important. Remember gardens with flowers for cutting requires a lot of time and labor to keep up, but you may be an enthusiastic gardener. If you do not have time and enjoy working the flowers you can get color through garden furniture, trees, and shrubs.

One of your needs may be play space for the children. A need for all homemakers is a utility area, garbage cans, clothes line and compost heap.

Perhaps an outdoor living area is one of your needs. All these things need to be considered before putting plants in the ground.

This is an excellent time to put that plan on paper and think about it before planting this fall. Flower seed you may plant this month include sweet alyssum, marigold, late cosmos, balsam, and blue bonnets.

If you have not transplanted your iris, do it this month.

Fertilize violets and give your roses a feeding this month for nice blooms in the early fall.

HOME, GARDEN WEEK

Thirty homemakers from Ouachita Parish will leave tomorrow for the LSU campus to attend the first Home and Garden Week. The group will return Thursday afternoon. Yours truly will be with the group. Homemakers will be housed in one of the dormitories on the campus. Those who will attend are: Mrs. O. J. Hamm, Mrs. Herbert Strozier, Mrs. W. A. Carr, Mrs. Percy Neeley, Mrs. Gloria Dray, Mrs. Johnnie Thomas, Mrs. F. D. Howard, Mrs. Marvin Shipp, Mrs. F. H. Holdeman, Mrs. D. A. Mears, Mrs. Elton Arnold, Mrs. H. T. Everett, Mrs. Perry Bedgood, Mrs. Robert Joyner, Mrs. H. O. Eley, Mrs. L. M. Payne, Mrs. A. A. Free, Mrs Webb Portman, Mrs. Wheelis Dear, Mrs. D. T. Methin, Mrs. E. G. Cagle, Mrs. Frank Buce, Mrs. E. Bush, Mrs. Johnnie Bonnette, Mrs. C. K. Brooks, Mrs. J. H. Pender, and Mrs. J. R. Lee.

FARM BUREAU

The women of the Farm Bureau enjoyed a lovely coffee hour and short meeting at the home of Mrs. Rankin Earle this week. During the business session, Mrs. Earle was elected as chairman and Mrs. Drew Anderson as secretary. The group made plans for strengthening the organization. The fourth Monday of each month at 9:30 a.m. was selected as the regular meeting date. The net meeting will be Monday, September 25th in the home of Mrs. T. W. Humphries.

IN FUTURE

wool fiber which allows the fabric to be machine washed at any temperature without any appreciable shrinkage. It has been tried successfully on about 100 different types of woolen fabrics and is expected to be in commercial production next year — perhaps first in sweaters.

FALL COLORS

Fashion sources mention these colors for fall clothes: magenta, plum, eggplant, rose, red, orange, rust, ginger, wild rice, wheat oatmeal, green (yellowed ones), blue (hyacinth to purple aster) grey and teamed with taupe - black cherry for accessories.

FASHION INTEREST

Knits and the knitted look enjoy a booming fashion interest. There's a great double knit fabric with a firm hand that is excellent for traveling and it's reversible. Even corduroy takes to the knitted look with a luxurious cable stitch appearance. New woven textures offer the fashion look of knitted fabric and the dimensional stability of woven cloth.

A THOUGHT

A step to perfect misery is to never forget a service you have rendered.

SEW SIMPLE

By Eunice Farmer

'How Do You Cut Non-Reversible Plaid?'

"Dear Eunice,

"I would appreciate it very much if you would pass along information through your column about cutting a non - reversible, uneven, plaid. Thanking you in advance."

Mrs. J.R.

Dear Mrs. J.R.:

This is the one type of plaid that is best to cut on a single layer of fabric, rather than folded. As with any plaid, you must decide what part of the design will look best for the center front, and then use this throughout the garment.

Don't cut anything out until you have planned where each piece of your pattern will be laid out.

Take each piece of your pattern separately, lay it on your fabric in the correct position, then outline this piece with chalk. This will be your way of knowing just how much you have to work with.

Now, take this same piece of pattern and TURN IT OVER. You must place this piece in the exact place on your fabric so the two will match. Cutting a plaid of this type takes extra time and concentration, but when it is well done, there is nothing to equal it.

Don't overlook the possibility of using part of your plaid on the bias, such as a yoke, or the entire bodice. This makes the most attractive self - trim possible.

Modify Patterns
To Fit Your Needs

"Dear Mrs. Farmer,

"Your column is the most inspirational and needed column to home sewers. You have given me courage to do things I never would have dreamed of doing before.

"I know that it is primarily devoted to sewing techniques, and thats what we need most, but please come to our rescue once in a while on styles. I think there are many women who share my feelings on this.

"I so often choose a pattern and material that just aren't right for me. This brings up my question.

"It seems like all the new patterns are without collar and sleeves. This is not only wrong for my personal needs but I don't think the style does anything for me. Do you suggest style above all?"

Mrs. B.B.E.

Dear Mrs. B.B.E.:

"You are right! This column actually is devoted to answering the little techniques that take your clothes out of the "home - made' category. However, no matter how beautifully a garment is made, if it lacks that certain "oomph," or if it is not right for you, you have wasted your time and money.

You will always have extremes in Fashion, but you must learn to modify these extremes to fit your own personal needs. As to collarless and sleeveless clothes, your age is the most important factor here.

Unless you are under 40, you probably need something to soften the lines of your face nd neck. You can use a small collar, ascot filler, and many other details that will give the illusion of the new look.

There are few women who look well in a sleeveless dress. I would suggest a slight cap sleeve for almost everyone.

'Pease, Eunice, What's A Catch-Stitch?'

"Dear Eunice,

"From time to time, I have seen the words "catch - stich" either on patterns or sewing leaflets. Please tell me what this means and where would it be most likely to be used?"

Mrs. C.S.

Dear Mrs. C.S.:

Catch - stitching is often used for hems, linings, etc. You must work from left to right, catching in a thread of the upper layer of fabric and then catching in a thread of the lower layer of fabric. See illustration.

Please send all questions and suggestions to Sew Simple, in care of this paper. If you are having trouble getting sleeves to fit in your garment, send for "All About Sleeves.' Enclose 10 cents and a stamped, self - addressed envelope with your request to Eunice Farmer, in care of this newspaper.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Dig Spider Lilies Now

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Dig and divide your red spider-lilies right away if you want them to bloom in September. These remarkable Japanese flowers are one of the real features of southern gardens in early fall.

They will bloom profusely for years without division if their soil is rich. In eight to 10 years, however, there will be so many little bulbs that few of them can flower, and that is when they must be taken up.

In lifting the various kinds of spider - lilies (lycoris) take them up exactly as you would a perennial. Be careful not to disturb the roots any more than necessary. Do not remove any of the roots, but replant the bulbs immediately with all their roots on them.

DIFFICULT

It is difficult to pull apart a 10 - years - old clump of these bulbs and keep the roots on them, but the results are well worth the effort. The largest bulbs have flower buds in them right now, and these will flower if their roots are left intact and not dried out.

Since spider - lilies will go on blooming in the same spot without division for more years than almost any other bulb, it is well worth your trouble to prepare the soil in which they will bloom every year for as many seasons.

A rich garden soil into which has been worked a heavy feeding of bone meal is what they like. The bulbs can be set just out of sight underneath the surface. They will probably stick their necks out as they divide, and our winters do not harm them in the least.

The tall orchid pink "Hall's amaryllis," which is blooming now or has finished is really a lycoris or spider - lily, too. If you must divide these now, be ever so careful with the roots. These bulbs should have been divided just after the foliage died down in late spring. Moving them at this time can set them back and cause them to miss flowering next year.

NEW SPIDER - LILIES

As we have reported in the column, from time to time, there are several new kinds of spider-lilies available from southern and California bulb dealers. One of the newest and most amazing is Lycoris cinnabarina. The color of cinnabar is brownish red, and I really did not think any flowers except some of the orchids would be that color, but they are.

It bloomed the other day and is sitting on my desk as I write, defying me to describe it. Light bright orange brown is what it has to be called: one of the most exotic and delicate flowers I ever saw.

Some of the day - lilies are almost this color, but they are not as ethereal as a spider - lily. With blue, this new creature will be seen in flower arrangements that will surely carry off the prizes.

PART OF FILM HISTORY

Many Remember Great Valentino

EDITOR'S NOTE—The "Lady in Black" no longer visits the tomb each year on the anniversary of his death, but the memory of Rudolph Valentino still is a living part of American movie history. No star before or since has matched his amorous appeal and looking back now, experts agree his acting technique was years ahead of his time.

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—His full name was Rodolpho Alfonso Raffaelo Pierre Filiberti Guglielmi di Valentina d' Antonguolla and his secret ambition in life was to be a farmer.

But sighing women in the '20s knew him as Rudolph Valentino, the greatest lover the screen ever had. Even Clark Gable, runner-up for the title, admitted that.

Valentino died 35 years ago Aug. 23, 1926. Veteran New York police officers still recall the orgy of adulation staged by 100,000 mourners at the funeral parlor.

Needless to say, nine out of 10 mourners at that funeral to end all funerals were women.

CLAIMS

Thirty-five women claimed he had fathered illegitimate children by them. All claims came after his death.

There was no Valentino heir from the two marriages he had.

Some actresses, like Mae Murray, spotted the Valentino sex appeal even before he became famous.

Mae, a top star of the silent era, was a Ziegfeld star on Broadway before coming to Hollywood. In the World War I era, some of New Yorks fancy cafes had paid dancers.

Valentino was one at Maxim's. "I saw him before I danced with him," Mae recalls. "he was like a sensuous animal stalking the jazz jungle."

Mae said that Valentino, who almost starved in New York, took the job to keep skin and bones together.

"How this young man danced," Mae remembers. "It was the real tango. The way I had seen it danced on the streets of Paris."

From this meeting a friendship developed and Valentino later appeared in two Mae Maurray pictures.

"I always remember Rudy being as open as a child," says Mae.

VIEWPOINT

The women of the '20s who never missed a Valentino movie saw him as anything but a child.

But there was more than mere virility to the Valentino appeal.

He was an actor of great emotional force but a rarity in that he had brains and class. He was a graduate of Italy's Royal Academy of Agriculture and versed in the arts and literature.

Only in "Blood and Sand" was he given the opportunity for real acting—and he came through.

He married his first wife, Jean Acker, in New York when he was a young man dancing for a living.

His second wife, Winifred Hudnut, was the daughter of the perfumer. A ballet dancer, she danced under the name of Natacha Rambova.

An oldtime camerman recalls she was intent on a career. Valentino wanted a home.

LIVED QUIETLY

"Rudy lived very quietly and didn't get involved with the wild Hollywood crowd of those days," the camerman recalls. "His idea of fun was to have a few friends up to Falcon's Lair, his home in the Hollywood hills."

He loved to hunt and box. When he died at 31, Valentino was a lithe, athletic man. His brother, Alberto, was never satisfied with medical explanations that he died from stomach ulcers and complications while on a trip to New York. Many rumors sprang up, the most persistent that he was poisoned. The family refused to allow an autopsy.

He was a legend then. He's one now. On the last anniversary of his death—the 34th—some 75 people showed up at his crypt for memorial services.

Missing was "The Woman in Black," Valentino's best known mourner. In black dress, black stockings, black shoes, black hat and heavy black veil, she would appear at the crypt with 13 roses—a dozen red, one white. Her visits were daily for the first three years, and annually on the anniversary of his death to 1955.

At first she was believed a publicity stunt. Finally she talked to newsmen. Her name was Ditra Flame. She was a violinist and pianist.

Like Miss Murray, she had met Valentino while he was a dancer.

"I was only 14," she recalled. "One time—it must have been early 1920—I was very sick in a hospital. I was thinking about dying. And then Rudy came to see me."

"HONEYMOON MACHINE", the comedy revolving about the U. S. Navy personnel stationed in Venice, stars Paula Prentiss, Brigid Bazlen, Steve McQueen and Jim Hutton, along with Jack Weston. The picture is about a group who use an electric computer in an attempt to break the bank at the gambling casino. The picture is coming to the Jim Theatre.

Curtain Call

Tonight is the last performance of Tennessee Williams' "Summer and Smoke." This show will conclude the Summer Play series, produced by Little Theatre in conjunction with Northeast Louisiana State College.

The response to items needed has been very good. Mr. William P. Yerger donated a mannequin to Little Theatre for this production. Tommy Caldwell lent an old type, upright telephone. Little Theatre borrowed these items after the program had gone to press however, it did want to express its appreciation.

Judy Evans, Mary Gill, and Pat Petyon deserve special commendation for the fine costumes they made. They are patterned after authentic designs which came from costume books and illustrations from the 1910 period.

Little Theatre's Patron Membership Drive has begun. If you are interested in a patron membership, call Mrs. DeWitt Milam, chairman, FA 2-3535, or Mrs. L. H. Carter, FA 3-8509, for information. Patron member names will be listed in the program; therefore, the committee hopes to complete the drive as soon as possible.

The Foreign Film Series will show the French movie, "A Nous, La Liberte", on August 17th. There are still a few openings for membership in this series. Those of you interested in obtaining membership may call Larry Shipman, FA 5-5602, as there are still five films left in the series. Admission is by membership only.

Leaving on vacation Monday are Richard Clark, director of Little Theatre, Betty Bandy, and Curtis Rape. They plan to see "Bye Bye Birdie" in Dallas.

STAR DRIVE-IN

'Angel Baby' Now Showing Locally

Allied Artists again has brought to the screen a film with a wide variety of entertainment. It is the new George Hamilton vehicle, "Angel Baby," which opens today at the Star Drive - In Theatre.

Torrid romance, pathos, comedy deep sadness, exciting action and whistle - promoting tunes all have their places in this drama of love on the South's evangelical trail.

The film serves as the vehicle with which Broadway's sensuous Salome Jens makes her motion picture debut.

She it is who plays the title role, the beautiful young mute who finds her voice in an evangelist's tent while a married, itinerant preacher rubs her throat and prays that God will let her speak.

Hamilton portrays Paul Strand, the preacher, surprised to learn of his healing powers and at once torn between right and wrong when he realizes he is falling in love with this girl, who, caught up in the grips of true religion, joins with Strand's troupe, only to break from it as the result of Mrs. Strand's jealousy.

Hamilton, always counted upon to give a sterling performance, does not disappoint with this new screen acting assignment. Other stars who turn in performances are Mercedes McCambridge as the jealousy - stricken wife; Joan Blondell and Henry Jones, as the sometimes - drinking couple who travel with the Strands; Burt Reynolds, as the Southern boy who has enjoyed intimacies with Angel Baby and can't come to the full understanding that since she has found her voice she also has found a new way of life that she is determined to follow, and Roger Clark, as Sam Wilcox who becomes associated with Angel Baby because of the money he knows can be made by promoting her as an evangelist.

Stewart In Ford Joins New Flicker

John Ford, whose Academy Award winning western, "Stagecoach," remains a highwater mark for ambitious directors to shoot at, joins forces in "Two Rode Together" with such old western hands as James Stewart and Richard Widmark.

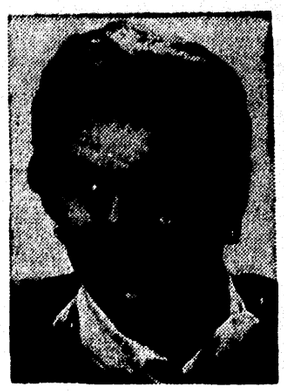
Shirley Jones also stars in the new Ford production, a Columbia release due Wednesday at the Paramount Theatre. Filmed in Eastman Color, "Two Rode Together" co - stars Linda Cristal, Andy Devine and John McIntire.

Stewart is a veteran of the western wars in such top - rank productions as "Broken Arrow," "Winchester 73" and "The Man from Laramie," and Widmark recently was seen to advantage in "The Alamo." They are said to make an outstanding adventure team in "Two Rode Together," backed by Ford's brilliant creative talents and technical skill. Shirley Jones, who mined the dramatic diggings with her performance as a tart in "Elmer Gantry," to win an Academy Award for best supporting actress, plays an untamed girl of the West.

Frank Nugent's screenplay, based on Will Cook's novel, covers a rarely - known as pect of the bloody warfare that raged intermittently in the west between redskin and white: the taking of captives by the Indians, and the efforts made to rescue them.

Stewart and Widmark lead the rescue expedition into Comanche territory. Miss Jones plays a girl whose brother has been taken prisoner by the Indians and raised by them; Miss Cristal, a beautiful captive with whom Stewart falls in love. Devine plays a veteran Army man, while McIntire is the officer who cooks up the foray.

John Ford directed.



INGRID BERGMAN portrays a sophisticated Parisienne loved by two men, one older and one younger, in "Goodbye Again", which comes to the Paramount Theatre next Sunday. Also starring are Anthony Perkins and Yves Montand.

PART OF FILM HISTORY

Many Remember Great Valentino

EDITOR'S NOTE—The "Lady in Black" no longer visits the tomb each year on the anniversary of his death, but the memory of Rudolph Valentino still is a living part of American movie history. No star before or since has matched his amorous appeal and looking back now, experts agree his acting technique was years ahead of his time.

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—His full name was Rodolpho Alfonso Raffaelo Pierre Filiberti Guglielmi di Valentina d' Antonguolla and his secret ambition in life was to be a farmer.

But sighing women in the '20s knew him as Rudolph Valentino, the greatest lover the screen ever had. Even Clark Gable, runner-up for the title, admitted that.

Valentino died 35 years ago Aug. 23, 1926. Veteran New York police officers still recall the orgy of adulation staged by 100,000 mourners at the funeral parlor.

Needless to say, nine out of 10 mourners at that funeral to end all funerals were women.

CLAIMS

Thirty-five women claimed he had fathered illegitimate children by them. All claims came after his death.

There was no Valentino heir from the two marriages he had.

Some actresses, like Mae Murray, spotted the Valentino sex appeal even before he became famous.

Mae, a top star of the silent era, was a Ziegfeld star on Broadway before coming to Hollywood. In the World War I era, some of New Yorks fancy cafes had paid dancers.

Valentino was one at Maxim's. "I saw him before I danced with him," Mae recalls. "he was like a sensuous animal stalking the jazz jungle."

Mae said that Valentino, who almost starved in New York, took the job to keep skin and bones together.

"How this young man danced," Mae remembers. "It was the real tango. The way I had seen it danced on the streets of Paris."

From this meeting a friendship developed and Valentino later appeared in two Mae Maurray pictures.

"I always remember Rudy being as open as a child," says Mae.

VIEWPOINT

The women of the '20s who never missed a Valentino movie saw him as anything but a child.

But there was more than mere virility to the Valentino appeal.

He was an actor of great emotional force but a rarity in that he had brains and class. He was a graduate of Italy's Royal Academy of Agriculture and versed in the arts and literature.

Only in "Blood and Sand" was he given the opportunity for real acting—and he came through.

He married his first wife, Jean Acker, in New York when he was a young man dancing for a living.

His second wife, Winifred Hudnut, was the daughter of the perfumer. A ballet dancer, she danced under the name of Natacha Rambova.

An oldtime camerman recalls she was intent on a career. Valentino wanted a home.

LIVED QUIETLY

"Rudy lived very quietly and didn't get involved with the wild Hollywood crowd of those days," the camerman recalls. "His idea of fun was to have a few friends up to Falcon's Lair, his home in the Hollywood hills."

He loved to hunt and box. When he died at 31, Valentino was a lithe, athletic man. His brother, Alberto, was never satisfied with medical explanations that he died from stomach ulcers and complications while on a trip to New York. Many rumors sprang up, the most persistent that he was poisoned. The family refused to allow an autopsy.

He was a legend then. He's one now. On the last anniversary of his death—the 34th—some 75 people showed up at his crypt for memorial services.

Missing was "The Woman in Black," Valentino's best known mourner. In black dress, black stockings, black shoes, black hat and heavy black veil, she would appear at the crypt with 13 roses —a dozen red, one white. Her visits were daily for the first three years, and annually on the anniversary of his death to 1955.

At first she was believed a publicity stunt. Finally she talked to newsmen. Her name was Ditra Flame. She was a violinist and pianist.

Like Miss Murray, she had met Valentino while he was a dancer.

"I was only 14," she recalled. "One time—it must have been early 1920—I was very sick in a hospital. I was thinking about dying. And then Rudy came to see me."

"HONEYMOON MACHINE", the comedy revolving about the U. S. Navy personnel stationed in Venice, stars Paula Prentiss, Brigid Bazlen, Steve McQueen and Jim Hutton, along with Jack Weston. The picture is about a group who use an electric computer in an attempt to break the bank at the gambling casino. The picture is coming to the Jim Theatre.

Curtain Call

Tonight is the last performance of Tennessee Williams' "Summer and Smoke." This show will conclude the Summer Play series, produced by Little Theatre in conjunction with Northeast Louisiana State College.

The response to items needed has been very good. Mr. William P. Yerger donated a mannequin to Little Theatre for this production. Tommy Caldwell lent an old type, upright telephone. Little Theatre borrowed these items after the program had gone to press however, it did want to express its appreciation.

Judy Evans, Mary Gill, and Pat Petyon deserve special commendation for the fine costumes they made. They are patterned after authentic designs which came from costume books and illustrations from the 1910 period.

Little Theatre's Patron Membership Drive has begun. If you are interested in a patron membership, call Mrs. DeWitt Milam, chairman, FA 2-3535, or Mrs. L. H. Carter, FA 3-8509, for information. Patron member names will be listed in the program; therefore, the committee hopes to complete the drive as soon as possible.

The Foreign Film Series will show the French movie, "A Nous, La Liberte", on August 17th. Arthur Knight, in the Saturday Review, says of the film," . . . a comedy constructed for belly laughs which it unfailingly produces . . . easily among the ten best films of all times . . . truly a remarkable comedy." There are still a few openings for membership in this series. Those of you interested in obtaining membership may call Larry Shipman, FA 5-5602, as there are still five films left in the series. Admission is by membership only.

Leaving on vacation Monday are Richard Clark, director of Little Theatre, Betty Bandy, and Curtis Rape. They plan to see "Bye Bye Birdie" in Dallas.

Expert Solves Problems For Others Only

NEW YORK (AP) — The man who can solve everyone's problems but his own is the theme of "The Commentator," a Broadway - bound play by Ben Irwin.

Irwin, a west coast publicist, recently won a $1,000 national competition for original drama with his script. It has been acquired by Leonard S. Field for production.

The central figure is an influential news commentator who lacks articulateness in his marriage and personal life.

Writer Involved In Triple-Tier Musical Effort

NEW YORK (AP) — George Panetta, an advertising writer by day and dramatist by night, is involved in triple - tier script effort.

At the top of his file is preparation of a tune show, "The Comic Strip Musical," based on a successful off - Broadway venture of three seasons ago. Also in the works is a revamped version of a tryout flop, now rechristened "Kiss Mama."

The third item is "The So-Called Human Race," a comedy.

STAR DRIVE-IN

'Angel Baby' Now Showing Locally

Allied Artists again has brought to the screen a film with a wide variety of entertainment. It is the new George Hamilton vehicle, "Angel Baby," which opens today at the Star Drive - In Theatre.

Torrid romance, pathos, comedy deep sadness, exciting action and whistle - promoting tunes all have their places in this drama of love on the South's evangelical trail.

The film serves as the vehicle with which Broadway's sensuous Salome Jens makes her motion picture debut.

She it is who plays the title role, the beautiful young mute who finds her voice in an evangelist's tent while a married, itinerant preacher rubs her throat and prays that God will let her speak.

Hamilton portrays Paul Strand, the preacher, surprised to learn of his healing powers and at once torn between right and wrong when he realizes he is falling in love with this girl, who, caught up in the grips of true religion, joins with Strand's troupe, only to break from it as the result of Mrs. Strand's jealousy.

Hamilton, always counted upon to give a sterling performance, does not disappoint with this new screen acting assignment. Other stars who turn in performances are Mercedes McCambridge as the jealousy - stricken wife; Joan Blondell and Henry Jones, as the sometimes - drinking couple who travel with the Strands; Burt Reynolds, as the Southern boy who has enjoyed intimacies with Angel Baby and can't come to the full understanding that since she has found her voice she also has found a new way of life that she is determined to follow, and Roger Clark, as Sam Wilcox who becomes associated with Angel Baby because of the money he knows can be made by promoting her as an evangelist.

Stewart In Ford Joins New Flicker

John Ford, whose Academy Award winning western, "Stagecoach," remains a highwater mark for ambitious directors to shoot at, joins forces in "Two Rode Together" with such old western hands as James Stewart and Richard Widmark.

Shirley Jones also stars in the new Ford production, a Columbia release due Wednesday at the Paramount Theatre. Filmed in Eastman Color, "Two Rode Together" co - stars Linda Cristal, Andy Devine and John McIntire.

Stewart is a veteran of the western wars in such top - rank productions as "Broken Arrow," "Winchester 73" and "The Man from Laramie," and Widmark recently was seen to advantage in "The Alamo." They are said to make an outstanding adventure team in "Two Rode Together," backed by Ford's brilliant creative talents and technical skill. Shirley Jones, who mined the dramatic diggings with her performance as a tart in "Elmer Gantry," to win an Academy Award for best supporting actress, plays an untamed girl of the West.

Frank Nugent's screenplay, based on Will Cook's novel, covers a rarely - known as pect of the bloody warfare that raged intermittently in the west between redskin and white: the taking of captives by the Indians, and the efforts made to rescue them.

Stewart and Widmark lead the rescue expedition into Comanche territory. Miss Jones plays a girl whose brother has been taken prisoner by the Indians and raised by them; Miss Cristal, a beautiful captive with whom Stewart falls in love. Devine plays a veteran Army man, while McIntire is the officer who cooks up the foray.

John Ford directed.

TRAVELING NEST

PITTSFORD, N. Y. (AP) — Stephen Muller found a bird's nest in a cornor of his automobile trunk. A bird apparently had entered the trunk through a small hole in the floorboard. He did not distrub the nest, and a few days later he found three eggs in it. Muller says he drives 40 miles a day but the ride apparently does not bother the bird, believed to be a sparrow.

Allies Make Progress On Laos Goals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States, Britain and France moved closer together than ever before on their approaches to a Laos settlement during last week's Paris foreign ministers' conference, official sources reported Saturday.

The big three sessions, although focused on Berlin, also covered the Laos peace conference, the Communist undercover war in South Viet-Nam, and U.S. plans for the China membership debate at the United Nations next month.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk was said to have been encouraged by British and French willingness at Paris to spell out and insist on specific guarantees of Laos' independence by both the Geneva conference and the proposed Lao coalition government.

These terms have not been disclosed. But U.S. satisfaction with them indicated that they included insistence on a strong international control commission in Laos and proof that the proposed government of national unity will be committed to real neutrality by its own political make-up as well as its declarations.

Faltering progress toward a a Laos settlement is being made on two fronts: At Geneva and in Laos, where neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma is trying to get both left and right-wing factions to accept his leadership of a coalition dominated by neutralists.

No real progress has been confirmed, however, in negotiations with the Communists on what the West considers the key issue. This is a system of international inspection and other guarantees that Laos' neighbors will not be able to move in again and try to take over control by subversion or guerrilla warfare.

In the discussion of Viet - Nam and the U.N. China debate, Rusk did not of the talking.

He reported on the just - concluded Washington talks with Nationalist China's Vice President Chen Cheng on tactics for blocking admission of Communist China to the seat now occupied by the Nationalists. The United States expects British and French support for a move to make the U.N. decision subject to a two-thirds vote in the General Assembly, although Britain has indicated it will vote for Red China when that final test comes.

Blockade Would Be Crushing Blow To Castro

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The day that Leon and Cody Bearden captured a Continental jet airliner at El Paso, Texas, and held 10 hostages for nine hours, many angry members of Congress called for what amounted to war action against Cuba.

There were some who were all for sending the Marines in. Others demanded a coastal blockade of Cuba.

As detailed information eventually showed Cuban Communist Premier Fidel Castro did not have a hand in the incident, tempers calmed—but not over the earlier hijacking of a $3.5 million Eastern Airlines plane which Castro is still holding.

What about a bockade? Would it hurt Castro and Cuba?

There is no question that a total blockade would. Cuba is not a self-supporting island. It cannot sustain itself without outside food, medicine, and machinery. Hence, a total blockade could bring Cuba to its knees.

But it also would bring up dangerous complications. It is a war action. Traditionally, nations refuse to recognize a blockade unless it is accompanied by a declaration of belligerent rights.

For instance: Suppose Canada was under contract to ship something to Cuba. Canada would be in default of its contract if it failed to ship, despite the blockade, unless the United States declared belligerent rights.

That would let Canada off the hook. But then there would be the question of shipments from Communist countries to which Castro has tied Cuba. They would be sure to defy the blockade and the United States would have to use force to impose it. That could lead to untold trouble.

Finally, there is the question: What kind of blockade. Would the United States try to keep everything out of Cuba? Or just war materials? Or what?

The angry congressmen don't specify. And President Kennedy has given no sign he is ready for such a drastic move.

But if there are further incidents, the mood in Congress is such as to press the White House for harsh action.

Kennedy is still nursing wounds from the ill-fated Cuban invasion. There is no doubt he would like to see Castro's scalp hanging from a pole. Another incident might force him into a position where he would have to act even though Castro has a pledge of armed help from Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

N.Y. Governor Meets With Ike

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller conferred for nearly an hour Saturday with former President Dwight D. Eisenhower concerning New York City's upcoming mayoralty campaign.

Afterward, Rockefeller told newsmen the general "very definitely" will be in New York City on two occasions during the fall campaign but for nonpolitical purposes. However, Rockefeller expressed a hope that Eisenhower would be able to do some campaigning.

A spokesman for the former president said the meeting produced no commitment on Eisenhower's part to campaign. He said the dates of the general's visits to New York weren't definite.

Legion Lauds School Board On NEA Act

RUSTON (Special) -- Members of the McFarland - McCallum Post No. 2 of the American Legion have lauded the Lincoln Parish school board for their stand in criticizing the National Education Association

The Lincoln Parish school board had earlier in the week passed a resolution objecting to the NEA's stand in favor of integration and urged all parish teachers to withdraw from membership in the organization.

"We believe that the recent action of the National Education Association calling for integration of the schools proves conclusively that the association is dominated by a radical element and that our Southern teachers have nothing to gain and everything to lose by their continued membership and support of NEA," the resolution said.

"We are convinced that the most effective manner of opposing this radicalism and interference with our public school system is for our teachers to completely sever all connections with the NEA."

Burglary, Theft Reported; City Police Probing

Monroe police were investigating a burglary and a theft Saturday in which an outboard motor and approximately $21 were taken.

Owner of the 45 - horsepower outboard motor, Lou Craig of 207 Browning St., West Monroe, said it was taken sometime Friday night from his boat. The craft was tied up on the river across the levee from Riverside Drive and Pine Street.

In a burglary of Tuey's Garage at 114 Powell Ave., Friday night, $21 was taken from the soft drink and cigarette machines.

Entrance to the building was gained by climbing through a window and the party or parties left by the same route.

Also under investigation is the malicious damage done to a drink machine located on the outside of a service station at 1118 South Second St. An employee of the Dr. Pepper Bottling Company reported that the door to the machine had been pounded in but no money was missing.

Timber Crews Set Backfires

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — Timber crews set backfires Saturday in the path of a forest blaze just three miles from a $15-million pulp mill in the tiny community of Woodfibre.

One of the 266 fires dotting the province of British Columbia, this blaze was advancing toward the village 30 miles north of Vancouver Friday. A shift in the wind provided the opportunity for setting backfires.

More than 2,000 men are battling the scattered fires, two of which have covered 57,000 acres near Prince George in the middle of the provincial map.

Allies Make Progress On Laos Goals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States, Britain and France moved closer together than ever before on their approaches to a Laos settlement during last week's Paris foreign ministers' conference, official sources reported Saturday.

The big three sessions, although focused on Berlin, also covered the Laos peace conference, the Communist undercover war in South Viet-Nam, and U.S. plans for the China membership debate at the United Nations next month.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk was said to have been encouraged by British and French willingness at Paris to spell out and insist on specific guarantees of Laos' independence by both the Geneva conference and the proposed Lao coalition government.

These terms have not been disclosed. But U.S. satisfaction with them indicated that they included insistence on a strong international control commission in Laos and proof that the proposed government of national unity will be committed to real neutrality by its own political make-up as well as its declarations.

Faltering progress toward a Laos settlement is being made on two fronts: At Geneva and in Laos, where neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma is trying to get both left and right-wing factions to accept his leadership of a coalition dominated by neutralists.

No real progress has been confirmed, however, in negotiations with the Communists on what the West considers the key issue. This is a system of international inspection and other guarantees that Laos' neighbors will not be able to move in again and try to take over control by subversion or guerrilla warfare.

In the discussion of Viet - Nam and the U.N. China debate, Rusk did not of the talking.

He reported on the just - concluded Washington talks with Nationalist China's Vice President Chen Cheng on tactics for blocking admission of Communist China to the seat now occupied by the Nationalists. The United States expects British and French support for a move to make the U.N. decision subject to a two-thirds vote in the General Assembly, although Britain has indicated it will vote for Red China when that final test comes.

Blockade Would Be Crushing Blow To Castro

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The day that Leon and Cody Bearden captured a Continental jet airliner at El Paso, Texas, and held 10 hostages for nine hours, many angry members of Congress called for what amounted to war action against Cuba.

There were some who were all for sending the Marines in. Others demanded a coastal blockade of Cuba.

As detailed information eventually showed Cuban Communist Premier Fidel Castro did not have a hand in the incident, tempers calmed—but not over the earlier hijacking of a $3.5 million Eastern Airlines plane which Castro is still holding.

What about a bockade? Would it hurt Castro and Cuba?

There is no question that a total blockade would. Cuba is not a self-supporting island. It cannot sustain itself without outside food, medicine, and machinery. Hence, a total blockade could bring Cuba to its knees.

But it also would bring up dangerous complications. It is a war action. Traditionally, nations refuse to recognize a blockade unless it is accompanied by a declaration of belligerent rights.

For instance: Suppose Canada was under contract to ship something to Cuba. Canada would be in default of its contract if it failed to ship, despite the blockade, unless the United States declared belligerent rights.

That would let Canada off the hook. But then there would be the question of shipments from Communist countries to which Castro has tied Cuba. They would be sure to defy the blockade and the United States would have to use force to impose it. That could lead to untold trouble.

Finally, there is the question: What kind of blockade. Would the United States try to keep everything out of Cuba? Or just war materials? Or what?

The angry congressmen don't specify. And President Kennedy has given no sign he is ready for such a drastic move.

But if there are further incidents, the mood in Congress is such as to press the White House for harsh action.

Kennedy is still nursing wounds from the ill-fated Cuban invasion. There is no doubt he would like to see Castro's scalp hanging from a pole. Another incident might force him into a position where he would have to act even though Castro has a pledge of armed help from Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

N.Y. Governor Meets With Ike

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller conferred for nearly an hour Saturday with former President Dwight D. Eisenhower concerning New York City's upcoming mayoralty campaign.

Afterward, Rockefeller told newsmen the general "very definitely" will be in New York City on two occasions during the fall campaign but for nonpolitical purposes. However, Rockefeller expressed a hope that Eisenhower would be able to do some campaigning.

A spokesman for the former president said the meeting produced no commitment on Eisenhower's part to campaign. He said the dates of the general's visits to New York weren't definite.

Legion Lauds School Board On NEA Act

RUSTON (Special) — Members of the McFarland - McCallum Post No. 2 of the American Legion have lauded the Lincoln Parish school board for their stand in criticizing the National Education Association

The Lincoln Parish school board had earlier in the week passed a resolution objecting to the NEA's stand in favor of integration and urged all parish teachers to withdraw from membership in the organization.

"We believe that the recent action of the National Education Association calling for integration of the schools proves conclusively that the association is dominated by a radical element and that our Southern teachers have nothing to gain and everything to lose by their continued membership and support of NEA," the resolution said.

"We are convinced that the most effective manner of opposing this radicalism and interference with our public school system is for our teachers to completely sever all connections with the NEA."

Timber Crews Set Backfires

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — Timber crews set backfires Saturday in the path of a forest blaze just three miles from a $15-million pulp mill in the tiny community of Woodfibre.

One of the 266 fires dotting the province of British Columbia, this blaze was advancing toward the village 30 miles north of Vancouver Friday. A shift in the wind provided the opportunity for setting backfires.

More than 2,000 men are battling the scattered fires, two of which have covered 57,000 acres near Prince George in the middle of the provincial map.

West-Soviet Berlin Talks Likely Soon

LONDON (UPI) — Diplomatic sources said Saturday Western Allies and the Soviet Union may begin talks on the Berlin crisis by the end of September.

The sources said the first East-West negotiations—to be arranged by diplomatic consultation—would probably be on the foreign minister level.

If the initial talks show promise of success, the sources said, they would most likely be followed by a summit conference of President Kennedy, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and French President Charles de Gaulle.

Diplomatic sources said indications now were that Khrushchev is pressing for early talks—even before the 22nd congress of the Communist Party which is scheduled for late October in Moscow.

The West, however, does not favor advancing negotiations before the Sept. 17 West German elections.

The major powers were said to be agreed in principle that there should be East-West negotiations on a Berlin settlement.

But the procedure, the form and the exact timing of such talks has yet to be worked out. This was expected to be done in the coming weeks "through diplomatic channels."

The Western Big Four standing group in Washington is getting down to drafting detailed Western strategy in the wake of the foreign ministers' conference in Paris last weekend.

First soundings for the talks were expected to take place in Moscow between Khrushchev and the Western envoys.

U. S. Ambassador to Moscow Llewellyn Thompson is expected to return to Moscow shortly after consultations with President Kennedy in Washington. The Brisith and French envoys are presently in the Soviet capital.

New Mexcio Deluged By Flash Floods

By United Press International

The threat of new thunderstorms hovered over flash flood-washed New Mexico Saturday and a cool front brought heat relief from Missouri to Maine.

Severe thunderstorm warnings were posted through mid-evening for sections of South Dakota and Nebraska.

Las Vegas, Nev., mopped up after a severe local thunderstorm which flooded streets and cut electric power in the northwest section of the city. The storm left Las Vegas airport weather bureau completely dry.

The weather returned to normal in California, where unseasonable thunderstorms gave the state its first measurable rainfall of the season. Lightning from the storms set off 13 forest fires and touched of flames in an oil derrick on the Beverly Hills High School campus. Two palm trees were set afire at Irvington, east of San Francisco.

Albuquerque, N. M., had only .77 of an inch of rain officially, but sections of the city measured more than four inches Friday night. At least 50 families were evacuated from homes. Major thoroughfares were blocked by water until Saturday morning.

At Las Vegas, N. M., lightning struck the bus station and destroyed a barn. The city measured 2.10 inches of rain in 100 minutes.

The Albuquerque weather bureau warned of possible heavy rain Saturday.

Thunderstorms also hit along the leading edge of the cool front from Kansas to Pennsylvania. Chanute, Kan., had 2.33 inches of rain in six hours early Saturday.

Four Are Killed In Accidents On Alabama Roads

Accidents killed at least four persons in Alabama so far during the weekend, a United Press International survey showed Saturday.

The UPI count began at 6 p.m. Friday and ends at midnight Sunday.

The Highway Patrol reported a seven-year-old boy, Robert Randel Lowery of Fayette, was struck and killed by a car as he rode a bicycle Saturday. The accident occurred when the boy guided his bike in front of the approaching vehicle on U. S. Highway 43 three miles south of Fayette.

Another Saturday accident took the life of Charles Sam Sicola, 53, of Ensley, when his speeding vehicle ran off Jefferson County highway 42 and hit a tree. The mishap occurred .8 miles west of Shades Crest Road in Jefferson County.

Maggie L. Lawson, 41, of Praco, died Friday in a head-on collision on Jefferson County highway 12 near the Walker County line. The Highway Patrol said the victim was driving the car at excessive speed when she hit an approaching vehicle head-on.

Grady Baggett, 57, of Repton, died in a one-vehicle crash on Conecuh County highway 15 Friday. The patrol said Baggett was driving his automobile at high speed when the accident occurred 3.3 miles south of Belleville.

UNPRECEDENTED VISIT

Police To Guard Soviet In Japan

TOKYO (UPI) — An estimated 30,000 Japanese police were being mobilized Saturday to protect Soviet First Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan next week when he makes an unprecendented visit to Japan.

Mikoyan, the most important Soviet leader ever to visit this country, will be protected by one of the tightest security arrangements in Japan's history. His voyage, although technically "unofficial," may lead to important Soviet-Japanese trade accords.

Authorities, fearing an outbreak of violence by right-wing extremists, plan to surround Mikoyan with a "human curtain" from the time he arrives Monday until he leaves Aug. 22.

They are so worried about the possibility of violence that they have asked the Russians to send Mikoyan's plane back to the Soviet Union while he is traveling around Japan. Unofficial reports said the Foreign Ministry had informed the Soviet Embassy it could not guarantee the safety of the plane or its crew members.

The Japanese Foreign Ministry insists that Mikoyan is not an official visitor. But it is laying the red carpet out for him.

He will be met on arrival by Foreign Minister Zentaro Kosaka and International Trade and Industry Minister Eisaku Sato. He will be honored at parties by Kosaka, buisnessmen and others, and will hold talks with Premier Hayato Ikeda, Kosaka, Sato and other officials.

During his nine-day stay, Mikoyan will get a sight-seeing tour of Tokyo, visit a Tokyo university, look at some industrial plants, sight see in Kyoto, Japan's so-called "cultural capital," and hold two news conferences.

He is coming as a guest of Japan to attend the opening of the Soviet Trade Fair, and it is trade to which he will devote the most attention. Japanese official expect him to conclude some trade agreements during his visit. They are hoping to win big orders from him for goods to be used in the deveopment of Siberia.

Demo Gains Predicted In Senate Races

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Vance Hartke, Chairman of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee, said Saturday Democrats should unseat "several" Republican senators next year and retain all of their own Senate seats.

He said eight GOP senators, including Majority Leader Everett M. Dirksen, Ill., already have been put on notice that they are in trouble.

The Indiana Senator discussed the 1962 Senate election outlook in Saturday's issue of the Democratic party publication "Democrat."

Next year, 21 Senate seats held by Democrats and 15 held by Republicans will be at stake. With the present lineup of 65 Democrats to 35 Republicans, GOP leaders concede they have no chance of gaining control of the Senate next year.

"If these elections were held this year, the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee feels certain that not only would we retain all 21 seats but we would pick up several Republican seats as well," Hartke wrote. He said this confidence was based on evidence that the voters are pleased with the way President Kennedy and Congress are working together.

"If this harmony continues — and there is no reason to believe that it will not—we can look for an end to the trend that has found the party in the White House dropping seats in Congress during off-year elections," Hartke said.

He said Democrats know that eight Republicans whose terms expire next year "have already been warned by political leaders in their home states that they are in trouble."

Those he named were Dirksen and Sens. Wallace F. Bennett, Utah, Prescott Bush, Conn., John Marshall Butler, Md., Homer Capehart, Ind., Francis Case, S.D. Thruston B. Morton, Ky., and Alexander Wiley, Wis.

Hartke said no incumbent Republican "can feel that his seat is safe next year."

He acknowledged that some Democratic incumbents face close races but said there was no reason now to expect any of them to be defeated.

Democratic seats which are expected to be major Republican targets next year are held by Sens. John A. Carroll, Colo., Frank Church, Idaho, J. J. Hickey, Wyo., Oren E. Long, Hawaii, Wayne Morse, Ore., and Benjamin A. Smith II, Mass.

New Kennedy Program On Grain Near

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UPI)—A Missouri farm leader said Saturday the Kennedy Administration is ready to launch a new program aimed at deploying the nation's wheat surplus to strategic areas considered prime targets for enemy attack.

Fred V. Heinkel, president of the Missouri Farmers Association, said the program will be detailed Monday at the group's 43rd annual convention by Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman.

Several weeks ago, in Washington, Freeman mentioned at a news conference that the administration was working on such a grain deployment plan. At that time, the details were not spelled out because the plan was still being formulated.

"The secretary," Heinkel said, "will detail this plan of food reserve stockpiles for defense. This is something brand new."

A Heinkel aide, who talked Saturday by telephone with a high official in the U.S. Department of Agriculture in Washington, confirmed Heinkel's statement.

"Freeman is going to announce the details of this program," the aide told United Press International.

The aide said a copy of the secretary's speech was sent from Washington to Columbia Saturday but that it would be embargoed for publication until Monday.

Heinkel is extremely close to the administration. After Kennedy took office in January, Heinkel was considered a top candidate for appointment as Agriculture Secretary. There were many observices who were surprised that Heinkel was not selected.

It was not clear whether or not the program would be limited to wheat. Heinkel said he "understood other farm commodities will be involved" but he was unable to list them specifically.

In Washington, however, it was understood that the plan would involve only government surplus wheat currently stored throughout the Midwest.

The government surplus is currently estimated at about 1.25 billion bushels.

Heinkel said he talked with Freeman in Washington several months ago and at that time the secretary told him he was considering the plan and hoped to have it in shape to announce at the Missouri Farmers Association meeting.

Five Named To Maritime Commission

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—President Kennedy named five acting commissioners Saturday to run the new Federal Maritime Commission, and chose Thomas E. Stakem as acting maritime administrator.

A reorganization plan effective Saturday abolished the Federal Maritime Board and set up the commission in its place. Kennedy said the officials named will serve on an interim basis until permanent commissioners are appointed.

Stakem has been chairman of the Federal Maritime Board, and administrator of the Maritime Administration.

Meanwhile, Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges announced appointment of Elmer E. Metz acting deputy administrator. He said a permanent administrator and deputy will be named within 90 days.

Acting commissioners named by the President at the Cape Cod summer White House were:

James L. Pimper, general counsel of the Maritime Administration, who will serve as acting chairman; Rear Adm. John Harllee (Ret.), a member of the old board; Oscar H. Nielson, director of the Commerce Department Office of the Budget and Management; Thomas Lisi, Secretary of the Maritime Board; and Frank L. Barton, deputy undersecretary of commerce for transportation.

The reorganization gives the five commissioners the regulatory functions of the former Federal Maritime Board. The White House said the reorganization was to strengthen administration of federal programs of the merchant marine, and to separate administrative from regulatory functions.

The Commerce Department Maritime Administration gets new duties under the plan, including responsibility for subsidy contracts.

Suit Is Filed In Alabama On Redistricting

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI)—Jefferson County residents Saturday filed suit against certain state officials to prohibit state elections in 1962 unless the State of Alabama reapportions itself.

As an alternative, the suit asks that all State Representatives and Senators run at large within the state so that they no longer represent a specific area of Alabama.

The suit was filed in U. S. Middle District Court by 10 Jefferson County residents against Bettye Frink, Secretary of State; MacDonald Gallion, Alabama Atty. Gen.; Sam Englehardt, chairman of the State Democratic Executive Committee; and Claude O. Vardaman, chairman of the Alabama State Republican Executive Committee, together with various other officials.

Bomber, Tanker Planes Collide

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — An Air Force B52 jet bomber collided with a jet tanker plane during a refueling over the Pacific Ocean Saturday off Northern California.

A Strategic Air Command spokesman said both planes were slightly damaged and landed safely at Mather Air Force Base here. He declined to say whether any airmen aboard either craft were killed or injured pending authorization from local SAC Wing Headquarters to which both planes were attached.

Hemisphere Leaders End First Talks

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (AP)—Latin - American leaders, haunted by the specter of revolution and shaken by an Argentine upheaval scare, wound up their first week of urgent talks Saturday still groping for a secure road to swift but peaceful change.

Delegates to the hemisphere economic and social conference, weary after a postmidnight vigil awaiting news from Argentina, waded through another round of closed sessions trying to remove obstacles raised by rivalries and suspicions.

The conference is only the beginning. Ahead lies the staggering task of applying President Kennedy's $20 - billion Aliance for Progress program in an effort to cure ancient ills in a brief span of 10 years.

Before the next week is out, the finance ministers now gathered in a converted gambling casino must uncover ways for 20 Latin republics to bury old suspicions and rivalries and move forward with a full head of steam.

Time is short. This was brought home dramatically to the statesmen here by the flurry over the Argentina incident, a short-lived reb thrust against the Argentine government.

Whatever the political color of the attempt, it underscored what is on many minds at Punta del Este: Revolution is possible at almost any time in Latin America.

Such worries also have been thrown into bold relief in the first week of the conference by the activities of Cuba's peripatetic economic boss, Ernesto Guevara.

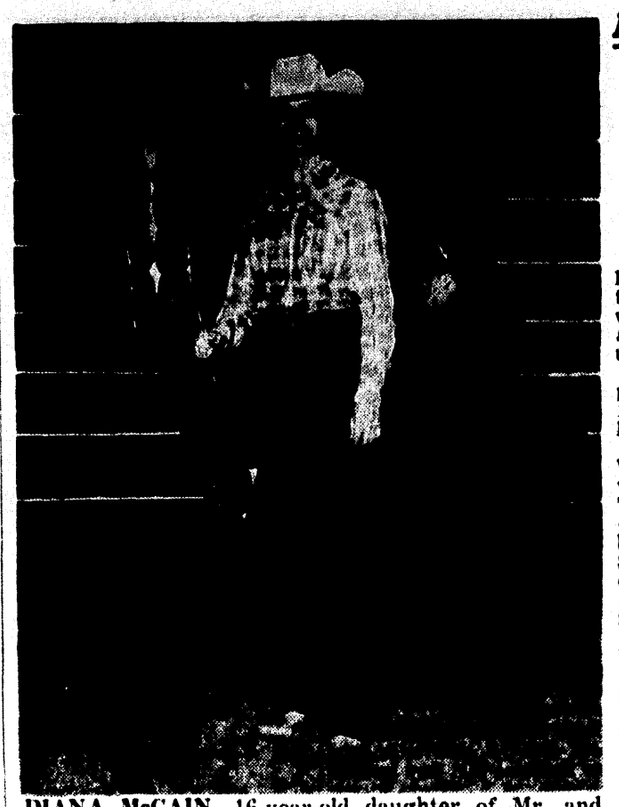
In his open-becked khaki uniform shirt, his bewhiskered features expressing contempt for all this conference stands for, Guevara has put on a display that has captured the Latin - American press.

President Kennedy's chief delegate, Treasury Secretary C Douglas Dillon, in calm, business-like tones, told the delegates that peaceful transformation of Latin America from backwardness to prosperity wil require a mighty effort at self-help.

But straight away a $20-billion wrangle on how to administer the aid money began. The delegates finally compromised on a plan calling for a nine-man panel of experts named by inter-American agencies to advise nations on development projects. However, it would have no supervisory authority.

Argentina had led a fight against creation of a commission of seven wise men to oversee development projects. But smaller nations, fearful that the larger ones would grab most of the money, argued in favor of it.

Brazil, Chile, Colombia and Mexico worked out the compromise, which appeared to sooth anxiety over the possibility of wounded national pride.



DIANA McCAIN, 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. (Kit) McCain of Winnsboro, has been selected to represent the Winnsboro Riding club in the Deep South Rodeo parade Thursday afternoon.

ON TRAFFIC VIOLATORS

Two Area Towns Cracking Down

VIDALIA (Special) — City, parish and state traffic laws are being strictly enforced here and throughout the parish following recent crackdowns on violators, officials said. Numerous arrests have been reported.

In addition to Vidalia, the neighboring community of Ferriday has inaugurated a traffic violation drive to crackdown on persons who ignore traffic lights, stop signs and speed limits.

Mayor Sidney A. Murray, Jr., of Vidalia and Mayor L. Woodie Davis of Ferriday said that violators would be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law and urged the cooperation of the traveling public.

In Vidalia Friday night after a rather extensive discussion led by Police Department Alderman A. J. Gardner, the Mayor and Board of Aldermen instructed the Police Department to require serious compliance with traffic laws in the city limits of Vidalia.

Specific instructions were given the police to require all persons driving cars to have a driver's license. It was pointed out that many teen - agers under 15 (without State driver's licenses) are operating vehicles in the city.

This, they said, can be allowed only with an adult who has a license being in the car with the driver who is learning.

First offenders will be given warning tickets and repeat violators will be fined and will lose their driver's licenses.

Cruise Taken By Kennedy At Cape Cod

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—President Kennedy cruised hazy Nantucket Sound Saturday, taking it easy after hours of homework at his Cape Cod summer place.

The President, here for his seventh weekend in a row with Mrs. Kennedy and the two children, boarded the 52-foot cruiser Marlin at midday.

Earlier, he studied a series of documents he had brought from Washington, and got an intelligence briefing from Cmdr. Tazewell T. Shepard, Jr., his naval aide.

The documents dealt with a wide range of issues, said press secretary Pierre Salinger, and the Berlin crisis was one major subject.

Talks with Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and other officials had threatened to delay the President's departure from Washington.

In fact, Salinger said, McNamara conferred with the President until moments before Kennedy boarded a helicopter to leave the White House late Friday.

Monday, when he returns to Washington, Kennedy is to confer with Llewellyn Thompson, U. S. ambassador to Moscow, who is home for consultation.

Salinger said rest and relaxation were the orders of the day for Kennedy's Saturday afternoon —and Sunday, too. He said the President had no official appointments scheduled, and no business on his Sunday schedule.

Overcast skies had threatened to dampen the President's weekend, but the clouds thinned into haze and the sun filtered through.

West-Soviet Berlin Talks Likely Soon

LONDON (UPI) — Diplomatic sources said Saturday Western Allies and the Soviet Union may begin talks on the Berlin crisis by the end of September.

The sources said the first East-West negotiations—to be arranged by diplomatic consultation—would probably be on the foreign minister level.

If the initial talks show promise of success, the sources said, they would most likely be followed by a summit conference of President Kennedy, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushehev, British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and French President Charles de Gaulle.

Diplomatic sources said indications now were that Khrushchev is pressing for early talks—even before the 22nd congress of the Communist Party which is scheduled for late October in Moscow.

The West, however, does not favor advancing negotiations before the Sept. 17 West German elections.

The major powers were said to be agreed in principle that there should be East-West negotiations on a Berlin settlement.

But the procedure, the form and the exact timing of such talks has yet to be worked out. This was expected to be done in the coming weeks "through diplomatic channels."

The Western Big Four standing group in Washington is getting down to drafting detailed Western strategy in the wake of the foreign ministers' conference in Paris last weekend.

First soundings for the talks were expected to take place in Moscow between Khrushchev and the Western envoys.

U. S. Ambassador to Moscow Llewellyn Thompson is expected to return to Moscow shortly after consultations with President Kennedy in Washington. The Brisith and French envoys are presently in the Soviet capital.

New Mexcio Deluged By Flash Floods

By United Press International

The threat of new thunderstorms hovered over flash flood-washed New Mexico Saturday and a cool front brought heat relief from Missouri to Maine.

Severe thunderstorm warnings were posted through mid-evening for sections of South Dakota and Nebraska.

Las Vegas, Nev., mopped up after a severe local thunderstorm which flooded streets and cut electric power in the northwest section of the city. The storm left Las Vegas airport weather bureau completely dry.

The weather returned to normal in California, where unseasonable thunderstorms gave the state its first measurable rainfall of the season. Lightning from the storms set off 13 forest fires and touched of flames in an oil derrick on the Beverly Hills High School campus. Two palm trees were set afire at Irvington, east of San Francisco.

Albuquerque, N. M., had only .77 of an inch of rain officially, but sections of the city measured more than four inches Friday night. At least 50 families were evacuated from homes. Major thoroughfares were blocked by water until Saturday morning.

At Las Vegas, N. M., lightning struck the bus station and destroyed a barn. The city measured 2.10 inches of rain in 100 minutes.

The Albuquerque weather bureau warned of possible heavy rain Saturday.

Thunderstorms also hit along the leading edge of the cool front from Kansas to Pennsylvania. Chanute, Kan., had 2.33 inches of rain in six hours early Saturday.

Grady Baggett, 57, of Repton, died in a one-vehicle crash on Conecuh County highway 15 Friday. The patrol said Baggett was driving his automobile at high speed when the accident occurred 3.3 miles south of Belleville.

UNPRECEDENTED VISIT

Police To Guard Soviet In Japan

TOKYO (UPI) — An estimated 30,000 Japanese police were being mobilized Saturday to protect Soviet First Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan next week when he makes an unprecendented visit to Japan.

Mikoyan, the most important Soviet leader ever to visit this country, will be protected by one of the tightest security arrangements in Japan's history. His voyage, although technically "unofficial," may lead to important Soviet-Japanese trade accords.

Authorities, fearing an outbreak of violence by right-wing extremists, plan to surround Mikoyan with a "human curtain" from the time he arrives Monday until he leaves Aug. 22.

They are so worried about the possibility of violence that they have asked the Russians to send Mikoyan's plane back to the Soviet Union while he is traveling around Japan. Unofficial reports said the Foreign Ministry had informed the Soviet Embassy it could not guarantee the safety of the plane or its crew members.

The Japanese Foreign Ministry insists that Mikoyan is not an official visitor. But it is laying the red carpet out for him.

He will be met on arrival by Foreign Minister Zentaro Kosaka and International Trade and Industry Minister Eisaku Sato. He will be honored at parties by Kosaka, buisnessmen and others, and will hold talks with Premier Hayato Ikeda, Kosaka, Sato and other officials.

During his nine-day stay, Mikoyan will get a sight-seeing tour of Tokyo, visit a Tokyo university, look at some industrial plants, sight see in Kyoto, Japan's so-called "cultural capital," and hold two news conferences.

He is coming as a guest of Japan to attend the opening of the Soviet Trade Fair, and it is trade to which he will devote the most attention. Japanese official expect him to conclude some trade agreements during his visit. They are hoping to win big orders from him for goods to be used in the deveopment of Siberia.

Demo Gains Predicted In Senate Races

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Vance Hartke, Chairman of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee, said Saturday Democrats should unseat "several" Republican senators next year and retain all of their own Senate seats.

He said eight GOP senators, including Majority Leader Everett M. Dirksen, Ill., already have been put on notice that they are in trouble.

The Indiana Senator discussed the 1962 Senate election outlook in Saturday's issue of the Democratic party publication "Democrat."

Next year, 21 Senate seats held by Democrats and 15 held by Republicans will be at stake. With the present lineup of 65 Democrats to 35 Republicans, GOP leaders concede they have no chance of gaining control of the Senate next year.

"If these elections were held this year, the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee feels certain that not only would we retain all 21 seats but we would pick up several Republican seats as well," Hartke wrote. He said this confidence was based on evidence that the voters are pleased with the way President Kennedy and Congress are working together.

"If this harmony continues — and there is no reason to believe that it will not—we can look for an end to the trend that has found the party in the White House dropping seats in Congress during off-year elections," Hartke said.

He said Democrats know that eight Republicans whose terms expire next year "have already been warned by political leaders in their home states that they are in trouble."

Those he named were Dirksen and Sens. Wallace F. Bennett, Utah, Prescott Bush, Conn., John Marshall Butler, Md., Homer Capehart, Ind., Francis Case, S.D. Thruston B. Morton, Ky., and Alexander Wiley, Wis.

Hartke said no incumbent Republican "can feel that his seat is safe next year."

He acknowledged that some Democratic incumbents face close races but said there was no reason now to expect any of them to be defeated.

Democratic seats which are expected to be major Republican targets next year are held by Sens. John A. Carroll, Colo., Frank Church, Idaho, J. J. Hickey, Wyo., Oren E. Long, Hawaii, Wayne Morse, Ore., and Benjamin A. Smith II, Mass.

Five Named To Maritime Commission

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—President Kennedy named five acting commissioners Saturday to run the new Federal Maritime Commission, and chose Thomas E. Stakem as acting maritime administrator.

A reorganization plan effective Saturday abolished the Federal Maritime Board and set up the commission in its place. Kennedy said the officials named will serve on an interim basis until permanent commissioners are appointed.

Stakem has been chairman of the Federal Maritime Board, and administrator of the Maritime Administration.

Meanwhile, Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges announced appointment of Elmer E. Metz acting deputy administrator. He said a permanent administrator and deputy will be named within 90 days.

Acting commissioners named by the President at the Cape Cod summer White House were:

James L. Pimper, general counsel of the Maritime Administration, who will serve as acting chairman; Rear Adm. John Harllee (Ret.), a member of the old board; Oscar H. Nielson, director of the Commerce Department Office of the Budget and Management; Thomas Lisi, Secretary of the Maritime Board; and Frank L. Barton, deputy undersecretary of commerce for transportation.

The reorganization gives the five commissioners the regulatory functions of the former Federal Maritime Board. The White House said the reorganization was to strengthen administration of federal programs of the merchant marine, and to separate administrative from regulatory functions.

The Commerce Department Maritime Administration gets new duties under the plan, including responsibility for subsidy contracts.

Suit Is Filed In Alabama On Redistricting

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI)—Jefferson County residents Saturday filed suit against certain state officials to prohibit state elections in 1962 unless the State of Alabama reapportions itself.

As an alternative, the suit asks that all State Representatives and Senators run at large within the state so that they no longer represent a specific area of Alabama.

The suit was filed in U. S. Middle District Court by 10 Jefferson County residents against Bettye Frink, Secretary of State; MacDonald Gallion, Alabama Atty. Gen.; Sam Englehardt, chairman of the State Democratic Executive Committee; and Claude O. Vardaman, chairman of the Alabama State Republican Executive Committee, together with various other officials.

Bomber, Tanker Planes Collide

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — An Air Force B52 jet bomber collided with a jet tanker plane during a refueling over the Pacific Ocean Saturday off Northern California.

A Strategic Air Command spokesman said both planes were slightly damaged and landed safely at Mather Air Force Base here. He declined to say whether any airmen aboard either craft were killed or injured pending authorization from local SAC Wing Headquarters to which both planes were attached.

New Kennedy Program On Grain Near

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UPI)—A Missouri farm leader said Saturday the Kennedy Administration is ready to launch a new program aimed at deploying the nation's wheat surplus to strategic areas considered prime targets for enemy attack.

Fred V. Heinkel, president of the Missouri Farmers Association, said the program will be detailed Monday at the group's 43rd annual convention by Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman.

Several weeks ago, in Washington, Freeman mentioned at a news conference that the administration was working on such a grain deployment plan. At that time, the details were not spelled out because the plan was still being formulated.

"The secretary," Heinkel said, "will detail this plan of food reserve stockpiles for defense. This is something brand new."

A Heinkel aide, who talked Saturday by telephone with a high official in the U.S. Department of Agriculture in Washington, confirmed Heinkel's statement.

"Freeman is going to announce the details of this program," the aide told United Press International.

The aide said a copy of the secretary's speech was sent from Washington to Columbia Saturday but that it would be embargoed for publication until Monday.

Heinkel is extremely close to the administration. After Kennedy took office in January, Heinkel was considered a top candidate for appointment as Agriculture Secretary. There were many observices who were surprised that Heinkel was not selected.

It was not clear whether or not the program would be limited to wheat. Heinkel said he "understood other farm commodities will be involved" but he was unable to list them specifically.

In Washington, however, it was understood that the plan would involve only government surplus wheat currently stored throughout the Midwest.

The government surplus is currently estimated at about 1.25 billion bushels.

Heinkel said he talked with Freeman in Washington several months ago and at that time the secretary told him he was considering the plan and hoped to have it in shape to announce at the Missouri Farmers Association meeting.

Hemisphere Leaders End First Talks

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (AP)—Latin - American leaders, haunted by the specter of revolution and shaken by an Argentine upheaval scare, wound up their first week of urgent talks Saturday still groping for a secure road to swift but peaceful change.

Delegates to the hemisphere economic and social conference, weary after a postmidnight vigil awaiting news from Argentina, waded through another round of closed sessions trying to remove obstacles raised by rivalries and suspicions.

The conference is only the beginning. Ahead lies the staggering task of applying President Kennedy's $20 - billion Aliance for Progress program in an effort to cure ancient ills in a brief span of 10 years.

Before the next week is out, the finance ministers now gathered in a converted gambling casino must uncover ways for 20 Latin republics to bury old suspicions and rivalries and move forward with a full head of steam.

Time is short. This was brought home dramatically to the statesmen here by the flurry over the Argentina incident, a short-lived reb thrust against the Argentine government.

Whatever the political color of the attempt, it underscored what is on many minds at Punta del Este: Revolution is possible at almost any time in Latin America.

Such worries also have been thrown into bold relief in the first week of the conference by the activities of Cuba's peripatetic economic boss, Ernesto Guevara.

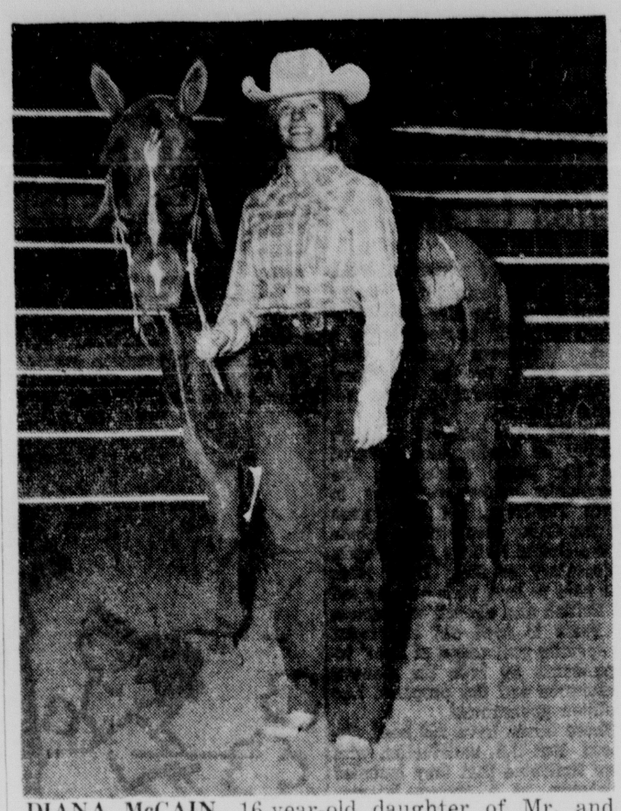
In his open-becked khaki uniform shirt, his bewhiskered features expressing contempt for all this conference stands for, Guevara has put on a display that has captured the Latin - American press.

President Kennedy's chief delegate, Treasury Secretary C Douglas Dillon, in calm, business-like tones, told the delegates that peaceful transformation of Latin America from backwardness to prosperity wil require a mighty effort at self-help.

But straight away a $20-billion wrangle on how to administer the aid money began. The delegates finally compromised on a plan calling for a nine-man panel of experts named by inter-American agencies to advise nations on developments projects. However, it would have no supervisory authority.

Argentina had led a fight against creation of a commission of seven wise men to oversee development projects. But smaller nations, fearful that the larger ones would grab most of the money, argued in favor of it.

Brazil, Chile, Colombia and Mexico worked out the compromise, which appeared to sooth anxiety over the possibility of wounded national pride.



DIANA McCAIN, 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. (Kit) McCain of Winnsboro, has been selected to represent the Winnsboro Riding club in the Deep South Rodeo parade Thursday afternoon.

ON TRAFFIC VIOLATORS

Two Area Towns Cracking Down

VIDALIA (Special) — City, parish and state traffic laws are being strictly enforced here and throughout the parish following recent crackdowns on violators, officials said. Numerous arrests have been reported.

In addition to Vidalia, the neighboring community of Ferriday has inaugurated a traffic violation drive to crackdown on persons who ignore traffic lights, stop signs and speed limits.

Mayor Sidney A. Murray, Jr., of Vidalia and Mayor L. Woodie Davis of Ferriday said that violators would be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law and urged the cooperation of the traveling public.

In Vidalia Friday night after a rather extensive discussion led by Police Department Alderman A. J. Gardner, the Mayor and Board of Aldermen instructed the Police Department to require serious compliance with traffic laws in the city limits of Vidalia.

Specific instructions were given the police to require all persons driving cars to have a driver's license. It was pointed out that many teen - agers under 15 (without State driver's licenses) are operating vehicles in the city.

This, they said, can be allowed only with an adult who has a license being in the car with the driver who is learning.

First offenders will be given warning tickets and repeat violators will be fined and will lose their driver's licenses.

"NOT OPEN SUNDAY"

Our manner of doing business, our merchandise and organization is good enough that we do not have to remain open on Sundays.

For 24 years we have offered excellent deals, on an ethical basis, in the same location by the same Chrysler Corporation.

We sincerely believe in their engineering, their new management, and the cars they will offer you now and in the future.

Our prices start at $1,833 for the VALIANT, $2,063 for PLYMOUTH, to whatever you want in our IMPERIAL LeBaron.

Try us - We couldn't have remained in business this long unless we had done a high percentage of our business in an ethical and satisfactory manner.
